St. James the Great is an ecclesiastical parish, formed June 23, 1846, from the civil parish of Stoke Damerel; the church, in Albert road, near the Government works at Keyham, was erected in 1849-50, at a cost of £6,000, and is a building of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave with clerestory, aisles, and a tower with spire, on the south side, 145 feet high, containing 2 bells: the base of the tower forms a porch: the church was restored in 1881-8 at a cost of £700, and affords 1,093 sittings. The register dates from the year 1849. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, in the gift of the Crown and the Bishop of Exeter alternately, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Ernest Charles Atherton M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge.

There is a Bible Christian chapel in Haddington road; Wycliffe Congregational chapel in Albert road, erected in 1855-6, at a cost of £2,000, has 550 sittings; the Primitive Methodist chapel in Herbert street has 300 sittings, and there is a Free Methodist chapel in Albert road, seating 550 persons; and a Wesleyan Methodist chapel in Gloucester street with 812 sittings.

FORD is the name of a district in the north-west part of the parish of Devonport.

St. Mark's is an ecclesiastical parish formed December 15, 1885, from Stoke Damerel civil parish; the church, in Cambridge road, Ford, is a building of dressed limestone in the Early Pointed style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles: the chancel was built in 1874 and the nave and aisles in 1882, the total cost being £5,000: there are 850 sittings. An iron building for Sunday school purposes was erected at a cost of £400. The register dates from the year 1884. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £185, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Charles Richard Teape M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge, and University of Edinburgh.

There are Baptist and Wesleyan Methodist chapels.

The population of St. James the Great ecclesiastical parish in 1891 was 10,676, and of St. Mark, Ford, 6,621.

The population of the "Three Towns" in 1881 was 137,664, in 1891, 138,996, and in 1901, 192,295.

COMPTON GIFFORD, called in Domesday "Contone" and "Contona," adjoins Plymouth on the north-east, and occupies "the crests and flanks of two roughly parallel ridges, connected by a slight plateau, and is a tithing and a civil parish, formed December 22, 1871, into an ecclesiastical parish with an addition from the civil parish of Charles, Plymouth: in 1880 the St. Andrew's portion of the tithing was added, and the parish now also includes part of Plymouth lying east of Mutley plain. The boundaries of the tithing are formed by watercourses, or by the lines of ancient roads, but in no case do any of these belong to the tithing. Under the provisions of a Bill framed by the Local Government Board, and confirmed by a House of Commons Committee, 10th July, 1896, it was agreed, after an appeal to the House of Lords, that the whole of Compton Gifford lying south of Higher Compton road, should become on and from 9th November, 1896, a portion of the extended borough of Plymouth; the remainder, outside the limits of the borough, amounts to about 167 acres. The nearest station is at Mutley on the South Western railway. Emmanuel church, at Mannamead, is a building of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, large transepts, vestry, organ chamber, south and west porches, and a tower: the church, begun in 1870, from the designs of Mr. Reid, architect, was extended, in 1881, at a cost of £4,000, and in 1897, the present tower was erected and dedicated at a cost of £3,500: the east window, erected by the Messrs. Pearn, is a memorial to their mother, and there are others to the Hicks, Jackson, Rendle and Jenkins families: the church will seat 900 persons. The register dates from the year 1871. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £420, with residence, in the gift of the vicar of Charles, Plymouth, and held since 1878 by the Rev. George Benton Berry B.A. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge and surrogate. A vicarage house was provided in 1884. There is a mission chapel in Lower Compton, and one in Hyde Park road, Mutley; both are attached to Emmanuel church. The Salvation Army, in 1896, acquired Cleave Villa for the purposes of a refuge and holds services there. Charities:—Capt. Robert Rawlyn, who died in 1626, gave by will certain property to the Plymouth Orphans' Aid, one child to be chosen from Compton Gifford, and he also left 40s. a year to the poor of this place; Rebecca Shaw, widow, January 28, 1807, left the interest of certain tolls for the poor, and Sarah Hancock, January 5, 1811, the interest of £100, these two charities now produce £5 8s. 6d. annually, which sum is distributed by the vicar. In July, 1892, the late Mr. E. A. Pearn (d. 1893), conveyed to trustees certain lands for the erection of almshouses, a home for incurables and other charitable purposes. The chief landowners are Admiral Sir Michael Onlme Seymour bart. G.C.B. of Wadenhoe House, Oundle, Miss Revell, John Thomas Soltan esq. J.P. and Richard Carter Revell esq. The soil is free soil; subsoil, clay and slate, traversed east and west by bands of contemporary igneous rocks, locally known as "dunstone," and consisting of various lavas and turfs used both for building and road making, in the hill north of Compton, there exists a vein of rich red Jasper; the land is chiefly used for grazing. The area is 830 acres; rateable value, £1,649; the population in 1891 was 3,264 in the tithing and 4,661 in the ecclesiastical parish.

MUTLEY, adjoining Plymouth on the north, contains the South Devon Militia barracks, 3rd Battalion Devonshire Regiment, and has a station on the London and South Western railway. There is a Wesleyan chapel opened in 1881, and a Baptist chapel opened in 1869.

GOVERNMENT ESTABLISHMENTS.

The Royal Devonport Dockyard, so named by Her Majesty's command on the occasion of the visit of the Queen and Prince Albert in 1843, lies on the west of Devonport, and is inclosed on the side towards the Hamoaze by a semicircular wharf wall of more than 1,160 yards in length: it is also separated from the town by a high wall, with an entrance into Fore street, and comprises an area of more than 70 acres. An important extension scheme has been provided for in the recent "Naval Works' Act," by which three additional large docks and one of smaller size, together with two great basins, the whole covering about 44 acres, are to be provided at an estimated cost of over £2,000,000, and will occupy about 10 years in construction. Mr. Whateley Eliot is superintending civil engineer. The Dockyard gives employment to nearly 9,000 men, employed as shipwrights, caulkers, joiners, smiths, sawyers, rope makers, machinists, painters, riggers, sail makers and labourers. Besides the ships of war building, or under repair, the docks, rope house and smithery, with their various mechanical appliances, are always objects of interest to the visitor, as are also the guard ship and vessels in steam reserve.

The Dockyard chapel within the yard, for the use of the officers and men of that establishment, is a plain building of limestone, with a tower containing 6 bells, all cast by Pennington, of Lezant, Cornwall, in 1770, and has 1,200 sittings.

North of the Dockyard, and entered from Queen street, is the Gun Wharf, first laid out in 1718, and now occupying an area of nearly 21 acres; it contains officers' houses, a naval ordnance dépôt, erected in 1892, an armoury, store houses and piles of shot, gun-carriages and other implements of war.

Beyond the Gun Wharf is Keyham steam yard, established by the late Lord Auckland, when First Lord of the Admiralty, in 1846; it occupies nearly the entire water frontage of Morice Town, and extends over more than 100 acres; it contains, besides extensive smitheries and workshops for engineers and others employed in the repair or fitting of steam vessels, some of the largest and finest granite-built basins and docks in the country, one of these, the Queen's dock, being 418 feet in length. The entrances to the basin and the docks are secured by iron caissons, which cost about £4,500 each.

The two dockyards are under the supervision of an admiral-superintendent, and connected by means of a tunnel, constructed in 1854, passing under the streets between the Dockyard and Gun Wharf, and thence under Moon street to the Keyham yard; the three great establishments and also the Naval barracks being thus connected, stores and other material can be speedily conveyed from one to the other. The sum paid annually in wages to the artificers of all classes, in the two dockyards, is about £340,000. The Dockyards comprise together an area of 180 acres and present a magnificent river frontage to the Hamoaze. All the ships forming the Western Division of the Channel Squadron, as well as many others, refit and repair at these docks, and every branch of naval construction is in full operation in their spacious factories and workshops. There is also a very extensive Government Ropery and Sail Factory, in which 150 females are employed.

To the north of Keyham yard are the new Naval Barracks, connected with H.M.S. Vivid, and forming a general depot for seamen and stokers whilst undergoing the qualifying course and waiting their turn for sea service; the buildings, completed in 1866, are constructed of local hard limestone with portland stone dressings, and comprise two blocks for seamen and stokers and two blocks for officers' quarters, with guard house, store house, laundry and drill shed: additional buildings are now (1901) in course of erection, which, when completed, will accommodate 2,000 men and 100 commissioned officers, and will include an infirmary: the grounds are laid out as parade, cricket and tennis grounds: the work is being carried out under the direction of Munro Wilson esq. and the estimated cost amounts to about £170,000.

In the Hamoaze, or harbour, in front of the yards, and up to Bull Point, are moored ships of war not in commission or on active service, besides a large number of torpedo-boat destroyers. Moorings are laid down by the Admiralty from the Dockyard to the confluence of the Lynher and Tamar, a distance of about 3 miles.

The Royal Naval Engineer Students' College, at the northern end of Keyham yard, adjoining the officers' quarters, is a large and handsome building of limestone and Portland stone, with a frontage of 200 feet. It affords room for 200 students. The total cost of this college is about £16,000 yearly, of which about £8,000 is contributed by the students.

The Royal William Victualling Yard, situated at the south-western point of Stonehouse, on what was formerly called "Cremyll Point," was begun in 1826, and completed in 1835: the entire premises comprise an extent of 13 acres, of which about 6 acres were recovered from the sea: it is estimated that in its construction no less than 300,000 tons of rock were displaced. The works were executed by the contractor, Hugh McIntosh, under the superintendence of Sir John Rennie and Philip Richards esq. at a cost of above two millions sterling. The gateway forming the entrance on the land side is in the Græco-Roman style and is ornamented with appropriate emblems and surmounted by a statue of King William IV. The general facing of the buildings is of wrought limestone; but the plinth throughout, as well as the dressings, cornices and architraves, in the principal fronts, are of granite: the door and window frames are of cast iron, as are the internal columns of the warehouses, and the girders and lintels of the cooperage; several of the stores are also roofed with iron. The arrangements for grinding and baking are very complete: the grinding apparatus includes 34 pairs of millstones, and is capable of grinding above 1,000 bushels of corn in 10 hours: the meal or flour is passed from one part of the building to another, mixed, kneaded, cut into biscuits, and deposited in the ovens by machinery: the slaughter-house is of sufficient extent to admit of the killing of from 70 to 80 head of cattle at once: the weighing and salting houses are equally capacious. The storehouses and workshops are extensive and admirably arranged. The clock in the central tower, by Mr. Vulliamy, is an elaborate and accurate machine, with a pendulum 14 feet in length, and consisting of a teak-wood rod supporting a ball weighing nearly 2½ cwt. and vibrating once in 2" in an arc of from 3° to 3° 30' from the zero point of rest: the escapement wheel revolves once in 4', with a perfectly dead beat, and has 60 steel pins or teeth operating on steel pallets: the clock is composed of 1,393 pieces. The yard is in the charge of the superintendent and a staff of officers, and about 130 men are regularly employed. The western portion of the victualling yard, consisting of about 3 acres, was in 1891 transferred to the New Naval Ordnance Department. Extensive repairing shops have been erected, fitted with machinery of the latest pattern and with various labour-saving appliances, powerful steam and hydraulic cranes and lifts, both on the wharf and in the stores, are in constant use, and a tramway facilitates the movement of the heavy stores. The lower floor of the buildings of this department is used for the storage of sponges, rammers, carriages &c.: the centre floor contains the armoury, in which about 9,000 rifles, besides pistols, cutlasses and boarding pikes are kept ready for immediate use. Machine and quick-firing guns are also kept on this floor, the average number being nearly 500. The upper floors are filled with a miscellaneous assortment of stores in great variety. In the shot yard are stacked piles of heavy shot, the total weight of which usually amounts to about 5,000 tons. The weight of the ordnance stores contained generally in these buildings is about 14,000 tons, and they comprise about 12,000 different kinds of articles. The value of the stock (including the combustibles and explosive stores at Bull Point) may be taken at about £2,500,000. The water close to the victualling yard is of sufficient depth for vessels of heavy burthen to come alongside to receive cargoes. Fresh water is supplied by the Plymouth Corporation, from an extensive reservoir in the field adjoining the yard.

Devonport is the seat of a naval command, and the Commander-in-Chief, or Port Admiral, has a residence, known as "Admiralty House," on Mount Wise, a fine, open and elevated parade ground on the south side of the town, and commanding extensive views seaward, as well as a great part of the harbour: the spot derives its name from Sir Thomas Wise kt. a former lord of the manor, who built a house here. The offices are in direct communication, by telegraph, with the Admiralty in London. There is a semaphore or telegraph station on an eminence near the admiral's house, from which ships in the harbour, or passing up or down the channel within sight of the coast, may be signalled. Pigeons are officially maintained and trained, to be placed on board ships of war on service, for conveyance of messages.

The military Commander-in-Chief for the Western district of England, which includes the counties of Brecknock, Cardigan, Carmarthen, Cornwall, Devon, Glamorgan, Gloucester, Monmouth, Montgomery, Pembroke, Radnor and Somerset, as well as Haverfordwest, has also a residence, called "Government House," with offices, on Mount Wise, Devonport being the seat of the command. At the rear of Government House is the Mount Wise parade, on which the troops are exercised, but on account of the rather limited space the annual reviews are now held in Devonport Lines, locally known as The Brickfields. Besides the citadel there are two batteries and barracks. The powder magazine, formerly at Kinterbury, about 1½ miles from the town, is now at Bull Point, nearly 4 miles up the Tamar.

The barracks, sometimes containing upwards of 2,000 troops, are arranged in several distinct blocks, the Artillery barracks being on the north of the town, the Raglan barracks on the east, next "The Lines," and George's Square barracks south-east, besides other barracks near Mount Wise; the Raglan barracks, the principal entrance to which is from the military road in "The Lines," nearly inclose a spacious parade ground, and are built in a simple Italian style; the officers' mess-room is a lofty and spacious apartment, with an orchestra at one end.

The Citadel church, Plymouth, for the use of the garrison, is a plain building of stone, consisting of nave and transepts, and has sittings for about 500 persons. The Rev. Alfred Malin M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge, and chaplain to the forces at Devonport since 1900, officiates.

The Garrison church, in Cumberland street, Devonport, is an edifice of brick and hewn stone and adjoins the extensive barracks: there are 1,000 sittings.

The Plymouth division of Royal Marines, comprising 6 companies, has its head quarters at Stonehouse.

The Royal Marine Barracks, built in 1784, and occupying an area of about 13 acres, are situated at the back of Durnford street, and between it and Millbay, and are available for about 1,500 men; they are built in a plain Italian style, and have a lofty pedimented entrance, with three archways; residences for the commandant and officers, with offices, are attached: the central square forms a parade, where the Royal Marine band frequently performs, and in which the marines and recruits drill.

Beyond the Royal Marine Barracks, in a southerly direction, is the Long-room, formerly a public assembly-room and promenade, but now Government property, and used as a dispensary for marines.

The Admiralty School, in the Millbay road, Stonehouse, for the girls and infants, children of the marines, is a fine building of stone in the Gothic style, established by the Government in the year 1871; the boys' school is in the Longroom, Stonehouse.

The Royal Military Hospital, Stoke, adjacent to the open "lines," on the margin of the Stonehouse Pool, was built in 1797, and has a colonnade of 41 arches, forming a fine promenade for the sick; the hospital is available for 286 patients.

The Royal Naval Hospital, to the north of Stonehouse, and near the Pool or Lake, is directly opposite to the Royal Military Hospital, but on the Stonehouse side of the water: it was built in 1762, for the reception of seamen and marines, and occupies an area of 24 acres; from 600 to 700 patients can be received here, and there are residences for the various officers, surgeons and chaplains.

PLYMPTON ST. MARY, in Domesday, "Plintona," is a parish and head of a union, with a station on the main line and another, called "Marsh Mills," on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, and is 5 miles north-east-by-north from Plymouth, 13 south from Tavistock, 48 south-west from Exeter, 124 from Bristol by rail and 237 from London, in the Southern division of the county, Plympton hundred, Ermington and Plympton petty sessional division, county court district of East Stonehouse, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The place is lighted with gas from works at Underwood, the property of the Plympton District Gas Co. Waterworks were erected here for Plympton St. Mary and St. Maurice in 1893, at a cost exceeding £10,000; these are now under the control of the Plympton Rural District Council and a good supply of water is obtained from Bottle Hill. The church of St. Mary, restored in 1860, is a very fine building of granite, chiefly in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transept, south porch and an embattled western tower 108 feet in height, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 8 bells, dated respectively 1766, 1614 (2 and 6), 1754, 1725 (4 and 5); the dials of the clock were presented and the clock restored in 1889 by the late George Coaker esq. of Plym villa: the church retains sedilia and piscina, a side altar and some ancient brasses and monuments: two doorways belonging to the rood loft stairs also exist: there are several stained windows, the gift of the Treby family; the west window is a memorial to the Rev. W. J. Coppard, a former vicar, and the east window to Edmund, 2nd and late Earl of Morley, d. August 28, 1864: there is another memorial window to Fanny, wife of Sir Thomas Villiers Lister K.C.M.G. placed by the Earl and Dowager Countess of Morley; and one to Mr. Osmond, given by his son: the rearedos was presented as a memorial to the Rev. Merton Smith M.A. late vicar, by his family, and a large cross has also been erected to his memory in the churchyard by public subscription: in the church are two fine recumbent effigies of knights in plate armour and bare headed; one of these, now in the north aisle, represents Richard Stroode, of Newnham, esq. c. 1464; the other, in the south aisle, placed on an altar-tomb within an arched recess, probably represents William Courtenay, of Loughton esq.; the tomb bears the impaled shield of Courtenay, and on the arch above is the badge of the Hungerfords: in the north aisle is a large mural monument with kneeling effigies of a man in half-armour and trunk hose, and two ladies, one on either side; below these the busts, in low-relief, of ten children, and an inscription in Latin to Sir William Strode kt. ob. June 27, 1637, and his wives, Mary (Southcot) and Dionisia (Glanville); the monument, erected by his son, has a quartered shield above, and four shields below, with the motto "HUME VIRESCO": a flat stone in the aisle is inscribed to Sidney Strode esq. ob. 1721, and Ann (Trevanion) his wife, ob. 1723, and bears a shield of arms; and one of the oaken benches displays eight shields illustrating the alliances of the Strodes and Courtenays: there are 900 sittings. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1603; burials, 1604. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £230, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Joseph Mercer Cox M.A. sometime fellow of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, and chaplain to Plympton union. The impropriate tithes are commuted at £1,800 yearly. Here are Congregational, Wesleyan and Free Methodist chapels, and there is also a chapel for the Brethren. The early closing day is on Wednesday. A small Convalescent Hospital for Women was established here in 1883. The charities amount to £97 yearly. This village was formerly the site of a priory, founded in 1121 by Robert Warlewast, Bishop of Exeter 1150-9, and formerly Dean of Salisbury, in the place of a college, consisting of a dean and four canons, which had existed here from a very early period; the priory, dedicated to SS. Peter and Paul, was intended for canons of the order of St. Augustine: at the Dissolution there were 21 canons and its yearly revenues were estimated at £912: the Early English refectory, over a Norman undercroft, and a kitchen of the 15th century still remain at the Priory Mills; attached to this priory were cells at Marisca, near Exeter, and St. Anthony in Roseland, Cornwall. Saltram House, the seat of the Earl of Morley P.C., D.L., J.P. lord of the manor and barony of Plympton, is a stately mansion in an extensive and finely-wooded park on the east side of the river Plym, about 3 miles east-north-east of Plymouth, and was mostly built by Lady Katherine Parker, mother of the first Lord Boringdon; the beauty of the situation induced the Parkers to continue the enlargement of the mansion and the embellishments of the grounds, the groves and lawns of which overlook the waters of the estuary of the Plym, called the Laira; the house has been much improved by former earls and is surrounded by a beautiful lawn and grounds of about 300 acres in extent; its western front is 170 feet in length and the southern and eastern fronts each extend to 159 feet: adjoining the grounds is Plymouth race-course, and across the Plym is the Laira bridge, built by the 1st Earl of Morley. Boringdon House came into the possession of the Parker family in the 6th century, one of the Parkers of North Molton having married in 1583 Miss Mayhew, the heiress of Boringdon: the house is of considerable interest and contains a fine hall with a minstrels' gallery; over the chimney-piece are the Royal arms, with the date 1604: it is now used as a farmhouse. Old Newnham, the ancestral seat of the Strode family, was erected by the monks of Plympton in the 11th century; it is now a farmhouse and in the occupation of Mr. B. W. Coaker. Newnham Park, the seat of George Sydney Strode Strode esq. J.P. is pleasantly situated; the park of 236 acres is well timbered and watered by the river Tory; in the park is kept a fine herd of deer. The other principal seats are Elfordleigh, the residence of Mrs. Bainbridge, and Chaddlewood, of George William Culme Soltan-Symons esq. D.L., J.P. The Earl of Morley P.C. who is lord of the manor, George S. Strode Strode esq. G. W. C. Soltan-Symons esq. the Rev. George Ley Woolcombe M.A. of Hemerdon, Lord Seaton, Mrs. Bainbridge and Major-Gen. Paul Winsloe Phillips-Treby, of Goodamoor, are the chief landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and root crops. The area is 10,177 acres of land, 34 of water, 8 of tidal water and 47 of foreshore; rateable value, £31,641; the population in 1891 was 2,633 in the ecclesiastical and 3,837 in the civil parish, including 9 officers and 110 inmates in the workhouse, and 16 in the St. Elizabeth House of Rest.

Parish Clerk, Frank Pitwood.

COLEBROOK, UNDERWOOD, RIDGEWAY, joining Plympton, are hamlets.

SPARKWELL, together with LEE MILL BRIDGE, VENTON, HEMERDON and BOTTLE HILL in this civil parish, have been formed into an ecclesiastical parish and will be found under the heading of Sparkwell.

PLYMPTON ST. MAURICE (otherwise Plympton Erle) is a small market town and parish, half a mile south-by-east from Plympton station on the South Devon section of the main line of the Great Western railway, 48 miles south-west from Exeter, 5 north-east-by-east of Plymouth, 13 south-east from Tavistock and 237 from London, in the Southern division of the county, Plympton hundred, Ermington and Plympton petty sessional division, union of Plympton St. Mary, county court district of East Stonehouse, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Plympton derives its name from the river Plym, the estuary of which is now 2 miles distant, but was in ancient times much nearer; it was one of the ancient Stannary towns and was made a borough by charter from Baldwin de Redvers, 7th Earl of Devon, in March, 1241, subsequently confirmed by Edward I. Richard II. Henry V. Henry VI. and later monarchs, including Elizabeth, James II. and William and Mary; its municipal character was maintained until 1859, when the charter, which conferred no exclusive jurisdiction, as against the county, was allowed to lapse. The Corporation consisted of a mayor and 9 other aldermen, an indefinite number of freemen, bailiff, recorder, town clerk and subordinate officers. The borough returned two members to Parliament from 23 Edward I. (1294-5) up to the passing of the Reform Act of 1832, and amongst these are found the names of Serjeant Hele, William Strode, one of the famous "five members" in the reign of Charles I. Sir Nicholas Slanning kt. (1639), Sir John Maynard kt. Sir Christopher Wren (1685) and Lord Castlereagh. The church, anciently a chapel appendant to the Priory of Plympton St. Mary and dedicated to St. Thomas of Canterbury, was rebuilt in 1440 and rededicated to St. Maurice in the reign of Henry VIII.: it is a building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 8 bells, the first three and the fifth dating from 1768, the fourth was re-cast in 1735, the tenor was re-cast in the parish in 1833, and about 1897 2 additional bells were presented, in memory of Col. Buller, by members of the family: there are nine memorial windows and several mural tablets: the church was thoroughly restored in 1879, at a cost of £2,940, and now affords 340 sittings. The register dates from the year 1616. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £98, including 14 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1876 by the Rev. Henry Tubal Hole M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Oxford. There are Wesleyan and Calvinistic chapels and several small charities, amounting to about £18 yearly. The ancient Town Hall is now leased by the representatives of the old Corporation and is used for lectures and concerts: it formerly contained a portrait of Sir Joshua Reynolds, painted by himself, but this was sold by the Corporation in 1832 to the Earl of Egremont, for a sum of £150. The insignia of the defunct Corporation includes three maces and a common seal; the three maces, which date from the latter part of the Stuart period, are of copper gilt, 2 feet 6 inches in length and precisely similar in every respect; the shafts are plain, banded with projecting belts of foliated work, and terminating in foot knobs, adorned in like manner; the heads are divided into compartments by armless winged cherubs, merged into acanthus foliage, and exhibit the national badges crowned; from the cresting rise open-arched crowns, and on the flat top of the heads are the royal arms of the Stuarts; the borough seal displays the figure of an eagle rising and is surrounded by a legend of the name of the town. Here is a private lunatic asylum, once the residence of the Treby family; it is a spacious building, licensed for 43 patients; Charles Aldridge M.D. and Alfred Turner M.D. are the proprietors and medical superintendents. A cattle market is held the first Monday in each month. Sir Joshua Reynolds, elected president of the Royal Academy at its first establishment, was born here 16th July, 1723, his father, a clergyman, being then master of the Plympton Grammar School:

on the foundation of the Royal Academy in 1768, he was chosen president and knighted; in 1773 he was elected mayor of Plympton and received from the University of Oxford the honorary degree of D.C.L. and in 1783 became principal painter to the king; he died at his house in Leicester square, London, 23rd February, 1792, and was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Plympton Castle, situated north of the town, was built by Richard de Abrincis or de Redvers, 1st Earl of Devon, in the reign of Henry I.; it was sometime the seat of the Earls of Devon, and in Domesday Book is spoken of as "terra regis," or part of the king's demesne. In the reign of Stephen, Baldwin de Redvers, 2nd Earl of Devon, espousing the cause of the Empress Maud, fortified the castle against the king, but was compelled to surrender without any active resistance; during the Civil War it served as the head quarters of Prince Maurice during the siege of Plymouth in 1643, but in 1644 was captured by the Earl of Essex; the remains consist chiefly of a mound on which linger some fragments of the keep, situated at the eastern end of the inner court. The earthworks are in good preservation, and retain, if not the actual vallum, at least the outline of the Roman camp which preceded the later fortifications. Erle Hall is the residence of Admiral Sir Alexander Buller K.C.B., J.P. The Rt. Hon. the Earl of Morley P.C. who is lord of the manor of Plympton, Pollexfen Colmore Copleston Radcliffe esq. of Derriford, who is lord of the manor of Plympton Grange, Admiral Sir A. Buller K.C.B. and Arthur Thomas Mudge esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The soil is shale and clay; the subsoil is principally clay. The area is 232 acres; rateable value, £3,871; the population in 1891 was 1,139, including 51 in Plympton House private asylum.

PLYMSTOCK is a very extensive parish on the margin of Cattewater and Plymouth Sound, at the head of which is the Laira, a lake-like expanse of the river Plym, with a station 1 mile north-by-west of the village at Pophlett, on the London and South Western railway, at the junction with the Great Western railway, which latter line has a station at Billacombe, half a mile from Plymstock village, which is 2 miles south-east from Plymouth, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Plympton, petty sessional division of Ermington and Plympton, union of Plympton St. Mary, county court district of East Stonehouse, rural deanery of Plympton, arch-deaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary and All Saints, formerly appropriated to the Abbey of Tavistock, is a spacious edifice of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north and south porches, and an embattled tower containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast in 1739 except the second, which is dated 1735: the church retains a magnificent 13th century rood screen, restored in 1887, under the direction of Mr. B. Medley Fulford A.R.I.B.A. of Exeter, by Mr. Harry Hems, at a total cost of £350: there are monuments to the Harris family, who resided here for more than four centuries; and there is also an Early Norman font: the church was restored in 1866 at a cost of nearly £2,500, and has 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1591. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £250, including 47 acres of glebe, situated at Prawle Point, with residence in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Charles Bayly Collins B.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There is an almshouse, founded in 1617, for five poor people and endowed by Sir Christopher Harris kt. of Radford, with a rent-charge of £10 out of the manor of Goosewell: there are also various other sums left by charitable individuals to be distributed among the poor of this parish: Warren's charity is for clothing ten poor boys and as many poor girls. The neighbourhood is noted for its limestone and marble. Here are extensive fortifications, called Stamford and Fort Staddon, and others at Bovisand, Mount Batten and Turnchapel for the protection of Plymouth. The Duke of Bedford is lord of the manor, granted to the Russell family as portion of the lands belonging, at the Dissolution, to Tavistock Abbey. The principal land-owners are the Duke of Bedford, the Earl of Morley, B. J. Pollexfen Bastard esq. of Kitley, Yealmpton, Thos. Bulteel esq. of Radford, and Robert Bayly esq. J.P. of Torr Grove, Plymouth. The soil is loamy; subsoil, slate and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area of the civil parish is 3,548 acres of land, 11 of water, 92 of tidal water and 147 of foreshore; rateable value, £13,788; the population in 1891 was 3,158, including 250 officers and men in Staddon, Stamford and Bovisland Forts, less 1,364 in Hooe. ELBURTON, 1 mile east, is a hamlet, and has a Bible Christian chapel, and a station on the Great Western railway. At ORESTON, a populous hamlet, 1 mile north-west on the Cattewater, is the Mission chapel of the "Good Shepherd," which serves as a chapel of ease to the parish church; and there is also a church room and a Wesleyan chapel seating 240 persons. At Oreston is an Oddfellows' Hall, and a station on the South Western railway. The quarries here supplied the immense quantities of material required for the Plymouth breakwater. POMPHLETT, a hamlet 1 mile north-by-west, has a Free Methodist chapel and a Mission room: here is the junction station of the Great Western and South Western railways.

STADDISCOMBE, a hamlet, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south, was the birthplace, 3 February, 1717, of Nathaniel Forster D.D. prebendary of Bristol and preacher at the Rolls chapel, and distinguished as a translator of Plato; he died 20 Oct. 1757: Walter Britte, a disciple of Wyclif, is also said to have been born here: here is a Baptist Chapel.

Parish Clerk, Robert Hockaday.

PLYMTREE is a parish and small village, 4 miles south-east from Cullompton, on the Great Western railway main line, 5 north-west of Sidmouth Junction station on the London and South Western railway main line, 12 north-east from Exeter and 8 North-west from Honiton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Cullompton petty sessional division, Honiton union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The Clist has its source at Clist William in this parish, and the parish is watered by the Weaver and Tale streams. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style of the 15th century, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells: there is an ancient and handsome panelled screen, with fine paintings of saints and historical personages, the latter including Henry VII. his eldest son, Prince Arthur, and Cardinal Morton; on the screen the Bouchier and Stafford Knots also occur: the ancient carved oak benches are of the same date as the screen: on the west front of the tower is a group of the Virgin and Child within a canopied niche; and the piers of the arcades have similar niches: one of the bench ends in the aisle exhibits a shield, bearing a merchant's mark intertwined with the letter "G," probably referring to Thomas Goodwin, a former landowner here: there are 200 sittings. The ancient churchyard cross, the head of which was discovered in 1897, buried in the churchyard, was restored and replaced in position in 1898, as a memorial to the Rev. George Gilbert Gutters M.A. rector 1892-7. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £200, with 34 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Provost and scholars of Oriel College, Oxford, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Edgar Hay M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The rectory house of cob and thatch, dates from the 15th century. Here is a Congregational chapel, built in 1850. The charities amount to about £70 yearly and are distributed in clothes and tickets on tradesmen. In the ancient Great Church House there are five sets of rooms for the occupation (rent free) of poor persons, in addition to the Vestry Room, which is still reserved for the use of the Church. Hayne House is a large mansion, the property and residence of Thomas Henry Baxter esq. who is the chief landowner. Other principal owners are Col. J. Barry Slater, of Eastbourne, Richard Hall Clarke esq. of Bridwell House, Mrs. R. G. Collins, of Cullompton, and Rev. R. M. Davy, of Topham. The land is all freehold. The soil is loamy, chiefly in pasture, and there are large apple orchards, Plymtree being famous for its excellent cyder. The area is 2,185 acres; rateable value, £2,949; the population in 1901 was 359.

POLTIMORE is a parish and village, 1 mile from the Exeter road, 1½ miles east from Stoke Canon Junction station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the main line of the Great Western railway, about 2 north from Pinhoe station of the South Western railway and 4½ north-east from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Wonford hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The Clist stream flows to the east of the parish and forms part of the boundary on that side. The church of St. Mary is an ancient cruciform building of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, and consists of chancel, clerestoried nave, transepts, south aisle, separated from the nave by two pointed arches, north porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast in 1723 by Evan and William Evans, of Chepstow; the tenor bears the name of Sir Coplestone Warwick Bamfylde as a benefactor: the church retains a fine carved oak screen of the 15th century, restored under the direction of Mr. R. Medland Fulford, architect, and a curious Norman font, and contains some monuments to the Bamfylde family, including a flat stone in the chancel, inscribed in Old English characters to John Baunfield, the founder, and Agnes his wife, with the date 1390, and shields of arms of Bamfield and Pederton: at the end of the south transept is a large tomb with recumbent effigies of a knight in armour and a lady, and inscription in Latin to Richard Bamfield, ob. 29 May, 1594, and Elizabeth (Sydenham), his wife, ob. 4th March, 1599; the tomb erected by Amias, his son and heir, in 1604, also bears quartered shields of arms representing various alliances of the Bamfield family: in the aisle is a stone inscribed to Sir John Bamfield bart. so created 14 July, 1641: the chancel arch, on the east side of which are two bagioscopes, is believed to have formed part of a much older building than the present church: all the windows in the chancel are stained, and there are piscinæ in the chancel and transepts: the church was thoroughly restored in 1878-94 by Mr. R. M. Fulford F.R.I.B.A. when the west gallery was taken down, the tower arch opened, a south aisle added and the interior reseatd throughout with oak benches made on the Poltimore estate; the clerestory windows were at the same time filled with stained glass, the gift of various persons; and a reredos of marble and alabaster was erected in 1884 at a total cost of £1,122:

SOUTH POOL is a parish, the village of which stands in a deep vale, $\frac{5}{8}$ miles south-west from Kingsbridge station on a branch of the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, Coleridge hundred, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The parish, which includes North Pool, 1 mile north, and part of the hamlet of Frogmore, 2 miles north, is on the eastern side of the Kingsbridge estuary. The church of St. Nicholas and St. Cyriac is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, dating from 1318, and consists of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and a western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: there are remains of a fine 15th century screen, half of which has been carefully restored by Hems, of Exeter: in the chancel, within a canopied arched recess, is an altar-tomb, formerly serving as an Easter sepulchre, and still adorned with a carving of the "Resurrection": on the tomb is placed the recumbent effigy of a priest in a surplice, with large open sleeves, hanging in plaited folds, and over this a stole: in the spandrels of the canopy are the initials "T. B." and on the cornice is an inscription in Latin to Thomas Briant, rector of South Pool and Portlemouth: under a window in the south transept is the recumbent effigy of a lady in a long close-fitting dress and mantle, conjectured to represent Muriel (de Mules), wife of Sir Thomas de Courtenay, lord of South Pool, in 1340: there are monuments dating from 1588: the original stone steps leading to the rood loft remain, and the church retains piscinæ and stoups, and has a fine Norman font: the stained east window is a memorial to Thomas and Sally Cornish and their two children: the church was restored in 1877 at a cost of £697, under the direction of Mr. B. Medley Fulford, architect, and affords 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1664. The living is a rectory, POWDERHAM is a parish and village opposite Lymptone, on the river Exe, 2 miles north-west from Starcross station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway and 7 south from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wexford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Clement is an ancient edifice of red sandstone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, with aisles of equal length, nave, aisles, north vestry, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, dated respectively 1676, 1696 and 1764, the remaining three being added in 1888, at a cost of £111: the oak pulpit was presented as a thank-offering by Col. Francis Haygarth in 1881: an organ was erected in 1878: on the north wall is a modern brass to the Rev. Daniel Nantes, 52 years rector here, d. July 11, 1877: under a low arch at the end of the south aisle is a tomb with recumbent effigy of a lady in tight-fitting dress, covered by a mantle, and wearing a square plaited head-dress, traditionally said to represent Isabella de Fortibus, Countess of Devon, temp. Henry III. ob. 1292, but it appears probable that the figure was intended for the Princess Elizabeth, 5th daughter of Edward I. and wife of Humphrey de Bohun, earl of Hereford, ob. May 5, 1316: the nave of the church and one of the aisles were erected by Sir William Courtenay and Margaret (Bonville), his wife, and on the piers are the arms of Courtenay, impaling Bonville and Hungerford, with supporters: in the chancel are memorial windows to Lady Harriet (Leslie), daughter of Jane Elizabeth, suo jure countess of Rothes (by her 2nd husband, Sir Lucas Pepys bart.) and wife of William, 10th earl of Devon, d. 16 Dec. 1839, and a fine monument to Lady Elizabeth (Fortescue), wife of the 11th earl of Devon, d. 27 Jan. 1867: there is also a memorial window to Thomas Peregrine Courtenay esq. d. 7 June, 1861, besides other stained windows and some remains of a carved oak screen: the church was thoroughly restored in 1861, chiefly at the cost of the 11th earl of Devon, when the chancel was length-cued and the interior re-seated: there are now 160 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1575; marriages, 1559; burials, 1558. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £259, including 98 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1877 by the Rev. the Earl of Devon M.A. of Merton College, Oxford, and prebendary of Exeter. Powderham Castle, the family seat of the Courtenays, Earls of Devon, standing on the western bank of the estuary of the Exe, is a structure in various styles, erected in the 14th century by Sir Philip Courtenay, lieutenant of Ireland: until about the year 1700 it was very strongly fortified, and during the Civil War was garrisoned for the King: in Dec. 1645, it was unsuccessfully attacked by Fairfax, but was taken by Col. Hammond in the following year; the most ancient portion now extant is built of limestone, with a mixture of red conglomerate and of a white material locally called "Exmouth stone:" the castle appears to have originally consisted of a long parallelogram flanked at different parts of its length by six towers, four of which are still standing, and the other two have been rebuilt with brick on the same sites; the fabric has of late years been much modernised, but the ancient battlements and windows which have survived the alterations sufficiently indicate the original character of the whole; the interior has very spacious rooms, containing some good family portraits and a collection of paintings by the old masters: the adjoining park of upwards of 300 acres is well wooded and stocked with deer. The Courtenays, earls of Devon, have been seated in Devonshire nearly 700 years: one branch of the house of Courtenay were counts of Edessa; another A.D. 1150, became allied to the Royal Family of France, and through this alliance three members of the family occupied the imperial throne of Constantinople A.D.

1204: in England the Courtenays have been allied to the Bonvilles, Bohuns, Spencers, St. Johns, Talbots, Veres and the royal house of Plantagenet, and the name appears in the original list of the order of the Garter: in the Wars of the Roses they adhered to the Lancastrian party, and in the reign of Henry VIII. Henry Courtenay, earl of Devon, was created Marquess of Exeter, but this title became extinct in 1556, and that of Earl of Devon, assumed to have lapsed at the same time, remained dormant until 1831, when it was revived in favour of William, 3rd viscount Courtenay, who thereupon became 10th earl of Devon. On an eminence in the park is a building called The Belvedere, erected in 1777, and consisting of three hexagonal towers, 70 feet in height, commanding magnificent views of the surrounding country, the river Exe and the English Channel. The Earl of Devon is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is loamy, except in the higher part of the parish, where the red sand commences. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips, but a large proportion is permanent pasture. The area is 1,418 acres of land, 4 of water, 23 of tidal water and 170 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,702; the population in 1891 was 203, and in 1901 238.

EXWELL, half a mile north-west, MELLANDS, 1 north, and BLACK HEATH, half a mile north-west, are places here.

PRINCETOWN is a small town in the west quarter of Dartmoor, in the parish of Lydford, and 7 miles east from Tavistock, with a station, forming the terminus of a branch from Yelverton, on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway; it is in the Western division of the county, Roborough hundred, Tavistock petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. This town was formed about 1808, soon after Dartmoor Prison was built for prisoners of war, and was named after George IV. when Prince of Wales, Dartmoor being within the Duchy of Cornwall; several tradesmen and others then settled here: in 1811 there were as many as 9,000 prisoners of war, besides the guard of soldiery. After the peace Princetown much declined, until its revival between 1831. and 1841 from the working of the granite quarries in Dartmoor. The church of St. Michael and All Angels, a chapel of ease to St. Petrock's, Lydford, is a plain building of granite, consecrated in 1864, and consists of nave, north porch and a western tower containing one bell: the church was built and fitted, together with the parsonage house, by French prisoners, and is used by the officers of the neighbouring prison and surrounding inhabitants: the interior was restored by the Rev. Morris Joseph Fuller M.A. rector and chaplain 1867-79, and is at present (1901) undergoing further restoration, and affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1807. The living is a chapelry, attached with Dartmeet and Postbridge to the rectory of Lydford: £150 yearly is allowed by Government for the stipend of the curate, who is appointed by the rector of the parish. The Rev. Arthur Baring-Gould M.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford, has been curate in charge since 1897. The Wesleyan chapel is a stone building seating 230. The Society of Friends also have a meeting room here.

DARTMOOR, extending about 28 miles from north to south and 26 miles from east to west, is, on the average, 1,200 feet above the sea-level, and rises to 2,000 feet in several of its highest peaks, called "tors," being crags of grey granite, in fantastic shapes, on the crests of the brown moorland. The action of the disintegration of this granite is seen by heaps of loose stones, some of enormous size, lying scattered at the feet of the tors. On the moor are ranges of tors, while the aspect of the land about changes from peat bogs and patches of wild grass or fern, around the water springs, to slopes of gorse and heather where the rising ground is dry; in parts are large pieces of moist peat, not always safe to tread, with pools of water stained a deep brown, which are the sources of rivers and streams of North, South and West Devon: the Taw and the Ockment, a tributary of the Torridge, flow northward to the Bristol Channel; the Teign and the Dart flow to the south-east, reaching the sea above and below Torbay; the Plym flowing to the east of Plymouth, and the Tavy descends to join the Tamar, on the border of Cornwall, issuing in Plymouth Sound. In general, the upper moorland, except where broken by the tors, has a dreary and forlorn appearance: there are no trees growing in the open parts; but Wistman's Wood, a small portion of a once extensive forest, in the rocky ravine of the West Dart, is a natural curiosity, as the dwarf oaks, forcing themselves through boulders, have their twisted branches thickly clothed with moss and lichen: the North and South Teign, on the eastern border of Dartmoor, present more beauty of scenery. Dartmoor is covered with Druidical and prehistoric remains of much interest, and primitive bridges of stone cross the several streams. Dartmoor convict prison, built in 1806, at a cost of £127,000, consists of an extensive series of buildings constructed principally of granite from the neighbouring moor: the outer wall incloses an area of about 30 acres; the prison itself comprises five rectangular buildings, each 300 feet long by 50 broad, and residences for the governor, deputy-governor and officers: the principal gateway is formed of huge granite blocks, bearing the carved inscription "Parcere Subjectis." Considerable addition was made to the buildings by the convicts in 1874, and further extensions have since been made. Here is a first-class hotel, "The Duchy," standing at a height of about 1,400 feet above the sea-level, the various tors and other places of interest being within easy distance; excellent trout and salmon fishing. Connected with the hotel is the Duchy House, a private hotel and boarding establishment. H.R.H. the Duke of Cornwall and York K.G. is the principal landowner. The soil is a light peaty; subsoil, granite. The chief crops are oats and turnips. This quarter of the moor contains 49,509 acres; the population in 1891 was about 1,900, exclusive of convicts in the prison, who numbered about 900.

POST BRIDGE is a hamlet of Lydford, 6 miles north-east from Princetown, with a small mission chapel dedicated to St. Gabriel, and used during the week as a National day school. A parsonage house is now (1901) in course of erection. The East Dart river is crossed here by a very ancient bridge, of two arches; it is constructed in a primitive fashion of granite slabs and is still in use, and close by is an ancient clapper bridge.

National School (mixed), erected in 1869, for 100 children; average attendance, 25; Miss Gunner, mistress

DARTMEET is another hamlet, 6 miles east from Princetown, and has also a small mission chapel, used during the week as a National day school.

National School (mixed), erected in 1868; average attendance, 20; Miss Dawson, mistress

The church of St. Thomas à Becket, rebuilt in the years 1837-38, is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, of Norman date, containing 3 bells: the first and second are dated respectively 1742 and 1787; the third is an alphabet bell: there are several stained windows, some of which are memorials to the Rev. David Llewellyn, formerly rector, d. 1872; his son, Owen Jefferies Llewellyn, surgeon B.N. d. 1867, and Eliza Mortimer, his wife, d. 1864, and Amy Gertrude Whitchurch, d. 1877: there are 140 sittings. The register dates from the year 1684. The living is a rectory, average net yearly value £150, including 68 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of W. B. Gamlen esq. and held since 1802 by the Rev. Thomas George Menhinick M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. The Congregational chapel, erected in 1854, has an endowment of £336 6s. 8d. given by John Blagdon esq. and producing a yearly interest of £10. There is a charity of 17s. 6d. yearly for the education of one or more poor children, and another of £1 2s. 6d. for the poor. The principal landowners are William Blagdon Gamlen esq. M.A. of 82 Banbury road, Oxford, William Crook, John Wensley and Edwin Cole esqrs. and Mrs. Eastmond. The manor is divided amongst the landowners. The soil is loam, and the subsoil is clay. The chief crops are oats and wheat. The area is 1,385 acres; rateable value £950; the population in 1901 was 173.

WEST PUTFORD is a parish on the river Torridge, 11 miles south-west from Bideford station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway and 9 north-east from Holsworthy station, which is also on a branch of the same line; it is in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holsworthy petty sessional division and union, Bideford county court district, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. A new and enlarged bridge of two arches, crossing the river Torridge was built in 1900, at a cost of about £230; the land on the east and west sides respectively was given by the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle and E. Walter esq. The church (dedication unknown, but said to be to St. Stephen) is an ancient cruciform building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells; the second is dated 1729, and the others have inscriptions, but are undated: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1668. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of East Putford annexed, joint net yearly value £200, including 89 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1891 by the Rev. Jonathan James Gratrex M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. There are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. Churston Manor, the property and residence of Elijah Walter esq. is an interesting house of the Elizabethan period, and was during the 16th and 17th centuries the property and residence of the Prideaux family, whose arms are found in the hall. About 1660 it passed to Sir William Morice, Secretary of State to Charles II. on his marriage

RACKENFORD is a parish and village on the Little Dart river, 5½ miles south from East Anstey station on the Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway, 9 south-west from Bampton, 8 north-west from Tiverton and 10 south-east from South Molton, in the Northern division of the county, Witheridge hundred, South Molton petty sessional division and union, Tiverton county court district, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints is a small and ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: the font is of the reign of Henry VII.: there are 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1597, but is very defective and in parts almost illegible. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £263, including 54 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1890 by the Rev. Henry George Gifford B.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. Here is a Bible Christian chapel. There are charities to the amount of about £14. Miss Devon and Mrs. Dunford are ladies of the manor and chief landowners. Courts leet and baron are held occasionally. Higher Thorne belongs to Mr. George Dennis; Tidderson, for two centuries from 1572 the residence of the Kellands, a younger branch of that family at Lapford, now the property of Mr. Richard Gunn, Mr. John Nott and Mr. Robert Snow. Mr. G. Matthews, Mr. Robert Haywood, Mr. John Barnes and Mr. R. T. Veysey are also landowners here. The soil is clayey and very productive; the subsoil is gravel. The chief crops are oats and barley. The acreage is 3,938; rateable value, £2,363; the population in 1901 was 302.

BATTERY is a parish and small village, 3 miles west from South Brent station on the South Devon section of the main line of the Great Western railway, and 5 west-by-north from Totnes, in the Southern division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Stan-borough and Coleridge, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Two small tributaries of the river Dart intersect the parish, through which the Great Western railway also passes. The church (dedication unknown) is an ancient edifice of stone in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled western tower with spire containing 4 bells, of which 3 were cast in 1763, one bell having been recast and the peal re-hung in 1901: the church retains a good carved oak screen and two parclooses, and there is a Norman font and some stained windows: the church was repaired in 1865, at the cost of Sir Walter Carew Bart. and restored in 1875, and has 170 sittings. The register dates from the year 1054. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £207, including 60 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Misses Carew and held since 1875 by the Rev. William Henry Carew B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The rectorial tithes, which have been commuted at £216 16s. 3d. belong to the Misses Carew. Here are two houses and one acre of land, vested in trustees for the repairs of the church. The poor have £2 yearly left by Dorothy Savery: and also £10 yearly left

REVELSTOKE is a parish, on the south coast in Bigbury bay, 4 miles south from Yealmpton station on a branch and 10 south-west from Ivybridge station on the South Devon section of the main line of the Great Western railway, 10 south-east from Plymouth and 10 south from Plympton, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Plympton, petty sessional division of Ermington and Plympton, union of Plympton St. Mary, county court district of East Stonehouse, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. This place, since 1885, has afforded the title of baron to a branch of the Baring family. The church of St. Peter, built in 1882, by Lord Revelstoke, at a cost of £29,000, from designs from Mr. J. P. St. Aubyn, architect, is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock with chimers and 8 bells: the seats, executed by Hems, of Exeter, are of solid oak handsomely carved, each bearing a different device: the font and the piers of the arcades are of granite: the stained west window was presented by the parishioners and the side windows of the chancel by the Rev. H. F. Roe M.A. rector 1871-90, and there are several in the south aisle to the Baring family, including one added in 1893, in memory of the late Louisa Emily Charlotte (Bulteel), wife of Edward, 1st Baron Revelstoke, who died 16 Oct. 1892: the retables, of Devonshire marble, is surmounted by a triptych representing "The Nativity" and "The Annunciation": the vestry is under the north transept: there are 250 sittings. The ancient and ivy-clad church of St. Peter, situated near Stoke Point close to the sea, is now in ruins, but since 1873 a portion has been repaired and fitted up, at a cost of £800, and is now used for burial services. The register dates from the year 1054. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £160, with 4 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1890 by the Rev. William Eardley Boome M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, and there is a reading room and library containing about 600 volumes, mostly presented by Lord Revelstoke. The population is chiefly at Noss Mayo, on the side of a creek adjacent to the mouth of the river Yealm and opposite to Newton Ferrers. Crabs, lobsters, pilchards and herrings are caught here in great abundance. William Cresswell Gray esq. of Membland Hall, Holbeton, is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is very light; subsoil, mixed. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 1,541 acres of land, 40 of tidal water and 127 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,538; the population in 1891 was 470.

REWE is a parish and village on the river Culm, 1 mile north-east from Stoke Canon station on the main line of the Great Western railway, 5 north from Exeter and 9 south from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Womford hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The Upex and Silvertown station of the Exe Valley (Great Western) railway is in this parish. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is an ancient edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, built about the year 1450 and completely restored in 1867, at a cost of nearly £1,000; it consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing 5 bells, all recast from a previous peal of 5, with augmented metal, in 1773, by T. Bilbie: the chancel retains a piscina and is divided from the nave by a carved and highly decorated wood screen: there is a good deal of beautiful antique woodwork, and the bench ends bear the carved shields of Wadham impaling Chiselden and Seymour: the east window is a memorial to Lieut. C. H. Williams, of H.M. 30th Regt. who died at Jubbulpore, June 8th, 1881, and there are others to the Rev. Henry Fox Strange-ways, late rector, d. Feb. 25th, 1860; the Cuthbertson family (1868), Mrs. Haviland (1876) and to the late Rev. Philip Williams M.A. rector of this parish 1860-92, besides several tablets to the Tripp family 1795-1825 and a monument to Paul Draper, ob. Sept. 20th, 1689: the church was further restored in 1886, and affords 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1680. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £236, with residence and 49 acres of glebe, in the gift of William Wyndham esq. of Dinton Park, Salisbury, and the Hon. W. F. D. Smith M.P. alternately, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Ernest Edward Egremont Heathcote B.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. The Parish Room, a neat red brick building, erected by the late Right Hon. W. H. Smith P.C., M.P. comprises on the first floor a large room used for parish meetings, concerts &c. and underneath are stables for the convenience of farmers attending church. There are charities of £2 15s. yearly value. The Hon. W. F. D. Smith M.P. of Greenlands, Hambleden, Bucks, who is lord of the manor, Sir Charles Thomas Dyke Acland bart. D.L., J.P. of Killerton, Hugh Leonard Acland-Troyte esq. of Huntsham Court, and E. Martin esq. are chief landowners. The soil is gravel and red sandstone; subsoil, gravel and red sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and turnips. The area is 1,310 acres of land and 25 of water; rateable value, £3,266; the population in 1901 was 237.

Parish Clerk, Thomas Tucker.

Post Office.—Harry Baker, sub-postmaster. Letters arrive from Exeter at 7 a.m. & 5 p.m.; dispatched at 8.5 a.m. & 5 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Stoke Canon, 1 mile distant.

School (mixed), for the united district of Rewe & Nether Exe, erected by the voluntary contributions of the landowners in 1874, for 60 children; average attendance, 35; Mrs. Nicholls, mistress.

UPEXE is a tithing and hamlet, in Hayridge hundred, 2½ miles north-west, with a station on the Exe Valley branch of the Great Western railway. The ancient chapel, which had for several generations been desecrated and converted into dwellings, was acquired from the owner, the late C. A. W. Troyte esq. and in 1888 was restored from designs by Mr. R. Medley Fulford, architect: the building is of the Early English period, c. 1280-1300, and has lancet windows on both sides and a good south doorway, and the east end retains a small piscina; the original east window, which fell to pieces on the removal of the roof, has been replaced by a new one in the Decorated style; and a bell gable has been erected at the west end. There is also at Upexe another ancient chapel, which was restored about 1901, and is served by the rector of Rewe.

Wall Letter Box, at Pale farm, cleared at 8.30 a.m. & 6.15 p.m. week days only. Thorverton, 1½ miles distant, is the nearest money order & telegraph office. Infants' School, Upexe, held in a cottage; Miss Annie Arthurs, mistress.

RINGMORE is a parish on the sea coast, 10 miles south from Ivybridge station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 6 west from Kingsbridge station on a branch of the Great Western railway and 16 south-east from Plymouth, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Ermington, petty sessional division of Ermington and Plympton, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints is an ancient building, chiefly of the latter part of the 13th century, but the north transept is of Early Norman, or possibly Saxon date: the building consists of chancel, nave, north transept and a tower on the south side, with small spire, the lower stage of the tower serving as a porch: the bells were rehung, and one of them recast, in 1870: the church was restored in the years 1861-64, when several stained windows were erected, three being memorials to members of the Hingeston family and to the parents of Mr. White, of Okenbury, and in 1901 another window was erected to Mrs. Lecker, of Ringmore Vean: there are 130 sittings. The registers date from the year 1719. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Okenbury, joint net yearly value £280, including 101 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1860 by the Rev. Francis Charles Hingeston-Randolph M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, and prebendary of Exeter. Mr. Lane, a former rector of this parish, was a distinguished royalist during the Civil Wars; he was also rector of the neighbouring parish of Aveton-Gifford, where he planted some cannon on a field of his glebe, and kept the bridge over the Avon: during the occupation of Plymouth by the Parliamentary forces, several boats full of armed men were dispatched from Plymouth to take vengeance on the rector, who, on hearing of their approach, took refuge in a curious room (provided with a fire-place) in the church tower, where he remained in safety for three months, secretly nourished by his parishioners; the soldiers landed at Ayrmer Cove and proceeded to the rectory, which they sacked, but were obliged to return without their intended prisoner. The rectory house, a fine modern building surrounded by beautiful grounds, is near the site of this historic parsonage, which is now occupied by a walled garden. There is a coastguard station at Challaborough, and formerly there was a seine fishery for pilchards there, now abandoned. The scenery along the coast is remarkably bold and varied, some of the cliffs being of great height. The manor, which in Domesday Book is recorded to have been held by Hecus (or Heche), passed from the families of Fitz-Stephen, Fissacre, Roe, and Kirkham (which last held it for many centuries until 1745): it is now held by the trustees of the late James Fellows esq. of Kingston House, Dorset. The soil varies, and near the coast is sandy, with clay in parts; subsoil, principally shale. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 1,295 acres of land and 55 of water; rateable value, £1,478; the population in 1901 was 204.

ROBOROUGH is a parish and village, 4½ miles south-west from Portsmouth Arms station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 6 east from Torrington and 10 south-east from Bideford, in the Northern division of the county, Fremington hundred, Torrington petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells; the old tenor bell, weighing 14 cwt. 2 qrs. was given by Roger Wollacombe esq. in 1706, but the whole peal was re-cast by W. and J. Taylor, of Oxford, in 1823, from the previous peal of 5 bells: in the chancel is a stained window, inserted by the late rector in 1868 to the memory of his parents: the church was restored in 1868 and has 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1619. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £220, including 56 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. E. W. May, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Edward Henry Fox May B.A. of Turrell's Hall, Oxford. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Eberly House, the residence of Thomas Batson esq. J.P. is a handsome modern building, pleasantly situated. The lord of the manor and the Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, stone. The chief crops are cereal. The area is 3,212 acres; rateable value, £2,170; the population in 1901 was 312.

ROSEASH is a parish and village, 4 miles south from Bishopsnympton and Molland station on the Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway, about 13 north-west from Tiverton and 6 south-east from South Molton, in the Northern division of the county. Withridge hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a low embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the stained east window is a memorial to Mr. William Southcomb: on the north side of the chancel is an interesting Jacobean screen, dated 1618, and surmounted by the arms of James I. Anne of Denmark, his Queen, and Charles, Prince of Wales: the church, with the exception of the tower, has been completely restored during and since 1888 at a cost of £2,000: the benches are of carved oak, and will seat 220 persons. The register dates from the year 1590. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £350, with 105 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1882 by the Rev. Henry Granger Southcomb M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. There is a Wesleyan chapel at Ash Mill, and a Bible Christian chapel at Ash Moor. There are charities of the yearly value of £5 15s. 8d. £2 and £14. A yearly revel is held on the Sunday after St. James's Day. Ash Moors, containing 451 acres, were inclosed under the Inclosure Act in 1867 and allotted to the owners of 18 farms, who proved their previous rights of pasturage on these moors; this land is now being cultivated for cereal and other crops; three acres were set apart and inclosed at the expense of the owners for the recreation of the parishioners. John Frederick Wilkin esq. J.P. is lord of Snyth's manor in this parish, and the rector is lord of the manor of Yarde. The Southcomb, Wilkin and Tanner families are the chief landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, stony clay. The chief crops are wheat and oats. The area is 5,058 acres; rateable value, £3,119; the population in 1901 was 430.

The hamlet of ASH MILL is 1 mile north of the village, and YARDE 1 mile west.

By a Local Government Board Order 16,344, which came into operation March 25, 1884, a detached part of the parish known as Frankhill was amalgamated with Creacombe, March 25, 1885.

western tower with octagonal bell turret: the nave occupies the site of the original church, the chancel being an extension to the east, and the tower, open to the church, an addition westward: an ample vestry occupies the upper portion of the tower: all the woodwork, including the roofs and floors, is of oak, and all the windows are stained: in 1893 an octagonal lantern was erected above the chancel arch: in the church is a fine monument erected by the late Sir H. W. Peek bart. to his father James Peek esq. late of Watcombe, Torquay, and his father-in-law, Wm. Edgar esq. of Clapham Common, Surrey: the church will seat 105 persons. The register, dating from the year 1603, was included in that of Axmouth, but is now kept separate. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £293, with residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Sir Cuthbert Edgar Peek bart. and held since 1881 by the Rev. John Curgenven M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge.

The Rousdon observatory, erected in 1884, is a substantial building of stone, and comprises on the ground floor a computing room, dark room for photographic and spectroscopic work, and a room containing a transit instrument, sidereal clock, chronometers and other appliances; the equatorial room, surmounted by a revolving dome 16 feet in diameter, contains a telescope with an object glass 6.4 inches aperture, standing on a massive iron pillar, and is furnished with clock motion, micrometer &c. The principal work engaged in at the observatory is the observation of variable stars, which has been carried on continuously for more than 16 years, and the results obtained are communicated to the Royal Astronomical and other learned societies. The meteorological department, organized in 1883, is furnished with a good collection of modern instruments, and the amount of wind, rain and sunshine is recorded on instruments exactly similar to those in use at Greenwich and Kew; a "Richard" balance registering pluviometer, automatically recording the time and quantity of rainfall, has been in action for 7 years past. The observatory is a second order station of the Royal Meteorological Society, and the instruments are read at 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. daily; the collection is the best and most complete in the South of England, and sixteen annual volumes of results have now (1902) been published. Astronomical and meteorological observations are regularly carried on, and the results of the investigation prove that the climatic conditions of this district are among the most favourable to be found on the south coast. Mr. C. Grover is the assistant observer. In the parish is a reading room and library for the inhabitants of the district.

ST. BUDEAUX is a parish and village, bounded on the west by the navigable river Tamar, with a station on the South Western railway, half a mile west of the village, and is 3½ miles north-by-west from Plymouth, in the Western division of the county, Roborough hundred, Midland Roborough petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union, county court district of East Stonehouse, rural deanery of Three Towns, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Part of this parish was taken into the borough of Devonport in Nov. 1898. The church of St. Budeaux is an edifice of local stone in the Perpendicular style, erected in 1563-4, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, three cast in 1780 and the tenor in 1749, the other two added in 1887: there are monuments to the families of Gorges and Treville, and one to Sir Thomas Byard of Mount Tamar: the church was thoroughly restored in 1876, at a cost of £1,297, and has 450 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1538; marriages, 1539; the latter records the marriage, in 1569, of Francis Drake and Mary Newman; and in 1583, the burial of Mary Drake, wife of Sir Francis Drake knt. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £105, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the vicar of St. Andrew's, Plymouth, and held since 1886 by the Rev. William Lionel Green. At Crown Hill is a chapel-of-ease, erected in 1843, at a cost of £538, and thoroughly repaired in 1880, at a cost of £128: it has 100 sittings. At Riverside is St. Peter's mission chapel, erected in 1885. Here also is a Wesleyan chapel, and at Honicknowle a Free Methodist chapel, seating 300 persons. The charities, including almshouses, amount to £15. At Bull Point, Kinterbury, is a Government powder magazine. A range of forts has also been completed. The Marquess of Northampton, John Croad Henn-Gennys esq. of Whiteleigh Hall, Miss Trelawny Collins, the Rev. J. Trelawny Ross D.D. vicar of Paignton and Richard Hall Clarke esq. of Bride-well House are the principal landowners. The soil is strong and loamy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, turnips and green crops. The area is 1,687 acres of land; rateable value, £8,579; the population in 1891 was 2,470, including 277 officers and men in Bull Point barracks, Crown hill (Militia) Fort, and Agaton, Ernsettle and Woodland Forts.

The hamlet of KING'S TAMERTON is about half-a-mile south-west, and in the borough of Devonport; RIVERSIDE, late SALTASH PASSAGE, 1 mile west-

J.P. is a noble mansion of grey flints with Purbeck stone dressings, in the Queen Anne style, from designs by Messrs. George and Vaughan, architects, of London; the south front is about 200 feet in length, and has a tower, about 90 feet in height, at the north-east angle, and on the north side is a porte-cochère, supported on columns of Purbeck marble and Beer stone: the east front is about 100 feet in length: a noble apartment in the mansion is fitted up as a museum, and contains a collection of curiosities from almost all parts of the world: the stables and offices form an extensive range, in the same style, with a lofty tower at the entrance containing a clock: the views from the south front of the mansion, which is situated near the coast, are magnificent, and extend from the Start point on the west to the Isle of Portland on the east. There are gas works and water works, supplied by a pumping engine at the bottom of the hill. The trustees of the late Sir C. E. Peek bart. are sole landowners. The soil is flint with marl; subsoil, chalk. The land is chiefly pasture, with a small cultivation of roots and oats for home consumption. The area is 255 acres; rateable value, £600; the population in 1891 was 58.

ST. GILES-IN-THE-HEATH is a village and parish near the river Tamar, and the road from Holsworthy to Launceston, 1½ miles north-west from Tower Hill station on the Launceston branch of the London and South Western railway, 5 north-east from Launceston and 9 south from Holsworthy, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Lifton petty sessional division, Launceston union and county court district, rural deanery of Trigg Major, archdeaconry of Bodmin and diocese of Truro. The river Tamar flows through the parish. The church of St. Giles is a small but ancient edifice, principally in the Perpendicular style, with Early English remains, and consists of chancel, nave of five bays, south aisle, south porch and a low western tower with pyramidal roof, containing 5 bells, all cast in 1740, except the tenor, which dates from 1793: the chancel retains a piscina and the east windows have Decorated tracery: at the east end of the aisle is a mural monument to the Cary family, dated 1565, and above this a memorial window to the Johns family, erected in 1877, when the church was entirely rebuilt (with the exception of a part of the north wall, which is Early English), at a cost of £1,050: there are 140 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £122, with 7 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Duke of Bedford, and held since 1888 by the Rev. David Edser of St. Aidan's. Here is a Bible Christian chapel. A charity, of the annual value of about 11s. is given to the poor. The Duke of Bedford, who is lord of the manor, Mrs. Ford and H. Fairfax Harvey esq. of Highercoft, Heavitree, Exeter, are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat and oats. The area is 3,130 acres of land and 17 of water; rateable value, £1,713; the population in 1901 was 258.

ST. GILES-IN-THE-WOOD is a parish and village, 3 miles east from Torrington station on the London and South Western railway, in the Northern division of the county, Fremington hundred, Torrington petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Giles is an edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, transepts and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells; the former tenor bell was given in 1697 by Sir John Rolle K.B. of Stevenstone, and was re-cast at the expense of John, 2nd and last Baron Rolle, in 1823, when the peal of 5 was re-cast into 6, by Messrs. W. and J. Taylor, of Oxford; weight of tenor is 10 cwt.; at the west end is a recumbent effigy and brass, dated 1548, to Thomas Chafe esq. of Doddiscott, brother-in-law of Tristram Risdon, the historian; in the church is also a brass effigy with inscription to Alyanora (Copleston), wife of John Pollard, ob. 1430; another brass, with effigies of a lady and 10 children, and an inscription to Margaret (Forde) wife of John Rolle, of Stevenstone, ob. 1592; at the foot of the brass are the arms of Forde; a third, with effigy of a lady and inscription to Joan (Pollard), wife of William Risdon, of Winscott, gent. ob. 1610; and one other to John Rolle above-named, ob. 1570: the reredos and pulpit are of alabaster, with carved marble columns; and there are several stained windows: the church was restored in 1863 at a cost of £2,000, by the Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle, who also in part defrayed the expense of further alterations made in 1879, when an organ chamber and vestry were built, a new clock placed in the tower and the bells restored: the church affords about 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1556. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £41, with residence and 2½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Harry John Wilmot-Buxton M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford. The great tithes are appropriated to Christ Church, Oxford. There is a Wesleyan chapel, and a service room for Baptists. A reading room and library, containing 300 volumes, was opened in 1867, and is supported by subscriptions. There are four almshouses for aged women, with an endowment of £5 yearly, and charities of £8 yearly value, besides several other charities. Way was formerly the residence of the Way family: it is now the property of the trustees of the late Ven. Charles Wellington Furse M.A., J.P. archdeacon and canon residentiary of Westminster (d. 1900). Stevenstone, the family mansion of the Rolle family, standing in a deer park of 300 acres, was rebuilt of stone in 1872, and is the seat of the Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, and with H. F. Furse esq. is chief landowner. The soil is sandy; subsoil, stone. The chief crops are cereal. The area is 4,990 acres of land and 24 of water; rateable value, £3,349; the population in 1901 was 623.

DODSCOTT is a hamlet 1 mile north-east. The family of Clarke resided here for many generations; but the place is now owned by the Hon. Mark Rolle. WINSKOTT, 1 south-east formerly belonged to the Riscons, and was subsequently sold by the Northcotes to the Hon. Mark Rolle; KINGSCOTT, three-quarters of a mile south; HIGH BULLEN, 1 north; HEALAND, 1½ south-west are also hamlets.

ST. THOMAS, a parish within the municipal borough of Exeter, which see.

SALCOMBE is a small seaport town and civil parish, formed in 1894 under section 1, sub-section 3, of the "Local Government Act, 1894," from the parish of Malborough; it is about 5 miles south from Kingsbridge; it is in the Southern division of the county, Coleridge hundred, Starborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town is built on the margin of and facing the harbour, the entrance to which lies between Prawle Point and Bolt Head. Salcombe is a sub-port of Dartmouth and the chief port of the Kingsbridge district, and has its own registration of shipping, a custom house and a coastguard station. The harbour is capable of receiving vessels of 400 tons, and it being free, affords a convenient and safe retreat in any weather, and vessels may ride in perfect security under the windows of the house. The sea fishing is excellent, and produces scallop, as well as crabs and lobsters in large quantities, and bass, mullet, pollock and mackerel. The climate of this district is very mild; the American alone blooms in the open air and oranges, lemons and citrons reach a state of ripe perfection, and this circumstance, combined with the beauty of the surrounding scenery, has of late brought it into favour as a watering place. The sands afford safe and pleasant sea-bathing: rabbit and wild fowl shooting can be enjoyed in the immediate neighbourhood. Gas works were erected in 1866 at Shadycombe. A steam launch plies from Kingsbridge to Salcombe daily, and steamers to Plymouth leave twice a week from Kingsbridge, calling at Salcombe.

The town is governed by an Urban District Council of 9 members, formed under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 & 57 Vict. c. 73), which takes the place of a Local Board established in 1880. The ecclesiastical parish was formed Nov. 12, 1844. The church of the Holy Trinity, erected in 1843, at a cost of over £2,600, is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and a western tower containing a clock and one bell: the stained east window is a memorial to the late Earl of Devon P.C., D.C.L. d. 18 Nov. 1888; two others are memorials to the sons of Major-Gen. Birdwood, and there is one in memory of Elia, widow of John Fitzroy (de Courcy), 31st baron Kingsale, d. 5 May, 1893: the pulpit is carved: a new chancel, with side chapel, vestries and organ loft, designed by the late Mr. John D. Sedding, architect, were added in 1889, at a cost of £1,900: there are 470 sittings: the churchyard is tastefully laid out and planted. The register of baptisms dates from the beginning of the 19th century. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £270, with residence, in the gift of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1897 by the Rev. William Llewellyn Herford M.A. of Keble College, Oxford. The Catholic Apostolic Church, in Fore street, consists of a large room over a store, arranged as a nave and chancel; it has been re-decorated and handsomely refitted, and has 120 sittings.

The Wesleyan chapel, in Island street, was erected in 1849; side galleries and a music gallery have been added, and the interior has been re-decorated and reseated throughout, and will seat 500 persons. The Baptist chapel, in Courtenay park, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, erected in 1867, at a cost of £1,100, and affords 300 sittings. The Brethren's chapel, in Fore street, erected in 1862, will seat 200 persons. The Cemetery of about 2 acres, with a lodge containing a waiting room and mortuary, was formed in 1879 at a cost of £800; it is under the control of the Urban District Council. The Marine hotel consists of the house and grounds formerly the property and residence of the late Lord Kingsale, and is charmingly situated on the banks of the estuary, commanding a full view of the Bolt Head and the English Channel. The early closing day is on Thursday. In 1869, R. Durant esq. of Sharpham, Totnes, presented Salcombe with a life-boat, called "The Rescue," and gear, at a cost of £700, and a boat-house was built by public subscription on the south sands: this boat was replaced in 1888 by the "Lesty," provided from a bequest by the late Mrs. Lesty: another life-boat is stationed at Hope Cove on this coast, in Malborough parish. At North Sands, about a mile from Salcombe, is the Anglo-American telegraph house; the former house was at Starehole Bottom, about a mile and a quarter to the westward. Central Hall, in Market street, erected in 1893 at a cost of £800, contains a large assembly room, seating 250 persons, and reading and recreation rooms. The 2nd Devonshire Artillery Volunteers, Western Division, Royal Artillery, No. 2 Company, have their head quarters in Fore street, and number about 60 rank and file. At Hope Cove, about 4 miles west, the "St. Peter the Great," one of the ships of the Spanish Armada, was wrecked. Salcombe Castle, erected by Henry VIII. as a defence to the ports on this part of the coast, occupies a strong position on a peninsular rock at the entrance of the harbour; in 1643 it was strengthened and garrisoned for the king by Sir Edmund Fortescue of Fallapit, who named it "Fort Charles"; in 1646 it was besieged by the Parliamentary forces, under Col. Weldon, for four months, and surrendered on honourable terms on 7th May. Woodville, formerly the residence of Mr. J. A. Froude, the historian, is now the property and residence of Major John Bennett. The Moults, formerly the property of the Earl of Devon, is now the seat of Miss Foster. The Grange is the residence of Commander Chas. W. Herbert R.N., J.P. and Cliff House of Robert Heriot esq. The South Devon Land Company Limited has been formed to develop a large building estate adjoining the town. W. B. Ilbert esq. of Bowringsleigh, the trustees of the late Mr. James Ford, C. Newton-Robinson esq. who is lord of the manor of Salcombe, George Adams esq. of Paignton and the South Devon Land Co. Limited are chief landowners. The area is 814 acres; rateable value, £6,429; the population in 1901 was 1,700.

SHADYCOMBE and BATSON are hamlets.

SALCOMBE REGIS is a village and parish extending to the sea coast, bounded on the west by the river Sid and sheltered by boldly swelling hills, which terminate in lofty green sandstone cliffs, 2 miles east from Sidmouth terminal station of a branch of the London and South Western railway, 16 south-east from Exeter and 8½ south from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, East Budleigh hundred, Ottery petty sessional division, Honiton union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter and St. Mary is a building of stone in the Late Norman and Early English styles, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled western tower, of Perpendicular date, containing a clock and 3 bells: there are four stained windows and several monumental tablets and in the north aisle is a flat stone inscribed to George Drake, ob. 21 Aug. 1645; Katherine Drake, his sister, ob. 31 Aug. 1651, and Philip Drake, their father, ob. 17 Sept. 1668: the church will seat 221 persons. The register dates regularly from the year 1702, but the earlier registers are lost. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £236, with residence and 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, who are impropiators of the great tithes, and held since 1881 by the Rev. William Joseph Baugh M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. There are some small charities, left by the late C. W. Smith, which are recorded on a tablet in the church. Salcombe Hill, which divides the parish, rises 497 feet above the level of the sea. The Sid side of the parish is dotted with handsome villas, overlooking the bay and town of Sidmouth. The Right Rev. Robert Kestell Kestell-Cornish D.D. late bishop of Madagascar, and now rector of Down St. Mary, who is lord of the manor, Sir Charles Daniel Cave bart. of Sidbury Manor, the Rev. O. J. Cornish, rector of Childrey, Wantage, Berks, Capt. J. E. H. Balfour, of the Manor House, Sidmouth and Capt. K. R. Balfour M.P. of Branksea Island, Dorset, are the chief landowners. The soil is silicious; the subsoil is limestone. The land is mainly in pasture, but some wheat, barley and roots are grown. The area is 2,568 acres of land, 8 of water and 22 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,607; the population in 1901 was 467.

Parish Clerk, John William Payne.

SAMPFORD COURTENAY is a parish and village, near the road from Crediton to Okehampton, with a station 2 miles south-east of the village, on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and is 5 miles north-north-east from Okehampton and 104 from London, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The village is supplied with water for drinking purposes from Ladywell spring, the water being conveyed through pipes laid down in 1887 at a cost of £50. Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," the adjoining parish of Honeychurch was added to this parish for all purposes except ecclesiastical. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles with arcades of five arches, south porch and a lofty embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast in 1770: the fine carved oak roof, at present almost entirely hidden by plastering, displays two carved bosses, with busts representing an earl and countess of the Courtenay family of the 14th century: two others bear the figure of a boar and the arms of Courtenay: the rood screen was taken down in 1831, and no remains now exist: the church was restored in 1899 at a cost of £2,500, and affords 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Sticklepath annexed, net yearly value £389, with residence and about 85 acres of glebe, in the gift of King's College, Cambridge, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Thomas Wright Little M.A. of King's College, Cambridge. There is a chapel for Bible Christians. The charities amount to £2 8s. yearly. Near the Board School is an ancient cross in a good state of preservation; and there are others in different parts of the parish. The Provost Fellows of King's College, Cambridge, who are lords of the manor, William Lethbridge esq. of Wood, South Tawton, Messrs. John Jackman, William Knapman, William Lang and William Reddaway, William Westaway esq. G. T. Mooney, of Down St. Mary, and J. Pedlar esq. of Pinhoe, are the chief landowners. The soil is red loam and clay; the subsoil is skillett. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area, including Honeychurch, is 8,177 acres; rateable value, £6,307, including Honeychurch; the population in 1901 was 802.

STICKLEPATH, 5 miles south, on the road from Okehampton to Exeter and near the river Taw, is a village and parochial chapelry belonging to the parish of Sampford Courtenay; the chapel of ease, rebuilt in 1875 at a cost of £700, is a small building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave, north porch and a turret containing one bell. Divine service is conducted here by the rector of Sampford Courtenay. The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1816, is a building of stone, with an ancient stone cross surmounting the gable, and an eastern turret containing one bell. The Village Hall, with reading room attached, was erected in 1884, at a cost of £250, and is a plain building of stone, holding 200 persons: it is vested in 5 trustees for the use of the villagers.

WILLEY, 4 miles south, and Corscombe, 3½ miles south, are hamlets of this parish.

Parish Clerk, Samuel Knight.

SAMPFORD PEVERELL is a village and parish, on the high road from Taunton to Tiverton, 3 miles north from the Tiverton Junction station on the Great Western main line, 5 east from Tiverton, 9 south-west from Wellington and 18 north-east from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred of Halberton, petty sessional division of Culmpton, union and county court district of Tiverton, rural deanery of East Tiverton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is an interesting edifice of stone in the Early English and Late Decorated styles, consecrated 12th April, 1318, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 6 bells, the first four cast in 1761 and the 5th in 1863: the south aisle and porch were added in 1498, by Margaret Beaufort, Countess of Richmond and Derby and mother of King Henry VII.;

the nave and chancel are very fine specimens of the Early English style: the font is an excellent example of Norman work: on the north side of the chancel is a mutilated recumbent effigy of a knight in plate armour, wearing a helmet with camail and a cyclas, or long-skirted tunic; on the left arm is a shield, and the right is in the act of drawing his sword; part only of the crossed legs remain; this figure, found below the north aisle, is supposed to represent Sir Hugh Peverell, circa 1259; against the east wall is a mural monument inclosing a brass to Margaret (Harvey), wife of the celebrated Sir Amias Powlett kt. ambassador to France in 1576, and principal keeper of Mary, Queen of Scots; she died 28th May, 1602; the brass includes four male and four female effigies, and has an inscription in Latin, which records its erection by Sir Francis Vincent kt. and George Powlett esq.: there is also an elegant monument in the chancel to Mrs.

Rendall, sister of the present rector, who is interred here: eleven of the windows are stained and there is some good screen work: but the rood screen, a rich and curious work, was removed about 1826: the church was beautifully restored in 1863-64, and has 300 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1672; marriages and burials, 1674. The living is a rectory, average tithe net yearly value £280, including a payment of £6 yearly by the Grand Western canal, which runs through this parish, and is now the property of the Great Western Railway Company, and about 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of, and held since 1857, by the Rev. George William Rossiter Ireland. The rectory house was erected in 1841, and has fine gardens. The greater part of the old rectory house, built by Margaret, Countess of Richmond and Derby, mother of King Henry VII. still remains. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1827. The extensive pebble limekilns of Messrs Robert and Thomas Pearce are in this parish. A large fair for cattle is held on the Monday before the last Wednesday in April. The charities, amounting to over £58 yearly, are in the hands of trustees appointed by the Charity Commissioners. This place was anciently the seat of the Peverells, who had a castle here, now demolished; it was thereafter in the possession of Dinham and the Crown, and was sold by King Henry VIII. to Sir John Poulett, in whose family it remained until sold by Earl Poulett, ob. 1819. The chief landowners now are Mrs. Pedler, Matthew L. Crosby, John Bowden, Peter Were, Thomas Pearce and John Studley, of Broadwindsor, Dorset. The soil is sandy and very fertile; the subsoil is rock and gravel; the higher or upper portion of the parish is clay; and the climate exceedingly healthful. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and grass. The area is 2,210 acres of land and 11 of water; rateable value, £4,372; the population in 1901 was 619 in the civil and 619 in the ecclesiastical parish in 1891.

Sexton, Philip Dunn.

By Local Government Board Order 16,383, a detached part of Burlescombe, including Boehill Farm House, was added to this parish March 24, 1884, for civil purposes.

SANDFORD is a parish and village, delightfully seated in the vale of the little river Creedy, on the road from Crediton to South Molton, $\frac{2}{3}$ miles north-west from Crediton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and $\frac{9}{10}$ north-west from Exeter, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Crediton, rural deanery of Cadbury and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Swithin is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells, all cast by William Evans, in 1743: the bells were refitted and rehung in a solid oak frame, and the tower strengthened with beams of oak in 1900, at a cost of £130: there is a monument of the 17th century to a member of the Davie family, and a very curious brass to Mary Carew, only sister of George, first and only Earl of Totnes, and widow of Walter Dowrich; she died September 10, 1604: the upper portion of this brass is in three divisions, representing an arcade; in the centre on an altar-tomb is a recumbent effigy of the deceased, and on the other divisions are kneeling effigies of four daughters, and there are five impaled shields and an inscription: the east window is a memorial to Sir Humphrey Phineas Davie bart. d. January 12th, 1846, when the title became extinct in this line: the carved oak pulpit, erected in 1878 as a memorial, is by Hems, of Exeter: in 1886 and 1890 memorial windows to Gen. Sir Henry Robert Ferguson-Davie bart. M.P. d. 30 Nov. 1885; Frances Juliana, his wife, d. April, 1882, and to Lady Edwina Augusta (Williams), wife of the present Sir John Ferguson-Davie bart. of Creedy Park; she died 15 Aug. 1889: the church was restored and enlarged in 1847-8, and affords sittings for 603 persons. The register dates from the year 1603. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £197, with residence, in the gift of three governors of Crediton church corporation, with the approval of a majority of the parishioners, and has been held since 1883 by the Rev. George Taylor Llewellyn M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The rectorial tithes were commuted at £1,134 yearly and are held in trust for the church and for charitable purposes by the twelve governors of the church of Crediton. There is a Congregational chapel. Charities amounting to the value of £115 are distributed yearly. A fair is held yearly on the Monday after July 26th, for cattle. Creedy Park is the seat of Lieut.-Col. Sir John Davie Ferguson-Davie bart. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and chief landowner; the house is situated in a park of 370 acres. Town Barton, Gays and Higher and Lower Bagborough belong to Edward Comins Norrish esq. Sutton, Ranscombe and Brimley are in the hands of the trustees of the late John Tremlett esq. whose successor is a minor. The manor of Combe Lancelles, commonly called Combe Lancy, in this parish, belonged to the family of Lancelles: it has been 250 years in the Davie family, and is now the property of Sir John D. Ferguson-Davie bart. and is farmed by Mr. Herbert Lake. West Sandford Barton is the property and residence of George Wreford esq. Bremridge belonged to the ancient family of that name from a very early date (ancestors of the late Richard Bremridge esq. M.P. for Barnstaple); by his marriage with Anna Maria Bremridge in 1775 it passed to the great-grandfather of John Bremridge Melhuish esq. of Poughill Barton, and is now the property of Lieut.-Col. Sir J. D. Ferguson-Davie bart. Dowrich belongs to A. Clayfield-Ireland esq. J.P. Ruxford Barton, now occupied by Mr. John Wedlake, was purchased by the Davie family of Henry Coke, of Stow Easton, Somerset. Doddridge was conveyed in 1808 to the Rev. T. Hewlett. Park House is the property and residence of Elias Tremlett esq. Woolsgrove is the property of Mr. William Lane. Cross, the property of Mr. Elias Tremlett, is farmed by Mr. Henry Tremlett. Henstill, which belongs to B. C. Cleave esq. of Newcombes, is occupied by Mr. Jonas Kelly. Aller belongs to Samuel Norrish esq. West Burridge was purchased in 1869 from J. Kelland esq. by the late Mr. John Tremlett, of Sutton. East Burridge and Yelland belong to Arthur Clayfield-Ireland esq. of Dowrich. The soil is for the most part a remarkably rich and fertile red loam; sub-soil, the same. The chief crops are wheat, barley, roots and pasture. The area is 7,808 acres of land and 12 of water; rateable value, £9,998; the population in 1891 was 1,347.

WEST SANDFORD is 1 mile west; NEW BUILDINGS, 2 miles west; and EAST VILLAGE, 2 miles north-east.

SATTERLEIGH and WARKLEIGH form a parish, settled under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1888," by an order of the County Council, dated 2nd Aug. 1894, uniting the parish of Satterleigh to that of Warkleigh, the united parishes being called Satterleigh and Warkleigh. This order was confirmed by the Local Government Board 21st Nov. 1894, and from and after the 17th Dec. in that year the two parishes were so united. The part of the parish known as Warkleigh, is on the river Taw, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles east from Umlerleigh station and $\frac{1}{4}$ north from Portsmouth Arms station, both on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 5 south-west from South Molton and 10 south-east from Barnstaple, in the Northern division of the county, South Molton hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The parish church of St. John is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 3 bells: in the south aisle is a holy water stoup and a priest's door, and a portion of the staircase to the rood loft still remains, and on one side of the chancel is a hagioscope: the chancel was rebuilt in 1850 by the Rev. William Thorold M.A. late rector: the stained east window, placed in 1893, is a memorial to John and Mary Mortimer, late of this parish, and the west window is a memorial to James Gould esq. of Knapp, Northam: the organ was erected in 1893 as a memorial to the Rev. William Thorold: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £210, with residence and 104 acres of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1891 by the Rev. John Leofric de Buckenhold Thorold M.A. of New College, Oxford. The Hon. M. G. K. Rolle, who is lord of the manor, William Moore esq.

SEATON is a bathing place on the south coast, and parish, with a station on the Seaton branch of the London and South Western railway, and is 22 miles east from Exeter, 7 south-west from Axminster, 10 south from Honiton and 152 from London, in the Eastern division of the county, Colyton hundred, Axminster petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Domeswell and Honiton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The river Axe, here flowing into the sea, is an excellent trout stream, and a concrete bridge of three arches connects this place with Axmouth. Seaton is much frequented by visitors during the summer months on account of the salubrity and bracing quality of its climate.

The parish is governed by an Urban District Council, formed in 1895, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), which supersedes the Local Board constituted in 1878. The sewage of the town is now carried into the sea. The village is lighted with gas by a Company Limited, and supplied with water from a spring on Couchill. The church of St. Gregory is a building of stone, chiefly in the Late Decorated style, with remains of earlier date, and consists of chancel with chantries, nave, aisles,

The section of this parish known as Satterleigh, is near the confluence of the rivers Bray and Mole, 5 miles north from Portsmouth Arms station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, $\frac{1}{2}$ south-west from South Molton station on the Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway, and 12 south-east from Barnstaple. The church of St. Peter is a small but ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a small western bell cote of wood, containing 3 bells: the east window is stained, and there is a very fine piece of carving of the 14th century, which once formed a portion of the ancient rood loft: the pulpit is Jacobean: there are 70 sittings. The register dates from 1550. There is a Bible Christian chapel at Meethgate. The Rev. Mordaunt Henry Martin Byne M.A. of Seaton, is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is of a mixed character; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, roots, with artificial grasses. The area is 2,915 acres; rateable value, £2,381; the population in 1901 was 275.

south porch and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells: the chancel retains a piscina and two hagioscopes, and has a reredos: the east window is stained, and there is a memorial window erected to their parents by the Misses Wyde: in the south chantry is a memorial to Dorothy, widow of William Starr, of Beer, gent. bur. Sept. 5th, 1688, and John her son, bur. December 4th, 1629: there is also a flat stone with quaint inscription to John Starre, ob. 1633, a "Starre on Hie": the church has been restored, and previous to the restoration contained some fine oak screen work with open tracery, displaying the shields of Walrond, Stowford, Holbeame and Hake; only traces of the rood loft stairs now exist: in the Walrond chantry is a tomb with kneeling effigy to Edmond Walrond esq. of Bowe, bur. September 10th, 1640, erected by Anne (Pole), his wife: there are 475 sittings. The register dates from the year 1531. The living is a vicarage, with Beer annexed, joint net yearly value £217, with residence and 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Piercy John Richardson M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford. The Mission church of the Good Shepherd, in Sidmouth street, was erected in 1880, at a cost of about £1,200, and has since been enlarged by the addition of a chancel, transept and vestry. A spacious Parish room was erected in 1892, at a cost of £400, raised by subscriptions. Here is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1900, at a cost of £2,400, from designs of Mr. George Gush, architect, of this town; it is built of local black flints, with Bath and Beer stone dressings, and has 240 sittings. There are school buildings at the north end of the chapel. The clock tower here, erected in 1887 in commemoration of the Jubilee of H.M. the late Queen Victoria, at a cost of over £200, on a site given by the late Sir A. W. Trevelyan bart. (d. 1891), is about 50 feet in height. Minerals, garnet, beryl, quartz, flint, chalcedony, common jasper, cornelian, agate, chalk, sulphate of lime, gypsum, and foliated fibrous copper and iron pyrites are found in this parish. Honiton lace is made here. The early closing day is on Wednesday. There are charities of £1 7s. yearly value, and the late Lady Rolle left £3,900 Consols to found almshouses at Beer for 25 poor men and 20 women, and also £3,100 of the same stock to clothe and educate 20 boys and 20 girls. Sir Walter John Trevelyan bart. of Nettlecombe Court, Taunton, Somerset, who is lord of the manor, and the Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle, with others, are the landowners. The soil is sandy and chalky; the subsoil is gravelly and loamy. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots, but land in the neighbourhood is chiefly in pasture. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 1,092 acres; rateable value, £8,201; the population in 1891 was 1,293, and in 1901 was 1,325.

SHALDON AND RINGMORE are hamlets forming the parish of St. Nicholas Teignmouth, 1 mile south from Teignmouth station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 7 north from Torquay, 5½ east from Newton Abbot and 13 south from Exeter, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. These hamlets, annexed to Teignmouth in 1881 for Urban purposes, and of which district they form a ward, are picturesquely situated on the south bank of the river Teign, here crossed by a ferry at the point, and also by a bridge of 34 arches, built chiefly of iron, at a cost of £20,000, under the direction of Mr. R. Hopkins, engineer, and opened for traffic June 8, 1827. Shaldon is on the sea coast, commencing close under the lofty promontory of the Ness Rock, and continuing from thence along the river side to the end of Ringmore, a distance of about a mile and a half. These hamlets are supplied with water from works at Ringmore, erected by the late Teignmouth Local Board in 1885, and contain some modern villa and other residences, and a number of lodging houses, and having a good beach, are much frequented by invalids during the summer months. The church of St. Nicholas, near the western extremity of the village and overlooking the river Teign, was rebuilt about the middle of the 13th century and again in 1622 by the Carew family, and at the beginning of the present century the nave was enlarged on the north side by the removal of the north wall and the erection of a rude three-sided structure: the church was until lately a small and unpretending edifice of rough stone, consisting of nave, south porch, and a low western tower containing one bell, but in 1895 it was restored at the cost of a private benefactor, under the direction of the Rev. Gerard H. Ball B.A. chaplain of St. Raphael's Home, Torquay: two stained windows have been presented by the restorer and by Mr. and Mrs. Davies, and there is another, presented in 1900 by Mr. and Mrs. Deey Spedding, in memory of their son, Arthur Deey Spedding: the font, a work of very early and rude Norman character, was found buried in the churchyard and was restored by Henry Lowther Chermiside and Josephine, his wife, in 1881: the chancel retains a piscina. The register dates from the year 1616. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £97, including 22 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Richard Marsh Marsh-Dunn.

Another church was commenced in 1893-94 on a site on the main road close to the Shaldon bridge: the work was resumed in 1899, and is still (1901) being continued. The church is of red sandstone, with Polyphang dressings and piers, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, Lady chapel and north transept and vestry: the altar is of Devonshire and Sicilian marble, and there are carved oak choir stalls, a marble pulpit with alabaster steps and a dwarf chancel screen of Devonshire marble, all of which were gifts to the church by various persons. The Congregational chapel, erected in 1868, is a building of stone, with sittings for 200 persons; the Baptist chapel, built in 1705, has 200 sittings; the Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1867, will seat about 200 people. Mrs. Charlotte Wall left, June 3, 1874, the sum of £15 10s. in stock, which produces 32s. yearly, and is given in bread to the poor on Dec. 14: there are also coal and clothing clubs. The Corinthian Sailing Club holds an annual regatta here. The Onward Total Abstinence Society and Band of Hope, the Manchester branch of the Sick and Burial Association, and the Independent Order of Rechabites hold their meetings here. The Ness, the property of Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, is now the residence of Henry F. Julian esq. Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, who is lord of the manor, and the trustees of the late T. Flamank esq. of Teignmouth, are the chief landowners. The soil is limestone; the subsoil is clay. The area of the parish of St. Nicholas is 578 acres of land and 126 of foreshore; rateable value, £4,219; the population in 1901 was 1,270.

A School Board of 6 members was formed on 21 Dec. 1889, for the parish of St. Nicholas; Thomas Ashford Strang, clerk to the board; Charles Arthur Underhill, Ringmore road, attendance officer.

Board School (mixed & infants), built in 1876, at a cost of £1,000, & enlarged in 1883 at an additional cost of £600, for 225 children; average attendance, 130 boys & girls & 70 infants; Alfred Page, master.

SHAUGH PRIOR is a parish and village, near the confluence of the rivers Mew and Plym, 2½ miles east-by-north from Bickleigh station on the Tavistock and Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, 10 south-east from Tavistock and 10 north-east from Plymouth, in the Western division of the county, Plympton hundred, Midland Roborough petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union, East Stonehouse county court district, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Edward, King and Martyr, is an ancient edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, battlemented south porch with parvise and a fine embattled western tower with four crenellated pinnacles, containing 6 bells, recast in 1769 from a previous peal of four large bells, two of which were then useless: on the north side is a turret containing the stairs once leading to the rood loft: the font, a massive work, has an octagonal basin, and has an extremely fine oak cover of the 15th century, between eight and nine feet in height and constructed of elaborately carved and open work, disposed in three stages and enriched with figures, the whole being surmounted by the effigy of a bishop in the act of benediction; this fine cover lay for some years neglected in a hay-loft, whence it was rescued by the Rev. J. B. Strother M.A. late vicar, and after being restored in 1879 by Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter, was replaced in its original position; the figure of the bishop on the summit of the cover, which had fallen into the hands of the Rev. G. R. Seobell, late vicar of Bickleigh, was presented by him for the purposes of the restoration: in the church is a memorial to Noel Thomas Carrington, the sailor poet, who was born at Plymouth in 1777 and died at Bath 2 Sept. 1830; and there are two ancient altar-stones, with incised crosses, one of which serves as a credence table: the church was thoroughly restored in the year 1868 and affords 237 sittings: in the churchyard is a fine old tomb with a carving of two hearts, said to cover the remains of two sisters, about whom there is a local legend: some distance east of the church are remains of a cross. The register dates from the year 1565. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £279, including 42 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1801 by the Rev. Thomas Peregrine Courtenay. At Lee Moor is a Mission chapel and a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1885, with 250 sittings. There are charities producing £31 yearly. At Lee Moor, in this parish, china clay is extensively worked, and fire bricks and sanitary ware are manufactured; the works being connected by rail with Plymouth. The Shaugh Clay Company bring their clay from Shaugh lake through pipes to Shaugh Bridge for the purpose of manufacture. At Shaugh Bridge, in this parish, a little below where the two streams unite to form the Plym, the scene presented is very beautiful, and is thus described by the poet Carrington:—

“Oft as noon
Unnoticed faded into eve, my feet
Have lingered near thy bridge, romantic Shaugh, While as the sister waters rushed beneath Tumultuous, haply glanced the setting beam
Upon the crest of Deverstone.”

SHEBBEAR is a village and parish near the river Torridge, over which is a bridge of one arch to Milton Damerell, and is 5 miles north from Dunsland Cross station on the Halwill and Bude branch of the London and South Western railway, and 9 north-east from Holsworthy, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Shebbear, Torrington petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael is of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and a western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells; the first and sixth were cast in 1863, the others in 1792: the porch has a fine Norman arch and a sun dial: the east window is a memorial to the Rev. Peter Davey Foulkes, vicar here from 1829, erected by public subscription in 1887: under an obtuse arch in the south aisle is a tomb with recumbent sandstone effigy of a female in a flowing robe, mantle and veil, and holding a rosary, her head being supported by angels; the figure (1350-1450) is traditionally said to represent the Lady of Ladford: the church was restored and repewed during 1875-92, at a cost of £1,000, and has 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1576. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £130, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Thomas Edward Fox, of built in 1817 and rebuilt in 1841, will seat 400 persons; attached is a burial ground: there is also a Wesleyan chapel at New Inn, erected in 1840, and a Baptist chapel at Cate, built in 1884. The Bible Christian Connexional College, near the village, is a spacious building of stone and brick, and includes a large school room, suitable class rooms and large and well-ventilated dormitories; it was enlarged in 1877 at a cost of £4,000, and again in 1883 at a cost of £2,000, and in 1891 at a further

There are remains of an ancient British town, and other Celtic remains, upon Lee Moor in this parish. Ley, in this parish, was the property and seat of the Slannings, baronets, afterwards of Bickleigh and Maristow. The Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. of Maristow, who is lord of the manor, the Earl of Morley P.C. and George S. S. Strode esq. of Newnham Park, Plympton St. Mary, are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, rock and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 8,837 acres of land and 25 of water; rateable value, £11,408; the population in 1891 was 714.

SHEEPSTOR (or Shipstow, properly "Sheepstow") is a parish, 3 miles east-by-south from Yelverton station on the Tavistock and Launceston branch and 2 south from Dousland station on the Prince Town branch of the Great Western railway, 13 north-north-east from Plymouth and 7 south-east from Tavistock, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Roborough, petty sessional division of Midland Roborough, union and county court district of Tavistock, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The corporation of Plymouth have a large storage reservoir at the Burrator Gorge, in this parish, begun in 1893, and completed in 1898, in order to impound the waters of the river Meavy: the main dam of the reservoir is of masonry, but the side valley towards Sheepstor village is closed by an earthen embankment: this reservoir covers an area of 115 acres, and has a capacity of 650 million gallons. The church (dedication unknown) is an ancient building of granite in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, south aisle, a curious north transept, south porch and an embattled western tower, with four crocketed pinnacles, containing 5 bells, all recast in 1769 by John Pennington and Co.: the chancel retains an early piscina and there is another in the south aisle; the transept has a hagioscope; the stairs to the rood-loft remain on the north side of the church and there are some remains of a carved oak screen; on the north wall is a monument with the recumbent effigies of a lady and child and three kneeling figures of children, to Elizabeth, second wife of John Elford, ob. 1641, but the inscription is lost; here also is another monument to this family, with inscription to John Elford, gent. ob. August 27, 1584; Elizabeth (Gregory), his wife, and subsequently wife of Thomas Drake esq. ob. March 18, 1691; Walter Elford, their son, ob. May 9, 1648, and Barbara (Crocker), his wife, ob. 1656; over the inscription are 7 shields, exhibiting the alliances of the Elford family, and below the arms of Drake impaling Gregory: the church has been twice restored, the first time between the years 1797 and 1801, and again in 1862: there are four stained windows, the east window being a memorial to Sir James Brooke K.C.B. late Rajah of Sarawak, who died at Burrator House, in this parish, June 11, 1868, and whose remains are interred under a massive granite tomb in the churchyard: one of the others was erected in 1874 in memory of a former schoolmistress of the village: there are 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1691. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £138, with one acre of glebe and residence, dating from 1648, in the gift of the Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. and held since 1879 by the Rev. Cornelius Hargreave Crooke M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The church house, near the churchyard, and formerly used as a school, is an interesting structure of the 16th century, apparently given to the parish by John Elford about 1570; it has been repaired and is now used as a parish room. In this parish, on the side of the Tor, are the remains of an ancient cave, reputed to be a haunt of the fairies, and known as the "Pixies' Cave"; it is entered by a narrow opening through rugged rocks, and consists of a hollow about 6 by 4 feet, formed by masses of rock slanting inward so as to form a kind of hut; Walter Elford, lord of the manor during the Civil war, is said to have frequently concealed himself here to elude the search of the Parliamentary soldiers. The charities amount to about £11 yearly. Burrator House, late the property and residence of Sir James Brooke K.C.B. now belongs to and is occasionally occupied by the Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. Longstone, now a farmhouse, was the ancient seat of the Elford family, who were owners of the manor from the 15th century till 1748; William Elford esq. M.P., F.R.S. some time Recorder of Plymouth and Lieut.-Col. S. Devon Militia, was created a baronet Nov. 26, 1800, but the title became extinct on his death, Nov. 30, 1837. The Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. and John Bayly esq. between whom the manorial rights appear to be divided, the trustees of the late Mr. Hext-Boger and the Plymouth Corporation are chief landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, partly clay and partly slate. The chief crops are barley, oats and some pasture land. The area is 3,424 acres; rateable value, £4,236; the population in 1891 was 100. Letters through Horrabridge R.S.O. by foot post through Walkhampton, arrive about 8.50 a.m. Yelverton, 3 miles distant, is the nearest money order & telegraph office. SHEEPWASH (or Shipwash), formerly a considerable market town, is a small village and parish, 6 miles north-by-east from Halwill and Beaworthy station on the Okehampton and Halworthy branch of the London and South Western railway, 5 north-west from Hatherleigh and 10 south from Torrington, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Shebbear, petty sessional division of Hatherleigh, union and county court district of Torrington, rural deanery of Torrington, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. There is a bridge here, over the Torridge, of 5 arches, constructed at the expense of John Tosbury, who devised lands, now producing £50 yearly, for its maintenance. The church of St. Lawrence, rebuilt in 1880 at a cost of about £1,600, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of vestry and organ chamber, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, completed in 1889 at a cost of £300, with stone presented by Lord Clinton, and containing 6 bells, hung in the same year, at a cost of £360: each bell has an inscription taken from the 65th Psalm: the whole of the windows are stained, and the chancel retains two sedilia, and has a hammer beam roof, enriched with figures of angels holding trumpets: there is also within the church a fine modern screen at the west end, erected on the completion of the tower: the font is Norman: the interior has been reseated, and the new seats incorporate a quantity of old oak belonging to the church: there are now 103 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1673; burials and marriages, 1675. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £112, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Philip Alderton Highmore B.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. Here are Baptist and Bible Christian chapels. The Foresters' Hall is a substantial building of stone, erected in 1878, and will seat 250 people; the Court "Vale of Torrington, No. 4888," holds its meetings here. Upcott Avenel, formerly the seat of the ancient families of Avenell and Thorne, is now the property and residence of John B. Coham-Fleming esq. D.L., J.P. Lord Clinton is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is dun; subsoil, clay and stone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,015 acres of land and 17 of water; rateable value, £1,763; the population in 1901 was 326.

SHERFORD is a parish and small village, 3 miles east from Kingsbridge station on a branch of the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Coleridge, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Martin is an edifice of stone in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: there are stoups at the north and south doors, and the chancel retains a fine trefoil-headed piscina: there is also a handsome screen, carved and painted: the church affords 200 sittings. The register dates only from the year 1713; the older registers are lost. The living is a chapelry, attached with that of Chivelstone to the vicarage of Stokenham, joint net yearly value £100; including 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Conrad Wm. Curling Finkel M.A. of Oxford University, who resides at Stokenham. The charities amount to about £10 yearly. The principal landowners are Hubert F. Brunskill esq. of Buckland Tout Saints, B. Pollard esq. and Mrs. R. Howard. The land is all freehold. The soil is light loam; subsoil, slate. The chief crops are wheat, barley, turnips and SHERWILL (or Shirwell) is a parish and village, 4 miles north-east from Barnstaple stations on the London and South Western and Great Western railways, and about 2 north-west from Chelham station on the Barnstaple and Lynton railway; it gives name to a hundred, and is in the North Western division of the county, Braunton petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwill, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter; a stream flowing on the north-east and south sides of the parish and another on the north-west and west sides form part of its boundary. The church of St. Peter is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north transept, south aisle, south porch and a low embattled tower on the south side, with pinnacles containing 6 bells, all cast by William Evans, of Chepstow, in 1733: the chancel retains a piscina, and in the north wall is the recumbent effigy of a lady in a long straight-flowing dress and mantle and wearing a square ornamented head-dress; the figure is assumed to represent Blanche, daughter of William Bouchier, Lord Fitzwarren, and wife of Bartholomew St. Leger, ob. 4th January, 1483: the fine and ancient oak screen dividing the chancel from the nave, which existed in 1847, has now disappeared: the font is possibly Norman: the church has been restored since 1873 at a cost of £1,336 and affords 200 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1538; marriages, 1539; burials, 1546. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £370, including 91 acres

SHERWOOD, formerly a parish, is now included in Newton St. Cyres. Miss Yates is the sole landowner.

SHILLINGFORD ST. GEORGE is a small parish in the Kenn valley, on the old road from Exeter to Plym-mouth, 3 miles south from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. George is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and one bell, cast by Thomas Pennington in 1716: in the chancel is a double-canopied brass, with kneeling effigies heraldically attired, to Sir William Huddesfield, attorney-general to Edward IV. and of the privy council of Henry VII. and a justice of Oyer and Terminer, ob. 20th March, 1499, and to Katherine (Courtenay), his wife, and three children; at the foot of the brass is a Latin inscription: Sir W. Huddesfield rebuilt the tower of the church, and on the western face is a shield with supporters bearing his arms, impaling those of Courtenay, and below are similar shields: there is another brass, with inscription to John Seaman B.A.
"preacher of God's Holy Word in Shillingford," ob. 25th April, 1664: the east window is a memorial of Lady Palk, and there is another memorial window to Mrs. Pitman,

West Budleigh hundred, Crediton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter.

The church of St. Swithin is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style with some Norman portions, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled tower with turret at the north-east angle containing 6 bells, 5 of which were cast by Thomas Bilbie in 1760, and the sixth by Warner in 1888: the upper portion of the tower was rebuilt in 1888, at a cost of £556: the nave and chancel are separated from the aisles by arcades of four arches: the church was entirely restored and enlarged in 1879, at a cost of £2,600, when a south aisle was added: the restoration of the chancel, including the stained east window, was undertaken by the late Mrs. Knox as a memorial to her husband, a former rector: there are memorial windows to the late Rev. Sir Frederick Shelley bart. rector of Bearferris, d. 19th March, 1869, and to Charlotte Martha, his widow, d. 20 May, 1893, besides others to the late Mrs. Knox, Mrs. Worthington Jukes and Miss Evelyn Cleave: the communion plate includes a flagon, chalice and paten, given by Thomas Lamplugh, bishop of Exeter, 1676-89, and archbishop of York, 1689-91; and another chalice and paten presented by Sir Jonathan Trelawney bart. bishop of Exeter, in 1689: Dean Cary, who died in 1680, was the last resident rector till the year 1866, the living having been held in commendam by the bishops of Exeter: the rood screen was removed in 1577: there are 280 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £394, including 25 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Worthington Jukes M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, and rural dean of Cadbury. There is a chapel of ease at Efford, erected in 1892 at a cost of £500, defrayed by public subscription, and has 90 sittings: Lawrence Bodley, brother of Sir Thomas Bodley kt. founder of the Bodleian library at Oxford, was some time rector here and canon residentiary of Exeter; he

SHUTE is a parish, consisting of scattered houses, on the west bank of the river Axe and on the Exeter and Axmouth road, 3 miles north from Colyton, 3 west from Axminster and 24 east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, Colyton hundred, Axminster petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dunksell and Honiton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. Seaton Junction station on the London and South Western railway is in this parish, about one mile south from the village, and 147 miles from London. The church of St. Michael is a cruciform building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a central embattled tower containing 5 bells: there are several handsome monuments to the De La Pole family, one of which has a fine marble statue of Sir William Pole bart. master of the household to William III. and Queen Anne, ob. 1741: in the Pole chapel is a very handsome memorial, erected in 1802, to the late Margaret Victoriousa (Talbot), wife of Sir W. E. Pole bart. who died 23 Nov. 1886; it was executed by Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter, and consists of a cenotaph of polished veined alabaster, over 7 feet high; in the centre is a sculptured group, representing the meeting at the gate of Paradise of the departed lady and her three little girls, who died many years before; the four figures are exquisitely modelled, and above, on a shield, are the arms of Pole impaling Talbot: there is also a tablet to the memory of C. B. Templer esq. who perished in the "Halswell," East Indianman, 6 Jan. 1786: the chancel was restored in 1863, and in 1869 the interior was thoroughly renovated and re-seated, and a marble reredos erected: the east window is stained, several of the others display the emblazoned shields of the Pole family, and in 1895 a memorial window was placed by Sir E. R. Talbot Pole bart. to the late Sir William Edmund Pole bart. d. 1895: in 1888 a handsome sun-dial was died on the 19th April, 1615. The poor have the sum of £24 8s. 9d. yearly from the following charities, as shewn:—Tuckfield charity, £10 4s. 9d.; Trenchard gift, £3; Poor's Stock money, £5 10s.; Lydia Hunt charity, £3 18s. 4d.; Coleridge charity, £1 15s. 8d. Shobrooke Park is the seat of Sir John Shelley bart. B.A., D.L., J.P.; the mansion stands in an undulating park, studded with fine oak, beech and other trees, and has also a large ornamental piece of water in its centre; it is well stocked with deer, and many rare species of birds are acclimatized here. The Sanctuary is the seat of William Cornish Cleave esq. The manor was long held by the Eredkne family, from whom it descended by marriage to the Carews. The principal landowners are Sir John Shelley bart. who is lord of the manor, and William Cornish Cleave esq. The soil is red loam; subsoil, red rock: The chief crops are wheat and roots. The area is 4,253 acres of land and 14 of water; rateable value, £5,569; the population in 1891 was 632 in the civil and 579 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order, 16,552, a detached part of Shobrooke, known as Combe Barton, was transferred to this parish, March 24, 1884.

SHUTE is a hamlet 2 miles south-east. Sexton, William Hooker Greenslade.

Post Office.—George Pook, sub-postmaster. Letters arrive from Crediton at 7.10 a.m. & 5.50 p.m.; dispatched at 9.50 a.m. & 6 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. Crediton, 3 miles distant, is the nearest money order & telegraph office

A School Board of 5 members was formed December 12th, 1882; the Rev. Worthington Jukes M.A. hon. clerk to the board erected over the south porch by Mr. Clode, in memory of his wife: there are upwards of 300 sittings, all free, with the exception of those reserved for the Pole family. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1568; marriages, 1561; burials, 1562. The living is a vicarage, separated in 1860 by an Order in Council from Colyton, to which it was formerly attached as a chapelry; net yearly value £308, with 1½ acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1894 by the Rev. John Marshal Morrell. A fair was formerly held at Whitford on the Monday before Michaelmas, yearly, for pleasure, but has fallen into disuse. Shute was anciently the seat of the Bonvilles, barons Bonville, but was transferred to the Poles in the 16th century. The remains of the old house, probably erected by William Pole esq. the first possessor, in the reign of Queen Mary, consist of the gate-house, an embattled structure, flanked by octagonal towers, and displaying the arms of Pole: "Az semée of fleurs-de-lis, a lion, ramp. arg." quartering those of Pole of Cheshire; and other buildings, now used as a farm: the builder, who died 15th Aug. 1587, is buried in Colyton church. Shute House is the seat of Sir Edmund Reginald Talbot Pole bart. lord of the manor and owner of nearly the whole of the parish; the deer park extends over an area of 100 acres, and is well stocked with deer. The soil is chiefly red marl; the subsoil is marl, and some lighter soil adapted for turnips and barley. The area is 2,650 acres of land and 9 of water; rateable value, £7,738; the population in 1891 was 444.

Board School, erected in 1883 & enlarged in 1892, for 130 children; average attendance, 102; John Downing, master; Miss Jessie Greenslade, infants' mistress

WHITFORD is a hamlet, half a mile south-east of the church. The Bible Christians have a chapel here.

SIDBURY is a parish and village on the river Sid, near the road from Honiton to Sidmouth, and formerly a market town, 3 miles north-by-east from Sidmouth station on the London and South Western railway and 6 south from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, East Budleigh hundred, Ottery petty sessional division, Honiton union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Giles is a cruciform building of stone in the Early Norman and later styles, and consists of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower, originally Norman, but rebuilt in 1845, with the addition of a shingled spire, and containing a clock and 6 bells; the chancel was restored by the friends of the Rev. Henry Fellowes M.A. late vicar, shortly before his death in 1864: in the chancel is a stained window to his memory, erected by his daughter, Mrs. Dorset Fellowes: the chancel retains a small brass, dated 1650, to Henry, son of Robert Parsons, the date of whose decease is given as "ÆTATIS SUÆ CLIMACTERICO ΔΕΥΤΕΡΟΠΡΩΤΩ": in 1886-7 the church was thoroughly restored, under the direction of J. T. Micklethwaite esq. F.S.A. architect, of London, at a cost of £3,782: the pulpit and lectern, of beautifully carved oak, were presented respectively by Miss Bayley and Miss Ebba Bayley, the vases and candlesticks by Mrs. Bayley, the cross by the members of the Girls' Friendly Society, the reading desk by the vicar, and new lamps were given by several parishioners on Christmas Day, 1892: there are 256 sittings. The parish registers, dating from 1559, were nearly all consumed with the vicarage house, destroyed by fire in 1856; of those rescued the earliest date is 1813. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £240, with residence and 5 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1901 by the Rev. James Annesley Prendergast M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are the impropriators of the great tithes, worth about £300 yearly. Here is a Congregational chapel, first founded in 1757; the present chapel dates from 1820, and will seat about 300: there is a burial ground attached. The Cemetery, consisting of three-quarters of an acre, was opened in March, 1882, and is in the hands of trustees: the site was given by the late Right Hon. Sir Stephen Cave P.C., G.C.B. and conveyed to the parish by Sir Charles Daniel Cave bart. D.L., J.P. A Reading Room, with a library of about 300 volumes, was opened in 1877 by the late Right Hon. Sir Stephen Cave P.C., G.C.B. There is also a parochial library at the Mission room, with about the same number of volumes. The manufacture of Honiton lace is carried on here by about 50 women at their own homes, and in 1895 classes were formed for instruction in lace making in order to prevent the art from dying out. A fair is held on the Wednesday before the 20th of September yearly, for cattle and cheese. There are charities of £70 yearly value. Near the village, to the west, is a Roman camp, known as "Sidbury Castle," in which are two ancient wells. Sidbury Manor, the seat of Sir Charles Daniel Cave bart. D.L., J.P. is a mansion of red brick, with stone facings, in the Tudor style, and was erected by the late Right Hon. Sir Stephen Cave P.C., G.C.B. in 1879: the extent of the park is about 400 acres, and contains a herd of deer. Sir C. D. Cave bart. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor, and the Rev. Canon F. J. Huyshe M.A. vicar of Wimborne Minster, are chief landowners. The soil is marl, clay and sand; the subsoil is marl and sand. The crops are wheat, barley and roots. The acreage is 6,763; rateable value, £8,124; the population in 1901 was 1,076.

At SIDFORD, a hamlet one mile south, is a chapel of ease, erected in 1865, at a cost of about £5,000, chiefly defrayed by the Rev. George Thomas Comyns, then vicar of Sidbury, who also provided the site: it is of red brick and freestone, in the Early Decorated style, and consists of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, north and south porches and a turret containing one bell: there are eight stained windows. Here also is a Wesleyan chapel.

HARCOMBE is a hamlet, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-east. Sexton, Edwin Barratt.

SIDMOUTH.

SIDMOUTH is a fashionable watering place on the south coast of Devonshire, and parish and market town at the mouth of the small river Sid, 170 miles by road and 167½ by rail from London, 15 east-south-east from Exeter, 6 south-by-east from Ottery St. Mary, 9 south-south-west from Honiton, 11 north-east from Exmouth, 16 west-by-south from Lyme Regis and 15 south-west from Axminster, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of East Budleigh, petty sessional division of Ottery, union and county court district of Honiton, rural deanery of Ottery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The railway station is the terminus of a branch, constructed in 1873, from Sidmouth Junction of the London and South Western railway.

Sidmouth is pleasantly situated at the lower end of a beautiful vale, and is sheltered on the east, west and north by ranges of hills, which are cultivated to their summits. On the south it commands an extensive view of the sea, and lies at the bottom of a deep and almost semicircular hollow on the coast, sometimes called the "Western Bay." From the top of Peake or Salcombe Hills, 500 feet in height, the view extends to 28 or 30 miles; Hope's Nose, on this side of Torbay, is 18 miles from Sidmouth; Berry Head is 22. The nearest point of the French coast, Cape la Hogue, near Cherbourg, is 90 miles distant. The climate is mild and equable, but by no means relaxing. According to tables published by Dr. Mackenzie F.M.S. the temperature is some four degrees warmer in the winter months than London, and proportionately cooler in summer: it is the driest of the Devonshire watering places, and has, according to Mr. Pengelly F.R.S. 26 per cent. less rainfall, and less rain on each rainy day, than any other place in Devonshire. The sunshine records, kept and published annually by Dr. Oliver, prove Sidmouth to be one of the sunniest places in the British Isles. The highly picturesque scenery of the neighbourhood and the facilities afforded for sea-bathing have rendered this a fashionable and much frequented watering place.

Sidmouth was formerly a place of more importance than at present, and in the 13th century was a borough and market town, governed by a portreeve; long subsequent to that period it had an important fishery and a good harbour, but the latter does not now exist. The erection of a strong sea-wall, which affords an agreeable promenade of nearly half a mile in length, was commenced in 1835 and completed in 1838, under the superintendence of G. H. Julian esq. architect, of Exeter, at a cost of about £2,500, of which a sum of £1,200 was given by the late lord of the manor.

The town is governed by an Urban District Council of 9 members, formed under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), which takes the place of the Local Board, established May 12, 1863, under the Act of 1858. It is lighted with gas, and supplied with pure soft water from the works of the Sidmouth Water Company, established under a special Act of Parliament, promoted by the owner of the manor. The works were built from plans by Mr. Edward Wood C.E. of Westminster. A thorough and complete system of drainage was carried out in 1897 from plans prepared by Mr. James Mansergh, of London, at a cost of about £10,000.

Sidmouth gives the title of viscount (1805) to the Addington family.

The parish church of St. Nicholas, an edifice of stone, originally in the Perpendicular style, was rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1860, under the direction of Mr. William White, architect, and now consists of chancel, with aisles, clerestoried nave of four bays, aisles, transepts, north and south porches and a western embattled tower with four pinnacles, containing a clock and 8 bells: in the church are memorials to James Currie M.D. (1756-1805), author of a life of Robert Burns: the stained west window was presented by Her late Majesty Queen Victoria in 1866, as a memorial to her father, the late Duke of Kent, who died here 23rd January, 1820, and chiefly illustrates Christian charity as exemplified by Our Lord; the east window was given by the Earl of Buckinghamshire in 1860; there are 16 other stained windows and a fine reredos, erected in 1866: there are about 1,000 sittings. The register dates from the year 1589. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £290, including 24 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1865 by the Rev. Henry George John Clements M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford, and surrogate.

All Saints' church, erected in 1837, at the north end of the town, and consecrated 30th April, 1840, is a building of stone in the Early English style, and consists of apsidal chancel, nave and transepts, and a belfry above the gable of the north transept containing one bell: there are 596 sittings. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £173, in the gift of three trustees, and held since 1895 by the Rev. John Leathley Nightingale M.A. of Emanuel College, Cambridge. Connected with this church is an iron mission hall, erected in 1884, with sittings for 230 persons.

Here is the Catholic Convent of the Assumption; the Rev. Norbert Jones, priest.

The Congregational chapel, in Chapel street, erected about 1853, was greatly improved in 1892, and affords sittings for 360 persons. The old chapel, in Eastern Town, built in 1813, is now used as schools. The Unitarian chapel, in High street, erected in 1710, will seat about 200. The Wesleyan Methodist chapel, in High street, erected in 1884, at a cost of £1,845, is a building of Babbacombe stone, with Bath stone facings, in the Gothic style, and will seat 300 persons.

The Cemetery, in Landpart, opened in January, 1879, at a cost of £3,000, is over 3 acres in extent, and has two mortuary chapels: it is under the control of a Burial Board.

In 1839 an Act was passed for building a market-house and granting the market dues to the lord of the manor. The lower part of the Market Hall, erected in 1843, is used for the purposes of the market, which, however, had become extinct, but in 1901 steps were taken to enforce the observance of the Act, and the market has accordingly been revived. Markets are held every Thursday and Saturday, and fairs for cattle on Easter Monday and the third Monday in September.

The early closing day is on Thursday.

"The Manor Hall," a concert hall and theatre, erected about 1893 by Capt. and Hon. Maj. J. E. H. Balfour, of the Manor, will seat 500 persons, it has a lecture hall attached, and is licensed for stage plays.

The Masonic Hall, High street, erected in 1890, is an edifice of red and white brick, with upper and lower rooms, and a caretaker's residence at the back. The "Perseverance" Lodge, No. 164, meets here on the first Wednesday in each month. The Sidmouth Literary and Debating Society occupy the lower room.

The Volunteer Drill Hall, at the Salcombe end of the Esplanade, erected in 1895 on a site given by the late J. George G. Radford, is a neat edifice of red brick, and has on the ground floor a drill hall, 60 by 32 feet, with a clock over the entrance, above is a smaller hall, and the building also includes an ante-room, and an armoury. The hall is licensed for stage plays.

The Sidmouth Baths, in the centre of the Esplanade, and adjoining the Sidmouth Club, are the property of a limited company formed in 1893, and consist of reclining, immersion and swimming baths; each bath has four services, hot and cold fresh water, and hot and cold sea water, which meet in mixing boxes and can be supplied in any combination and temperature.

The Sidmouth Constitutional club occupies the upper part of the Market hall. The Sidmouth Club, on the Esplanade, was built in 1894, and has all the requirements of a good-class gentleman's club. There is a Choral and Orchestral Society, by whom concerts are given occasionally, and there is also an Amateur Operatic Society. The Sidmouth and District Poultry, Pigeon, Cagebird, Rabbit, Dog and Cat Society, and the Sidmouth, Sidbury and Salcombe Regis Horticultural Society, and the two latter hold annual shows.

The Sidbury, Sidmouth, Salcombe Regis and Branscombe Agricultural Association holds its annual meeting in October.

There are two branch banks: the London and South Western Bank Limited, Temple house, near the Esplanade, and the Devon and Cornwall Banking Co. Limited, Bank House, High street.

There is a Young Men's Christian Association, in Mill street, established in 1876, which had, in 1901, 70 members, and a Young Women's Christian Association, with a reading-room, opened in 1882, in High street.

In the town are two circulating libraries.

Excellent accommodation is afforded by the following well-appointed hotels, viz.: The Knowle, a new and beautiful hotel in charming grounds, recently visited by the Empress Eugenie; the Bedford hotel, close to the baths, and situated in the middle of the Esplanade, and the London hotel, in Fore street, which has good stock rooms. There are also many very good lodging and boarding houses.

The Fire Brigade numbers 13 members, and has the use of a manual engine belonging to the Urban District Council, and stationed in Mill street.

Sidmouth is a coastguard and lifeboat station; a lifeboat was presented to the institution by Mrs. Rimmington in 1869; and a new lifeboat, named "William and Frances," was presented by Miss F. A. Bass, in May, 1885, at a cost of £850.

The boat-house on the Esplanade was built by subscription.

There are fine cricket and tennis grounds, and golf links have recently been laid out and a pavilion erected.

There are also cycling, football and sailing clubs, an Archery Society and an Arts and Crafts Association.

A few of the women and children of this place are employed in making Honiton lace.

The Cottage Hospital, established in 1885, and rebuilt in 1892 on a site given by Capt. and Hon. Maj. J. E. H. Balfour J.P. is intended for the benefit of poor persons suffering from accident or non-infectious disease, who cannot be properly attended to in their own homes; and primarily, for those resident in the parishes of Sidmouth, Salcombe Regis, and Sidbury. Cases of accident, however, from other neighbouring parishes, may be received, with the consent of the medical officer, but the hospital is not intended for cases of mental disorder, advanced consumption or chronic disease, nor for any child under the age of five years: the hospital is available for 10 patients, 38 patients were treated in 1900.

The Dispensary, established in 1836 is partly supported by voluntary contributions: 425 patients were treated during the year ending July, 1900.

The charities, amounting to about £250 yearly, consist of accumulated bequests extending through several centuries, and are in the hands of 12 feoffees, who distribute them to the schools for educating poor children, and also amongst poor householders not receiving parish relief.

Woolbrook Glen, situated near the western extremity of the town, and formerly the property and residence of Mrs. Baynes, was in 1820 the residence of the Duke and Duchess of Kent, who came here accompanied by her late Majesty, then Princess Victoria: after an illness of short duration, his Royal Highness died here, 23rd Jan. 1820, in the 53rd year of his age. The neighbourhood of Sidmouth is studded with numerous delightful villa residences.

Capt. and Hon. Maj. John Edmond Hengh Balfour (late 11th Hussars), of the Manor (House, who is lord of the manor, and the Misses Radford are the principal landowners.

The area of the parish and urban district is 1,563 acres of land and 35 of tidal water: rateable value, £18,077; the population in 1891 was 3,758, and in 1901 was 4,201.

WOOLBROOK is a straggling hamlet of this parish, about 1 mile north from the town.

SILVERTON is a parish and village, anciently a market town, near the rivers Exe and Culme, with a station on the main line of the Great Western railway from Taunton to Exeter, 2 miles south-east from the village, with Upexe station on the Exe valley branch of the Great Western railway from Exeter to Dulverton about one mile west from the village, and in Rewe parish, and is 8 miles north-east from Exeter, 7 south from Tiverton, 3½ south-west from Cullompton and 17½ from London, in the North Eastern division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Cullompton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock, added in 1697, a Jubilee memorial to the late Queen Victoria, and 6 bells:
 there are some remains of old oak screens: the church affords 405 sittings: in the churchyard, which was enlarged in 1900, by the addition of half an acre, the gift of W. Wyndham esq. the lord of the manor, are the steps and part of a shaft of a 14th cent. cross. The register dates from the year 1626. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £512, with 89 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of William Wyndham esq. of Din-ton House, Salisbury, and the Hon. W. F. Danvers Smith
 M.P. and held since 1894 by the Rev. Joseph Heald Ward
 M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan Reform chapel. The Manor Audit Rooms are the property of William Wyndham esq. and are used for the purposes of the estate, as well as a club and reading room, and for public entertainments. The Silvertown paper mills of Messrs. Reed and Smith employ about 200 persons. Two fairs were formerly held here on the second Thursday in February and on the first Thursday in July, yearly. The charities, producing £125 yearly, are distributed in money and kind. Silvertown Park, about 190 acres in extent, was formerly the property of the trustees of George Francis, 4th and last Earl of Egremont, who died in the old mansion here, 2 April, 1845, when the title became extinct; the mansion was demolished in 1901.

 William Wyndham esq. of Dinton House, Salisbury, is lord of the manor and chief landowner; Hugh Leonard Ackland-Troyte esq. of Huntsham Court, Bampton;
 Sir Charles Thomas Dyke-Acland bart. of Killerton, Exeter; Charles Robert Collins esq. of Exeter; Alexander Macartney Read esq. and the Hon. W. F. D. Smith M.P. of Moreton Hampstead, are also landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 4,716 acres of land and 13 of water; rateable value, £10,485; the population in 1901 was 1,108.

LEASE is a hamlet, about 2 miles east-south-east from the church.

SLAPTON is a parish and village on the shore of Start bay, 8 miles south-west from Kingswear station on the Dartmouth branch and 7 east from Kingsbridge station on that branch of the Great Western railway, 7½ south-west from Dartmouth and 12 south-east from Totnes, in the Southern division of the county, Coleridge hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of James the Greater is an edifice of stone in the Late Decorated and Early Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch with parvise, and a western tower, with spire, containing 5 bells, all cast in 1775, except the tenor, cast by Mears in 1853; the tower seems to have been much damaged in getting in the bells: there is a very fine carved oak rood screen and two parclose screens: the church was partially restored in 1886 at a cost of £600, and affords 300 sittings: this church was anciently attached to a college, founded here in 1350 by Sir Guy De Brian kt. standard bearer to Edward III. and one of the first holders of the Order of the Garter;
 the gateway tower, 80 feet in height, remains. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1634; marriages, 1653; burials, 1654. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £137, including 79 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1885 by the Rev.
 Honyman George Warner M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. The Brethren erected a chapel here in 1866, and there is also a Primitive Methodist chapel. J. and C.
 Kelland's charity of 16s. 2r. 22p. is primarily for the support of a Sunday school; the surplus income, if any, goes to the School Board; William Bastard and Henry Fairweather esqrs. are the sole surviving trustees of this charity. Poole, anciently the residence of the De Bryans, is now a farmhouse. Sir Robert H. S. D. Lydston Newman bart. of Mamhead Park, Exeter, William Bastard and John Weymouth esqrs. the trustees of the late Thomas Hodge, the trustees of the late R. P. Tucker, Messrs. Henry Fairweather, Nicholas Page, and John Wakeham and the Misses Bastard are chief landowners.

 A plot of ground, comprising 6 acres, is let by William Bastard esq. to about 30 tenants, in allotments. The soil is loamy; the subsoil is dunstone and clay slate.
 The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 3,287 acres of land, 57 of water and 11 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,961; the population in 1901 was 527.

SOURTON is a scattered village and parish on the road from Okehampton to Tavistock, 2 miles north from Bridestowe station on the main line of the London and South Western railway and 4½ south-west from Okehampton, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Thomas & Becket is a building of granite in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 5 bells, all cast in 1776: the church was restored in 1871 and again in 1881 by the late S. C. Hamlyn esq. of Leawood, Bridestowe: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1722. The living, formerly a chapelry united to the rectory of Bridestowe, was made an independent vicarage in 1889, net yearly value £225, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1894 by the Rev. Oliver Puckridge M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. A new Wesleyan Methodist chapel was erected here in 1892, and there is also a Baptist chapel. The Church room, erected in 1897, as a memorial to the late Vincent Waldo Calmady Hamlyn esq. will seat over 250 persons. In the neighbourhood there are lime quarries. The land is all freehold. The principal landowners are Mrs. Charles Holley, of Leawood, Bridestowe; John Butters Newton-Ashford esq.; the trustees of the late Ven. Henry Woolcombe M.A. archdeacon of Barnstaple; Simon Peter Brendon Newcombe esq. of Okehampton and John Durant Palmer esq. The soil is clay and marl; subsoil, shale. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats; a large portion of the land is pasture. The acreage is 5,046; rateable value, £3,249; the population in 1901 was 403.

SOUTHLEIGH is a scattered village and parish, 4 miles from the sea coast, 3 west from Colyton station on the Seaton branch of the London and South Western railway and 6 south-east from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, Colyton hundred, Honiton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Laurence is an ancient building of flint, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, added in 1821, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells; in the chancel is a monument in the Ionic style to Robert Drake, of Wiscombe, ob. March 30, 1600, with inscription and five shields of arms: the chancel was rebuilt in 1854 and a vestry added, and the church was completely restored in 1881-2 by the Gordon family, at a cost of £800, being a legacy left by Charles Gordon esq. of Wiscombe Park: the east window is a memorial to Mrs. Edmonds: there are 160 sittings: in the churchyard is a tomb, recently restored by the late Sir W. C. Trevelyan bart. to Henry Willoughby, ob. Sept. 28, 1616, bearing the arms of that family. The register dates from the year 1718. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £170, with residence, and glebe of 34 acres, in the gift of William Edmonds esq. and held since 1891 by the Rev. Charles Faulkner Buckley B.A. of Durham University. There are charities of about 11 guineas annual value, which sum is expended in clothing and bread for the poor at Christmas, and aid to the Sunday school. About a mile from the village are the remains of a British encampment called "Black-bury Castle." Wiscombe Park is the seat of William Edmonds esq. J.P.; the mansion is of flint and Beer stone, in the Gothic style, very beautifully situated in a park of about 60 acres, one mile west of the village, and surrounded by magnificent woodlands of about 300 acres in extent. William Edmonds esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor, Sir Edmund Reginald Talbot Pole bart. of Shute House, Axminster; the Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle and the Misses Outhwaite are the chief landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, marl. The crops are wheat, barley, oats, roots and pasture. Under the provisions of the "Divided Parishes Act," by Local Government Board Order 15,049, the acreage of the parish was increased by an addition from Colyton, March 25, 1885, and is now 3,365; rateable value, £2,124; the population of the new parish in 1891 was 257, and of the ecclesiastical parish and the old parish 221; the population of the civil parish in 1901 was 196.

STARCROSS is a village, pleasantly seated on the river Exe, about 1½ miles from its mouth, and was formed December 4, 1829, into an ecclesiastical parish from the civil parishes of Kenton and Dawlish; it has a station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, and is 8 miles south-east from Exeter, 14 north from Dawlish and 20½ from London, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Kenn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The road from Exeter to Dawlish runs through the village, forming its principal street, which is lighted with gas by the Starcross and Kenton Gas Light and Coke Co. Limited, established in 1877 with a capital of £2,400. The church of St. Paul, erected in 1828, is a large building of stone in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave, north and west porches and a western turret containing a clock and 2 bells: the clock was erected in 1865 by the parishioners as a memorial to the Rev. William Powley, 32 years incumbent here: the carved oak pulpit and other fittings were executed by Hems, of Exeter: the stained east window is a memorial to the Coles and Ash families, 1828-52; and there are others to the Eales and Bishop families 1856-8, and to Capt. Rose Henry Fuller R.N. d. October 27, 1860: there are modern monuments to the Rev. James Coles, Messrs. Richard and Charles Thomas Eales and Capt. Sweetland: the church was restored and re-seated about 1896, under the direction of Messrs. Rowell and Sons, architects, of Newton Abbot, and has sittings for upwards of 600 persons, 350 being free. The register dates from the year 1828. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £184, with residence and about 5½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Deans and Chapters of Exeter and Salisbury alternately, and held since 1865 by the Rev. Edward Copleston Bond M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The Wesleyan chapel is situated in the Strand. Here are two good hotels, "the Courtenay Arms" and the Railway hotel. A pleasure fair is held on Whitsun Wednesday yearly. The original parish charities amount to £22 yearly, in addition to which £500 stock was placed in the hands of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners in 1881, by the late Sir John Lewis Duntze bart. of Exeleigh (d. 1884), for the benefit of seven aged parishioners, regular attendants at the church: there are also clubs for distributing clothing, coats and blankets to the poor. Exeleigh is the seat of Rev. Edward Chatterton Orpen M.A. The Rev. the Earl of Devon M.A. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The soil is sandy; subsoil, yellow gravel. The area is 1,800 acres. The population in 1891 was 976, inclusive of 188 inmates and 33 officials of the asylum. Under the provisions of the "Divided Parishes Act, 1895," by Local Government Board Order 16,546, the ecclesiastical district of Cofton, including Cockwood, Middlewood, Westwood, Eastdon, the Warren and Week, amounting to 739 acres, was taken from this parish and added to Dawlish, March 25, 1885. Parish Clerk, vacant.

Post, M. O. & T. O., T. M. O., S. B., Express Delivery, Parcel & Annuity & Insurance Office. (Railway Sub-Office. Letters should have R.S.O. Devon added). Miss Elizabeth Kingdon, sub-postmistress. Letters by mail cart from Exeter arrive at 5.40 a.m.; 9.1 a.m. by T.P.O. (to callers only) & 3.25 p.m.; dispatched at 10.50 a.m. & 4.30 & 7.25 p.m.; box closes at 7.10 p.m.; sundays at 7.10 p.m.

Wall Letter Boxes, Mount Pleasant, cleared at 8 a.m. & 5.35 p.m. week days; sundays, 8.30 a.m.; Cofton, cleared at 10 a.m. & 6.20 p.m.; sundays, 9.45 a.m.; Eastdon, cleared at 7.30 a.m. & 6 p.m.; sundays, 8 a.m.

THE WESTERN COUNTIES IDIOT ASYLUM.

The foundation stone of this building was laid on April 9, 1874, by Lady Anna Maria Courtenay; it is built of grey limestone, relieved by dressings of buff brick & Bath stone, in the Early English style, & was opened in June, 1877; it consists of a central block with north & south wings, the central block comprising the administrative department & the residence of the superintendent; the northern wing is appropriated to boys & the southern to girls; the dining hall, a fine apartment, is 100 by 20 feet in area, and contains an organ, the gift of friends of the children; considerable additions were made in 1896, so that the asylum is now available for 180 boys & 90 girls; the entire cost has exceeded £32,000; the institution is supported by the payments for the maintenance of the patients, augmented by voluntary contributions; Sebastian Cosens Snow, treasurer, Exeter Bank, Exeter; Edgar Richard Senhouse Lipscomb L.B.C.P.Lond., M.R.C.S.Eng. medical officer; Ernest William Locke, resident superintendent & sec.; Mrs. Alice L. STAVERTON is a large parish and village on the north bank of the river Dart, at the south-eastern extremity of the parish, with a station half a mile west from the village on the Totnes and Ashburton branch of the Great Western railway, and is about $\frac{3}{4}$ miles north-west from Totnes, in the Mid division of the county, hundred of Haytor, petty sessional division of Teignbridge, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. This parish rises boldly from the Dart valley, and is noted for the excellence of its cider; the river Dart, which affords excellent fishing, is crossed here by a bridge of seven arches, built in 1412-13, the bishop having ordered the archdeacon of Totnes to collect alms from the deaneries of Ipplepen, Moreton and Totnes for the rebuilding of the bridge, then in a ruinous condition, and promising an indulgence of 40 days to the contributors. The church of St. Paul is a large and ancient edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, of which the 1st, 3rd and 4th were cast in 1761 by Thomas Bilbie; the 2nd and 6th were recast in 1856; the 5th dates from 1798: the tower is in the Early English style, the western part of the nave Decorated and the east end of the nave and part of the chancel Perpendicular: the east window is stained and there are two other stained windows, including one in the south wall, given by the late vicar in memory of his wife: in 1854-73 the chancel was partly restored in the Decorated style by the Rev. H. F. Atherley, late vicar, at a cost of £1,000; and in 1875-91 the church was entirely renovated at a cost of £2,750: a richly carved reredos, copied from that in the cathedral of Freiburg, Baden, has been added, and a handsome brass placed on the north wall in memory of the late vicar: the nave has also been entirely refitted with open seats and a new organ introduced: in the church is a monument to the Worth family, dated 1620, and the fine screen of carved oak of 17 bays, 50 feet long and 15 feet in height, was, by the liberality of a friend of the vicar, admirably restored in 1890-91, at a cost of nearly £1,000, under the direction of Mr. F. Bligh Bond, architect, of Bristol, the carved work being executed by Harry Hems and Sons, of Exeter: the restoration included the reconstruction of the ancient rood gallery: the screen was dedicated 9 June, 1892. The register dates from the year 1614. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £274, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1874 by the Rev. John Bickley Hughes M.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford, and surrogate: the rectorial tithes, commuted at £460, are now held by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. At Wolstone Green is a Wesleyan chapel. "The Court Room," built by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, may be used for public meetings by permission of the vicar. The parishioners have 15 acres of land and £110 Reduced Annuities (formerly £100 Navy £5 per Cents.) and £24 rent of 14 acres of land derived from £200 left by Edward Gould in 1735, together with 20s. a year out of Bottom Park: the Rev. Thomas Baker left £200 for educating and relieving the poor, which in 1802 was invested in £349 15s. 4d. Consols; out of the income derived from this investment a sum of £8 is applied in educating poor children, together with the dividends of £66 13s. 4d. of the same stock, left by Thomas Bradridge in 1805. The poor have also an annuity of £2, left by William Gould in 1692, to be paid out of a tenement called "Wallaford," at Buckfastleigh, this amount being given in blankets to the poor. There are also 16 acres of land and the interest of £135, from £200 left by Edward Bovey in 1709 and £56 16s. 3d. given by Arthur Barnes in 1860, to be distributed at the discretion of the vicar. In the northern part of the parish, about two miles south of Ashburton, are the Pen Recca slate quarries, which have been worked for centuries, but are not at present used; the slate yielded by these quarries is found in immense blocks of a beautiful sage-green and chocolate colour; many of the farm-houses in the surrounding district have been roofed with it since the reign of James I. and in the reign of Charles I. Ashburton church was also new roofed with the same material. At Pridhamsleigh, in this parish, is a large and curious limestone cavern. Kingston House, the residence of Mr. Robert Francis Bendell, is a spacious building in the Queen Anne style, erected by John Row in 1743, and contains a very fine oak staircase and the remains of a private domestic chapel. Barkingdon is the residence of Col. Heathcote Plummer, and Nelson House of Colin Macgregor Edward May esq. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor of Staverton and owners of more than half the parish. Messrs. Walter Elliott and Edward James Coulton, of Dean Prior, are lords of the manor of Barkingdon, and the Baroness de Virte is owner of Pridhamsleigh; there are also a few smaller freeholders. The soil and subsoil varies. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips and apples. The area is 4,581 acres of land and 34 of water: rateable value,

STOCKLAND is a large and scattered village and parish, in a vale between the valleys of the Otter and Yarty and on the road from Honiton to Chard, 6 miles north-east from Honiton and 6 north-west from Axminster, both stations on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 6 south-west from Chard station on a branch of the Great Western railway, and 14 south from Taunton, in the Eastern division of the county, Axminster hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dukeswell and Honiton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. This parish formerly belonged to Dorsetshire, but by the Boundaries Act, 1831-2 (2 and 3 William IV. cap. 64), and the County Act, 1844 (7 and 8 Vict. cap. 61), it was annexed to Devonshire. The church of St. Michael is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 6 bells, dated 1663: the stained east window was given by the Rev. W. Turner, a former curate: the church was restored in 1888, at a cost of £800, and affords sittings for 500 persons. The register dates from the year 1640. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Dalwood annexed, joint net yearly value £218, with glebe and house, value £33, in the gift of the principal landowners, and held since 1894 by the Rev. Alfred Vyvyan Cox M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. The patronage is vested in certain of the freeholders under the following circumstances:—The rectory and vicarage were anciently parts of the possessions of the dissolved monastery of Milton, otherwise Middleton, Dorset, which became vested in the Crown on the dissolution of monasteries in the reign of Henry VIII. and on the 1st April, 3rd Edward VI. A.D. 1549, the said rectory and vicarage were by that monarch granted to William Perye, of Membury, Devon, and John Kyte, of Stockland-aforesaid, as joint tenants in fee simple, in consideration of £590 2s. 7½d.; from that period until the year 1688 no certain account of the ownership under that grant can be given, but from the best accounts it would seem that John Kyte survived William Perye, and that by right of survivorship incident to a joint tenancy he became sole owner, and that the ownership subsequently passed from John Kyte to his grandson, Thomas Kyte, who sold to 56 owners of lands in the parish the great or rectorial tithes of their respective lands therein (but being himself an owner of lands in the parish he reserved the great or rectorial tithes of them), together with shares of the advowson and right of presentation to the vicarage; and, accordingly, by a deed dated the 16th June, 1688, he together with Rachel, his wife, as dowress, conveyed in fee simple the tithes so sold, together with the entire advowson, to Richard Palmer, Elias Booby alias Hearn, William Downing and Robert Liddon as trustees for the purchasers, and those trustees immediately afterwards, and in the same month, conveyed to each of the purchasers in fee simple his or her purchase share, but in various instances it has become difficult, if not impossible, to deduce titles from those purchasers to their shares of the advowson: the main cause of this probably is the few occasions that have since occurred for exercising the right of patronage, there having been but 5 vacancies in the vicarage between 1688 and 1846, at periods averaging about 50 years apart. The mode of electing the vicar is prescribed by the deed of 16th June, 1688. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. There are charities of about £85, arising from certain lands in the parish. Here are two grist mills. A stock fair is held yearly on the first Wednesday after the 11th of June. On the estate at Broadhayes are the well preserved remains of a Danish camp. Richard Marker esq. of Combe, Honiton, who is lord of the manor, Mrs. Knight, of Broadhayes, Mr. William George Michell, the trustees of T. P. Eames esq. and William Paterson esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; the subsoil is marl. The chief crops are hay and corn, with some fine dairy and pasture land. The area is 5,914 acres; rateable value, £6,378; the population in 1901 was 821.

STOCKLEIGH POMEROY is a parish and village, 4 miles north-east from Crediton station, on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 8 south-south-west from Tiverton and 8 north-north-west from Exeter, in the Northern division of the county, West Budleigh hundred, Crediton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, consecrated July 23rd, 1261, is a building of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 3 bells, two of which were recast and rehung in 1898 to commemorate the 60 years' reign of H.M. the late Queen Victoria, and bear an inscription to that effect; the treble bell has the word "MARIA" only in Lombardic characters, and the tenor bell the inscription "Voce mea viva depello cuncta nociva": the earlier portions of the fabric were originally Early English, but a Norman doorway with enriched moldings is also extant; the north aisle and arcade, added in 1453, are Perpendicular; there is a Jacobean pulpit and the remains of a Perpendicular screen, now at the west end: the church was thoroughly renovated in 1863, under the direction of Mr. W. White, architect, of London, and seated throughout with oaken benches, nearly one-half of which are ancient, and afford 120 sittings. The register dates from the year 1536. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £198, including 42 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1894 by the Rev. Thomas Henry Philpott B.A. of Durham University. The charities amount to £5 yearly. A sum of £4 for coals is also given yearly by Sir John D. Ferguson-Davie bart. and there is a clothing club for women and children. Lieut.-Col. Sir John Davie Ferguson-Davie bart. of Creedy Park, Crediton, is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is clay and red marl; subsoil, marl, interspersed with veins of rock and beds of skillett. The chief crops are wheat and roots. The area is 1,276 acres; rateable value, £1,250; the population in 1891 was 169.

STOKE CANON is a parish and village, on the rivers Culm and Exe, with a junction station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the main line and Exe Valley branch of the Great Western railway, and is 4 miles north-by-east from Exeter, 10 south from Tiverton and 191 from London, in the North Eastern division of the county, Wonford hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary Magdalene, rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1835, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of a small chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, of which the first and third date from 1691, the second 1641; the tenor was cast by Evans in 1724, and two others were added in 1886, cast by Messrs. Llewellyn and James, of Bristol: there is a very Early Norman font:

the organ was erected in 1879: there are four stained windows, and a monument to Elizabeth, wife of Dr. William Peterson, dean of Exeter, and daughter of Dr. Hall, bishop of Exeter, d. July, 1650: on the north wall is a monument with Latin inscription to Samuel, son of Bishop Hall, sub-dean of Exeter and rector of Stoke-in-Teignhead, d. 1674: the church was reseated in 1874, and has 240 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1654; marriages, 1656. The living is an ancient perpetual curacy, net yearly value £176, with residence and 2½ acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Frederick Robson M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Ebenezer Hall is a small mission hall erected in 1894. There are charities of £16 yearly value. On the river Culm, in this parish, the Stoke Canon paper mills, the property of Messrs. Frederick Tremlett and Co. afford employment to a number of hands. The Old Manor House, the ancient seat of the Rodd family, of Trebartha Hall, Cornwall, is now occupied by Charles Thomas Ford esq. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are lords of the manor, Capt. Reginald Walter Ralph Barnes, of the 4th Hussars, and the Earl of Idlesleigh C.B. are chief landowners. The soil is various; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are cereals and roots. The area is 1,235 acres of land and 30 of water; rateable value, £3,532; the population in 1901 was 383.

STOKE GABRIEL is a village and parish, on the eastern bank of the estuary of the Dart, 4 miles south-east from Totnes station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, and 7 south-west from Torquay, in the Torquay division of the county, hundred of Haytor, Paignton petty sessional division and county court district, Totnes union, and in the rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Gabriel is an ancient building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells; the first two were cast in 1845, the third and fifth in 1674; the fourth dates from 1648 and the tenor from 1827; in 1889 the entire peal was tuned and rehung: the chancel retains a piscina: the east window and two others are stained: in the south aisle is a brass to members of the Hunt family, and there are some remains of oak screens: the church was repaired and re-seated in 1855, and again restored in 1879, at a cost of £1,800, the greater part of which was given by Mrs. Olive Holdsworth Hunt: the chancel was re-seated and refitted in 1899: there are 300 sittings: in the churchyard is a very fine yew tree. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £209, with 3 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1881 by the Rev. John Henry Napper Nevill M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The sum of £10 yearly, accruing from the rent of the inn called "Church House," is devoted to the repairs of the church. The charities amount to about £10 10s. yearly, derived chiefly from the rents of some fields at Broadhempstone, and are distributed by the vicar and churchwardens in money. Here is a Baptist chapel. Stoke Gabriel was the birthplace of John Davis, the celebrated navigator of the North Seas, whose name has been given to the straits discovered by him in August, 1585, between Greenland and North America; he was killed by pirates on the coast of Malacca, December 27, 1605. Mazonet, the residence of Alexander Francis Garden Brown esq. is delightfully situated in the centre of park-like grounds, a short distance from the river Dart, and commands extensive views of the surrounding neighbourhood. About a mile and a half south-east from the village is Sandridge Park, formerly the residence of Charles Frederick, 11th and last Baron Cranstoun, d. 28th September, 1869, and now occupied by the Hon. Baroness de Virte: the mansion is surrounded by extremely rich and fine scenery. Waddeton Court, the residence of Col. Robert Wright Studdy, stands on an eminence about 2 miles south-east, and overlooks the broad reach of the Dart to Lower Dittisham; it is a mansion in the Elizabethan style, built on ground near the site of an older house, some remains of which are still standing; the interior retains some good specimens of ancient carving, and in the grounds is a private domestic chapel, in the Early English style, STOKE-IN-TEIGNHEAD is a parish and small village, in a fertile valley about 1 mile from the sea coast, $1\frac{1}{2}$ south from the mouth of the river Teign, which is here crossed by a bridge, and is about 3 miles south-west from Teignmouth station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 4 east from Newton Abbot and $5\frac{1}{2}$ north from Torquay, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Teignmouth petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter.

By Local Government Board Order 16,373, which took effect Mar. 24, 1884, all that portion of Stoke-in-Teignhead civil parish within Teignmouth Urban District was amalgamated with the parish of St. Nicholas, Teignmouth. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient cruciform edifice of rough stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, transepts, north porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, one recast and a new one added in 1887 at a cost of £100, in commemoration of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria: the chancel retains a Decorated piscina, and has three stained windows: there is a fine old brass, the earliest in Devon, c. 1375, bearing the effigy of a priest in chasuble, and wearing stole and maniple, richly embroidered: it was once in a cross, but has been relaid in a slab, inscribed in Latin to John Symon, canon of Exeter, prebendary of Kyrtton, Crantok and Heys, and rector here, ob. 30th May, 1497: on the floor of the nave is a heart-shaped brass, bearing emblems of mortality and an inscription in Norman-French to Elizabeth (Tawley), wife of Francis Furlong, of Loddeswill, 15th November, 1641: the chancel is divided from the nave by a remarkably fine carved oak screen, dating from the time of Richard II.: in 1867, a new chancel, of red sandstone, was erected by the family of the Rev. John N. Gould B.A. late rector, at a cost of about £900: the church was restored in 1895 at a cost of £1,400, and affords 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538, and is in perfect condition. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £261, including 39 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1879 by the Rev. Edward John Walter Stevenson M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge.

that of Sherford and the chapelry of Chivestone annexed, joint net yearly value £100, with 3 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Conrad William Curling Finzel M.A. of Oxford University. The Congregational chapel at Torcross was erected in 1884 at a cost of £600, and has sittings for 150 persons. Attached are schoolrooms. There is a reading room, erected and furnished by A. F. Holdsworth esq. for the use of parishioners. Coleridge, a mansion in the Elizabethan style, surrounded by shrubberies and grounds, is now a farmhouse. Widdicombe is a marine mansion, the seat of Arthur Frederick Holdsworth esq. J.P.; Stokeley, the property of Sir R. H. S. L. D. Newman bart. of Mamhead Park, Exeter, and now (1901) unoccupied, is a fine mansion, with grounds well laid out. A. F. Holdsworth esq. is lord of part of the manor, called the Priory, and Sir R. H. S. L. D. Newman bart. also holds part of the manorial rights. The soil is loamy; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, fruit, mangolds, with some rich pasture. The area is 5,774 acres of land, 168 of water and 122 of foreshore; rateable value, £7,578; the population of the parish in 1901 was 1,380.

Parish Clerk, Herbert Patey, Chillington.

TORCROSS, 1 mile south-east of Stokenham church, is a fishing hamlet and small watering place on the south coast, in Start Bay, and commands an uninterrupted view of the Channel: it has been much improved by the erection of a raised beach, forming a drive and promenade extending upwards of two miles, close to the sea shore, from Torcross to Slapton sands. The Start Point Lighthouse, easily reached by a walk along the coast, is about 4 miles from the Torcross hotel; a new lea has been made, covering nearly 40 acres, and is rented by Mr. William Vickery, the proprietor of the hotel, from A. F. Holdsworth esq. Arrangements have been made with the Government telegraph department by means of which casualties at sea can be reported by telegraph from Start Point lighthouse. Several residences were built here by the late Sir Lydston Newman bart. and others by A. F. Holdsworth esq. There is a lea of fresh water, abounding with pike, roach and perch, and, in the colder season, with wild fowl, some of which are very rare. By means of a weir the excess of water produced by heavy rains is carried through a cutting in the rock to the sea.

STOODLEIGH is a parish and small village, 5 miles south-south-west from Bampton station on the Exe Valley line of the Great Western railway and 5½ north-north-west from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred of Witheridge, Cullompton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of Tiverton West, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Margaret is an edifice of stone in the Early English and Later styles, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled tower, containing 6 bells: the edifice was restored during 1872-80, chiefly by members of the Daniel family and the Rev. J. Bockett M.A. late rector, at a cost of £2,300: the stained east window is a memorial to the late Thomas Daniel esq. d. 1872, and his wife, and was inserted in 1880; and there are others to the Daniel family. A clock, given by Mrs. Dunning, of Stoodleigh Court, was placed in the tower Feb. 1897: the church affords 304 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1603; marriages and burials, 1597. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £242, including 27 acres of glebe with residence, in the gift of Edwin Harris Dunning esq. of Stoodleigh Court, and held since 1898 by the Rev.

Edward Meadows Russell. The Carew charity yields about £16 5s. yearly. The Rev. Joseph Bockett, a former rector, left £300 in 1880 to be invested in government securities, which now produce £8 6s. 3d. annually. Stoodleigh Court is the residence of Edwin Harris Dunning esq. who is lord of the manor and chief landowner. Charles Henry Teale and John Blake esqrs. the Rev. William Turner, and Balliol College, Oxford, are also landowners in this parish. The soil is shallow and light, and the subsoil is clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 4,459 acres of land and 14 of water; rateable value, £2,972; the population in 1901 was 369.

STOWFORD is a parish and village in the valley of one of the tributary streams of the river Lyd, near the road from Okehampton to Launceston, 3 miles north-by-west from Coryton station and 3 east-by-north from Lifton station on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway and 7 north-east from Launceston, in the South-Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Tavistock union and county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is an edifice in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, with a north aisle, separated from it by a single arch and forming an organ chamber, south aisle with arcade of two arches, nave of three bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, of which the first is dated 1770, the next three 1710, and the tenor 1804: the panelled oak roof is carved and illuminated, and all the windows at the east end and in the north aisle of the nave are stained: there are several elaborately executed marble altar-tombs and mural monuments, mostly of the 18th century, with effigies, medallions and inscriptions to members of the Harris family: the church was restored in 1874 at a cost of £4,225, from designs by the late Sir George Gilbert Scott R.A. when a great profusion of carved oak-work was introduced: the beautiful bench ends, pulpit and organ-case being replicas of noted examples of oak carving existing in this and the adjacent counties: there are 140 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1707; marriages 1709. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £204, with residence and 55 acres of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1866 by the Rev. John Bidlake Wollicombe M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford. The church is endowed with land and cottages to the value of £52 yearly, for the repairs of the fabric and for the poor of the parish. There are Bible Christian and Baptist chapels at Portgate. Haine, the seat of Arthur Blackburn esq. who is lord of the manor and principal landowner, is a noble stone building in the Tudor-Gothic style, formerly the seat of the Harris family. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay and slate. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and pasture. The area is 2,059 acres of land and 21 of water; rateable value, £2,150; the population in 1891 was 326.

Letters through Lew Down R.S.O. which is the nearest money order office, arrive at 7 a.m.; the nearest telegraph offices are at Lifton & Coryton railway stations, both 3 miles distant STRETE is a large hamlet, formed into an ecclesiastical parish out of the civil parish of Blackawton, July 22, 1881; it is on the coast of Start bay, 5 miles south-west from Dartmouth, and about the same distance south-west from Kingswear terminal station on a branch of the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, Coleridge hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael, erected in 1836, at a cost of about £1,000, is a building of stone, in the Gothic style, and consists of nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: in 1838 a new pulpit of carved oak, executed by Hems, of Exeter, was presented by Mrs. Madden as a memorial to Col. Lewis Powell Madden, who died in 1887: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1836. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £86, with one acre of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Isaac Bonsall, who is also a surrogate. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Manor House, the property and residence of Henry Limbrey Toll esq. B.A., J.P. and Asherne, the residence of Miss Packs, are both pleasantly situated facing the sea. Henry Limbrey Toll esq. B.A., J.P. and the Right Hon. Charles Seale-Hayne P.C., M.P. of Kingswear, are the principal landowners. The population in 1901 was 374.

SUTCOMBE is a parish and village 6 miles north from Holworthy station, on a branch of the London and South Western railway, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Holworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter: the river Waldon flows through the parish and is crossed by a stone bridge of one arch. The church of St. Andrew is a very ancient building of stone, in the Norman and later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north and south chapels, north aisle and a small western tower, restored in 1899 at a cost of £280, and containing 3 bells, dated respectively 1611, 1720 and 1732: there is a plain Norman doorway and some remains of a beautifully carved oak rood screen, restored under the direction of Mr. R. Medley Fulford, architect, and a Jacobean pulpit: in the north chapel are flat stones bearing the arms of Prideaux and inscriptions to Humphrey Prideaux of Saldon esq. ob. 15 March, 1692; Ann, his daughter and heir, ob. 8 March, 1708; and John Prideaux of Saldon esq. her husband, ob. 16 June, 1706; Peter Prideaux, ob. Dec. 3, 1711, and Katherine (Kelland) his wife, ob. 10 April, 1706; in the south or Theuborough chapel are similar inscriptions with arms, to Thomasine (Hengscott), 1st wife of Nicholas Prideaux, gent. ob. 16 Aug. 1573; Humphrey Prideaux of Hankford, gent. ob. 9 April, 1664; Jonathan Prideaux of Theuborough esq. and Ann (Clark) his wife; Charles Davie of Bideford esq. ob. 11 July, 1742; and Frances Prideaux his wife, ob. 15 Jan. 1764: this aisle or chantry, possibly dedicated to St. Leonard, was probably founded and endowed by the family of De Esse, the ancient possessors of Theuborough, whose arms appear on the bosses of the nave and over the altar in the chantry, the east window of which contains five shields of arms, illustrating some descents and alliances of the Giffards; the capitals of the granite piers of the north arcade, dating from the 16th century, bear the arms of Prideaux, Hody and Spencer; and the easternmost bosses in the chancel display the arms of the ancient family of le Cornu; the bench ends are richly adorned with shields of arms of the De Esse, Giffard, Prideaux, Speecott, Dennis, Wyke, Spencer, and other families, and with panels and shields bearing various monograms: the east window is stained: there is a piscina in the chancel and one in the south chapel: the principal part of the church is paved with ancient tiles: the restoration of the church, partially effected in 1876 under Messrs. Bodley and Garner, architects, was continued in 1889 under the direction of Mr. R. M. Fulford and Messrs. Tait and Harvey, architects, of Exeter, at a cost of £720: it affords about 150 sittings. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1685; burials, 1684. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £220, including 50 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Jane Ravenhill, and held since 1890 by the Rev. William Henry Ravenhill. Here are Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels. Sir W. Morice's charity of about £68 yearly is for the support of inmates of the six almshouses in this parish. There is no manor. The principal landowners are the trustees of the late W. Yeo esq. The soil is light loam; subsoil, clay and stone rubble. The chief crops are oats and wheat. The area is 2,872 acres of land and 6 of water; rateable value, £1,441; the population in 1901 was 281.

By Local Government Board Order, 14,690, a detached part of this parish known as Little Sutcombe was transferred to Pancrasweek, March 24, 1884.

SWYMBRIDGE (or Swimbridge) is a parish and village seated in a hollow surrounded by hills, and on the road from Tiverton and South Molton to Barnstaple, with a station on the Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western railway, and is 4½ miles east-south-east from Barnstaple and 204 miles from London, in the North Western division of the county, South Molton hundred, Braunton petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwill, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James is a fine building of stone in the Late Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with aisles, north transept, which retains an ancient piscina, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western tower of the Decorated period, with spire, and containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast in 1753, by William Evans, of Chestport: on the south side of the chancel is St. Bridget's chantry chapel, built by the Mules family, of Ernesborough: the bosses of the roof are adorned with emblazoned shields of the D'Abernon, Denys, Cary, Mules and Orchard families and it has a stained window: the north aisle was built by Sir John Moeles, or Mules, whose family, a younger branch of the Lords Moels, were for some generations seated at Ernesborough, now called Irishborough, in this parish: there are several monuments and memorial on copper to the Chichester and other families, and a stone pulpit, with figures of saints: the oak rood screen, restored under the direction of Mr. J. L. Pearson R.A., F.S.A. is remarkable for the marvellous delicacy and beauty of its carving: the font is inclosed within a screen of carved oak and there is a reredos of alabaster and marble, erected in 1894 as a memorial to the late John Smyth esq.: the church was restored in 1880, at a cost of £4,000, and has 250 sittings. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1563; burials, 1562. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £295, with residence and 58 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Henry Harrison, of Edinburgh University. The reversion of the great tithes of Swymbridge, which have been held under lease by the Nott family for the last century, is now vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The chapel of ease at Travellers' Rest, on the south side of the parish, built in 1866, at a cost of £1,500, is an edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a turret containing one bell: there are 200 sittings. Stone Cross chapel, at Gunn, in the extreme north of the parish, built in 1871, at a cost of £500, is an edifice of brick and stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and south porch, and has 100 sittings. There are also Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. The charities and poor's lands produce an amount between £180 and £190, but vary according to rental. There is a tannery here, employing a number of hands. Irishborough manor house, of which only a tower remained in 1773, was the birth-place, in 1554, of John Cowell LL.D. and master of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, author of "The Interpreter," a well-known dictionary of law terms. The manor now belongs to the Rev. Henry Tubal Hole M.A. rector of Plympton St. Maurice. Cobbaton House (or West Cobbaton), once the seat of the Burys, afterwards came to the Notts: John Nott acted in a transfer of parish land in 1524: Mary Nott, by her marriage with William Thorne, brought it to the latter family, and it now belongs to the representatives of the late William Thorne esq. of the ancient family of Thorne, or de Spineto, of Sampford Spinney and Thorne, which family has existed since the time of King John. Bydown, a large and imposing mansion in the Classic style, with a very fine pillared and domed entrance hall, was formerly owned by the Mayne and Chichester families, but is now the property of John Nott Pyke-Nott esq. B.A.Oxon, whose ancestor purchased and rebuilt it, and is the residence at present of Thomas Frederick Parkinson esq.: the Notts have been substantial yeomen here since 1567. Tordown is the property and residence of Frederick Richard Harding-Nott esq. Dennington, late the property of Col. Bury Russell, now belongs to the Rev. W. H. Thompson. Irishborough belongs to the Holes. Dinnaton is also the property of the Rev. W. H. Thompson. East Stowford is the property of A. C. G. Chichester esq. and West Stowford of J. Skynner esq. Stowford belongs to Augustus Charles Gustavus Skynner esq.; the Barton of Hannaford to William Lewis Hole esq. and the manor of Tree to — Bartlett esq. The Yeo family have lived on the estate, which was formerly the Duke of Bedford's, and now the property of the Rev. W. H. Thompson, for the last 300 years. The Duke of Bedford is lord of the manor, J. N. Pyke-Nott esq. Earl Fortescue, who is lord of Yarmacott, A. Charles Chichester esq. D.L. who is lord of the manor of Accot, Henry Chichester esq. William Burden esq. Mr. W. H. Darch, F. R. Harding-Nott esq. F. R. Hole esq. Mrs. Ponsford, the Messrs. H. S. and S. Watts, R. L. Hole and Messrs. W. Smyth and Son are the chief landowners. The soil is loamy; sub-soil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The acreage is 7,141; assessable value, £4,765; the population in 1901 was 1,106.

ACCOT is $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east; NEWLAND is 1 mile north-west; TRAVELLERS' REST is $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles south; STOWFORD is 4 miles south-east; GUNN is 3 miles north and STONE CROSS is 3 miles north-east. Sexton, John Buzzacott.

Post Office.—William Brayley, sub-postmaster. Letters through Barnstaple by mail cart, arrive at 7.30 a.m. & 3.30 p.m.; dispatched at 6.10 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order office is at Landkey Newland; telegraph office, for dispatches only, at Swymbridge railway station, & for delivery at Landkey Newland, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles distant

SYDENHAM DAMEREL (or South Sydenham) is a parish and small village, on the eastern bank of the river Tamar, which separates it from Cornwall, and about 6 miles west-by-north from Tavistock station on the London and South Western or Great Western railways, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred, Tavistock petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a small building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with four pinnacles, containing 5 bells, all recast in 1778 by John Pennington and Co.; the church was restored in 1864, and has 165 sittings. The register dates from the year 1530. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £180, with 100 acres of glebe, in the gift of John Carpenter-Garnier esq. and held since 1900 by the Rev. Marmaduke Spicer Shaw LL.B. of the University of London. There is a Bible Christian chapel here, built in 1832. The poor have £20 yearly from Tremayne's charity. John Carpenter-Garnier esq. of Rookesbury Park, Fareham, Hants, is lord of the manor, and the principal landowner. The soil is loamy; subsoil, spar-stone. The chief crops are oats, wheat, barley and pasturage. The area is 1,374 acres; rateable value, £1,540; the population in 1891 was 351.

TALATON (or Tallaton) is a parish and village, standing on a bold eminence, 2 miles west from Sidmouth Junction station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 7 west from Honiton and 11 north-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Honiton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James, rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1860, at a cost of £2,000, is an edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel with aisle, nave with aisles and a western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells: there are eight stained windows, a fine oak screen and a Norman font and several monuments to the Harward and Amyatt families: there are 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1621. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £320, including 100 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1898 by the Rev. Richard Jenkins M.A., L.Th. of Durham University. The charities of the parish amount to £20 yearly. The Right Hon. Sir John Henry Kennaway bart. P.C., M.P., M.A., D.L., J.P. is lord of the manor and resides at Escot House, about a mile south-east of the village: the mansion, which stands in a well-wooded park of 66 acres, was rebuilt on the site of the former one,

TAMERTON FOLIOT, once a market town, is a parish and large village, pleasantly seated on a creek at the confluence of the rivers Tavy and Tamar, with a station, opened in Dec. 1897, about 1½ miles west of the village, on the London and South Western railway, 3 south-west from Bickleigh station, on the Tavistock and Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, 5 north from Plymouth and 10 south from Tavistock, in the Western division of the county, Roborough hundred, Midland Roborough petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union, county court district of East Stonehouse, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The name of this place derives its suffix from the Foliot, who resided at Warleigh in this parish. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, the greater part of it having been renewed since 1850, and consists of quasi-chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, all cast by the Penningtons in 1773, and a clock given by his brothers and sisters, in memory of the late Mr. Mark E. Grigg, who died in Egypt in February, 1896; in the north aisle is an altar-tomb, with recumbent effigies of a knight and lady; the former is in plate armour, and wears a bascinet with camail and a hauberk covered by a tunic on which is the device of a "Gorge," or whirlpool, represented by three circles, one within the other; the lady wears a close-fitting dress, square head-dress and mantle; the heads of both figures are supported by angels; they probably represent one of the Gorges family and his wife, resident here about 1346; next the Tower screen is a flat stone, inscribed to Samuel Madock esq. of Plymouth, d. 2 Dec. 1773, and the Hon. Isabella (Mohun), his wife, with their daughter Catherine, d. 1712; and there are also monuments to the Copleston, Radcliffe and Bampfylde families and memorial windows to General Macan, placed there by his nephew in 1887 and to Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams Grigg, Mr. and Mrs. Lilliecap and Mrs. Symons and Mrs. Cornish their daughters. In 1889 a Faculty was obtained to remove the west gallery; the tower arch was then opened and a screen erected; the floor of the belfry was also relaid, the font placed in a baptistery in the south aisle, and a lightning conductor fixed to the tower, at the cost of the Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. of Maristow. In 1895 the church was further restored, under the superintendence of Mr. G. H. Fellowes Prynne, the chancel and north aisle being rebuilt, and the roof renewed, a carved oak communion table and choir stalls provided, and an organ erected at a cost of £340. The church affords 340 sittings. The register dates from the year 1794; all the earlier registers were accidentally destroyed by fire. The living, formerly attached to the priory of Plympton, is a vicarage, net yearly income £220, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1870 by the Rev. Edward Roberts M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. At Down House is a mission room, in which services are held on Sunday. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, with sittings for 150 persons. Crown Hill Convalescent Home, standing on an elevated position, was opened November, 1894, and is available for 24 patients. The poor have about £60 yearly, derived from the Maristow charity and the gifts of Lady Modyford and others. On the green near the church stands the "Copleston" oak, the traditional site of a murder by a member of that family, and described as "the fatal oak" in Mrs. Bray's novel "Warleigh." Maristow, originally Martinstowe, the residence of the Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C., M.A., D.L., J.P. is delightfully situated on the Tavy, nearly 3 miles north: here George III. and three of the princesses were on one occasion entertained: a private chapel, rebuilt in 1877 by Sir Massey Lopes bart. occupies the site of the old chapel of St. Martin, the ruins of which still remain: the well of St. Martin also stands in the grounds. Up-lands is the residence of Francis Edward Fox esq. J.P. and Cann House, that of Henry William Grigg esq.;

several other good residences are also within the parish. The manor, anciently held by the Foliots, descended through their heiress to the Gorges family, and from these, by female heirs, to the families of Bonville, Copleston and Bampfylde. Gilbert Foliot, bishop of Hereford (1149-63) and of London (1163-89), was a native of this parish. Warleigh, the ancient manor house, on the banks of the Tavy, 1 mile north-west from the village, and formerly belonging to the Foliot family is now the residence of Walter John Deacon Radcliffe esq. J.P. Mrs. Radcliffe, who is lady of the manor, and the Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. lord of the manor of Bickleigh, are the chief landowners. The soil is mixed; subsoil, slate. The crops are wheat, barley, oats and green crops, in addition to market garden produce, fine fruit and flowers. The area is 4,774 acres of land, 1 of water, 33 of tidal water and 251 of foreshore; rateable value, £9,610; the population in 1901 was 1,102.

TAVISTOCK.

TAVISTOCK is an ancient prescriptive borough, one of the four stannary towns of Devonshire, a parish, head of a union, county court district and petty sessional division, in the Western division of the county, Tavistock hundred, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter, 15 miles north from Plymouth, 205 from London, 14 south-east from Launceston, 9 northeast from Callington, 16 south-west from Okehampton, 23 west from Ashburton and 33 west-south-west from Exeter. It is picturesquely situated in the valley of the Tavy, from which its name is derived, amongst the downs and hills on the western border of Dartmoor. Cudliptown, an outlying manor, about 5 miles north-east from the town, was, by an Order, 25th March, 1884, added to Peter Tavy, under the Divided Parishes Act (45 and 46 Vict. c. 58). The parish is bounded on the west by the navigable river Tamar, to which a canal (four miles in length) was cut in 1817 from Tavistock to Morwellham, where the Tamar is navigable for vessels of 200 tons burthen. In 1859 the town obtained railway communication by the opening of a branch line of the South Devon (Great Western) railway from Plymouth, afterwards continued to Launceston, with which traffic commenced in 1865. In 1889, the London and South Western railway company constructed an independent line to Plymouth from Liddford, passing through Tavistock.

Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. ch. 73), the ancient parish of Tavistock has been divided into two, Tavistock Urban and Tavistock Hamlets.

The borough formerly returned two members to Parliament, but under the provisions of the "Representation of the People Act, 1867," the number was reduced to one, and by the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," the representation was merged into that of the Western or Tavistock Division of the County.

The government of the borough, formerly vested in a portreeve, and later by the Rural Sanitary Authority, was, under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," held by a Rural District Council until 1894, but from that date to 1898 by a Parish Council, when the Local Government Board conferred Urban powers on the town, which is now governed by an Urban District Council of fifteen members. The municipal character of the town was abolished by the "Unreformed Corporations Act, 1883" (46 and 47 Vict. c. 18), and a Highway Board, the latter constituted No. 10. 1863, but the duties were transferred to the Rural District Council.

The parish of Tavistock Hamlets is governed under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," by the Parish Council.

The town was vastly improved in the year 1845, principally at the cost of Francis, 7th Duke of Bedford, who established a complete system of sewerage, furnished the town with a plentiful supply of pure water, and undertook the erection of improved dwellings for labourers, in addition to various improvements in the Abbey buildings and Market. The town is well lighted with gas, for which works were established in 1831.

Tavistock gives the title of marquess to the Russells, dukes of Bedford.

The parish church of St. Eustachius is a large and handsome building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave, one north and two south aisles and an embattled western tower 106 feet in height, with pinnacles, supported on four open arches, forming a west porch and constituting the principal entrance to the church: the tower contains an illuminated clock, with chimes and a peal of 8 bells, all cast in 1760: in the chancel is a monument of alabaster and Devonshire marble to John Glanville, a Justice of the Common Pleas, ob. July 27, 1600, with his recumbent effigy, attired in judicial robes; and at the base of the monument is the kneeling figure of his wife Alice (Skirret), who erected it: opposite is another memorial with the recumbent figures of John Fytz, of Fytzford, ob. 8 Jan. 1589, and his wife Mary, daughter and heiress of John Sydenham, of Brimpton, Somerset; at the back is a figure of their son John, a lad kneeling before a desk with a book open upon it; this was the unfortunate Sir John Fytz, father of the notorious Lady Howard, who killed himself at Twickenham, where he was buried, and with him the Fytz family of Tavistock came to an end: there are also memorials to the families of Willeford, Fortescue and Manaton: in the church are preserved some human bones of unusual size, found in a stone coffin during excavations for the foundation of the Bedford hotel, said to be the bones of Ordulph, son of the founder of the Abbey, who is known to have been a man of immense stature, and of his wife. The church was thoroughly renovated in 1844-5, when a carved stone pulpit and organ screen and open seats of oak were introduced: more recently a brass eagle lectern, an exact facsimile of that at Southwell Minster, originally in Newstead Abbey, has been presented by the 9th Duke of Bedford K.G.: the west window was restored and filled with stained glass by the late Mr. W. Lethbridge, of London, a native of Tavistock, in memory of his father. Mr. Reginald Gill, banker, of this town, erected a stained window, designed by his brother-in-law, the late Wm. Morris F.S.A. author of "The Earthly Paradise," as a memorial to his father, John Hornbrook Gill esq. d. 1874, to whose memory another window of Munich glass has also been erected by his personal friends: and there are several other stained windows. In 1879, the organ of 1844 was repaired, enlarged and improved at a cost of over £500, half of which was contributed by the 9th Duke of Bedford; the oak screen was at the same time completed, and filled in with figures and musical emblems exquisitely carved. In 1890 a monument in alabaster and white marble was erected to the Bredall family, many of whom were medical men in Tavistock; the work, carefully executed by Mr. Harry Hems, of Exeter, is a fine rendering in sculpture of Max's painting of "Christ the Healer": the church affords sittings for 1,030 persons. The register dates from the year 1614; there are also churchwardens' accounts from 1385, and in the care of the vicar are a number of deeds dating from 1285 (Edward I.). The living is a vicarage, net yearly value, £471, with residence, in the gift of the Duke of Bedford, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Henry Godfray Le Neven M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford, rural dean of Tavistock and surrogate. In the vicarage garden are three ancient inscribed stones, two of which were formerly at Buckland Monachorum.

ST. PAUL'S, GULWORTHY, is an ecclesiastical parish, formed Feb. 23, 1858. The church, erected in 1854, at the sole cost of Francis, 7th Duke of Bedford K.G. is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, north and south porches and a turret containing one bell: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1854. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £197, with residence, in the gift of the Duke of Bedford, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Ernest Edward Becher Skinner M.A. of St. Peter's College, Cambridge.

Fitzford church, at the west end of the town, near the site of the old Fitzford mansion, was erected in 1866-7, as a chapel of ease to the parish church, by William, 8th Duke of Bedford, at a cost of £15,000: it is a building of stone, in the Lombardo-Venetian style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles, south porch and a detached tower containing one bell.

The Congregational church, in Brook street, opened August 13, 1873, is a building of native stone, with granite and Portland and Bath stone dressings, in the Gothic style, erected from designs by Messrs. J. Tarring and Son, architects, of London, at a cost of about £6,600, on a site granted by the 9th Duke of Bedford K.G. who was also a liberal contributor; one end of the edifice is apsidal and is lighted by stained windows, erected as memorials to Mr. Alfred Booker, who died of fever in Syria: the tower and spire, 133 feet high, are built of limestone with granite bands: there are sittings for about 700 persons: the adjoining schools include a large lecture hall, capable of holding 500 children, an infants' school-room and eight excellent class-rooms.

The Wesleyan chapel, in Chapel street, has 580 sittings. The Unitarian (formerly Presbyterian) chapel, at Abbey buildings, has 250 sittings. The United Methodist Free Church chapel, in Russell street, will seat 500 persons. The Bible Christian chapel is in Bannawell street, and holds 400 persons. The Brethren meet in rooms over the old Butter Market.

The Cemetery, in Dolvin road, was opened in 1834, the site being given by John, 6th Duke of Bedford K.G.

The New Cemetery, in Plymouth road, contains between five and six acres, given by the 9th Duke of Bedford K.G.; it has a mortuary chapel and gate house, of Dartmoor granite; the total cost was £10,000. Both cemeteries are under the control of a joint burial committee appointed by the Urban District Council and the Tavistock Hamlets Parish Council.

The Guildhall, erected in 1848, on part of the site of the Abbey, and in a similar style, comprises a petty sessions and county court, magistrates' room, six cells, a dwelling for the police sergeant and a fire engine station: in front of this building is a bronze statue, mounted on a granite pedestal, of Francis, 7th Duke of Bedford, who died May 14, 1861. The common seal of the borough displays the coat of the Russells, surmounted by an earl's coronet, and surrounded by the legend, "ÆRMA . DNI . LIBERT' . DE . TAVISTOCK."

The New Hall, a noble building of stone, also erected on part of the site of the ancient abbey, is a building in the Gothic style, and contains a very fine room, in which concerts and other entertainments are held, holding about 800 persons; the rooms below are used as an armoury by the K and L Companies 2nd (Prince of Wales's) Volunteer Battalion Devonshire Regiment.

The main industry on which Tavistock depends, i.e. copper mining, is in a depressed condition. There are still over 400 persons employed by the Devon Great Consols Co. but the profit is made by the sale of arsenic, which is extracted from the copper ore. Gawton, from which large returns of arsenic are making, and the Wheal Crebor Copper Mining Co. are also working. There is a small brewery, an iron foundry, engineering works and a steam laundry; woolcombing is also carried on.

The market is held on Friday in each week for vegetables, corn, cattle and general produce. Early closing day, Wednesday, at 2 p.m.

Large and convenient market buildings, covering more than two acres of ground, were erected in 1858 by Francis, 7th Duke of Bedford K.G.; the centre is a general market, whilst around are stalls for butchers, earthenware dealers and others; there is also a weighing house, a shed for hanging carcasses, and good standing room for carts, whilst adjoining are spacious slaughter houses. The cattle market is at Crelake, contiguous to the railway station; cattle fairs are held on the second Wednesday in every month. The goose fair takes place on the second Wednesday in October, for cattle, horses and pleasure.

The Corn Market is a building of granite, erected in 1838.

The public swimming bath, in Trelawny road, formed by Francis, 9th Duke of Bedford K.G. in 1883, at a cost of nearly £500, is 80 feet long and 40 feet wide, and has a varying depth of from 3 to 6 feet 6 inches; dressing boxes and other conveniences are attached: the property is vested in a committee of management.

An exhibition of flowers and vegetable produce is held yearly in the Market house by the Tavistock Cottage Garden Society.

The Bedford hotel, a large castellated building, with which some portions of the abbey are incorporated, was erected about 1720, by Wriothesley, 3rd Duke of Bedford, who intended it as an occasional residence; it was enlarged by Francis, 7th Duke of Bedford K.G. and is elegantly appointed.

The Queen's Head family and commercial hotel, in the centre of the town, has been greatly improved, and new rooms added; fishing, hunting and golf may be obtained in the immediate neighbourhood.

A newspaper, "The Tavistock Gazette," is published every Friday, by Mr. T. W. Greenfield, for the Tavistock Printing Company Limited, of 4 Bedford square.

The Tavistock Library and Recreation Rooms, established in 1799, are in the Abbey buildings: the library contains 15,000 volumes, and there are 125 members. A meteorological register has been kept by the librarian since 1841.

The Constitutional Club, in Drake road, was erected in 1896.

A bronze statue of Admiral Sir Francis Drake, the work of the late Sir J. E. Boehm bart. R.A. was erected at Fitzford, at the west end of the town, in 1883, by the 9th Duke of Bedford K.G.: the statue represents the admiral with a mariner's compass in his hand, and stands on a massive granite pedestal 10 feet in height, which is ornamented with scenes in relief from his career.

The Mechanics' and Literary Institution and Recreation Rooms, established in 1834, are in Duke street, and include a library of 3,000 volumes; there are 150 members.

Watt's charity consists of a considerable quantity of land and houses, with a present income of nearly £270 yearly, applied to the relief of poor people, and is managed by a body of 20 trustees. The Ford Street charity originally consisted of property which was bought up some years since, but the Duke of Bedford, having purchased the rent-charge, the money therefrom arising has been invested in the name of the official receiver and the income is paid to the trustees and given by them to the poor. Maynard's charity supports an almshouse occupied by four couples; and another almshouse, for four widows, the gift of Lord Courtenay.

Hill, was erected in 1896 at a cost of about £3,000, and has 14 beds.

The Meadows Pleasure Grounds, consisting of about 10 acres, have been leased to the Urban District Council by the present Duke of Bedford for 21 years from 1898, at a nominal rent.

Here once stood the magnificent Benedictine abbey of SS. Mary and Rumon, supposed to have been first founded in 961 by Ordgar, Earl of Devon, father of Elfrida, queen of King Edgar, and Ordulf, his son, and re-established as a Benedictine monastery in 1457-8; it was one of the richest monastic establishments in the West of England, and in 997 the Danish fleet, under Sweyn, anchoring at the mouth of the Tamar, landed a marauding band, by whom the abbey was plundered and burnt: it became a mitred abbey, 22nd Jan. 1513, when Henry VIII. bestowed this distinction on Abbot Richard Banham: the abbey was surrendered, 26th April, 1540, by his successor, John Peryn, its revenues being then valued at £902 5s. 7d. a year, and there being then 22 monks; it was subsequently given to John Lord Russell, Ann, his wife, and their heirs male, from whom it has descended to the present Duke of Bedford: the remains of this once splendid abbey are now inconceivable; the great church, said to have been 378 feet long, exclusive of the lady chapel, was finally removed in 1670, and the only fragment of it now existing is a small portion of one of its walls, with a sepulchral recess formed by an arch of Early English character, within which is an arcading of small trefoiled arches on corbels; other portions of the buildings have been incorporated, as before stated, in the Bedford hotel; the Perpendicular north gateway has been completely restored: the frater (refectory) serves as a Unitarian chapel, and has a fine portico. In the vicarage ground are the ivy-covered ruins known as "Betsy Grimbald's tower," and the still-house, the former being so called from some vague tradition that a female of that name once made it her abode. The second printing press set up in England was at this abbey.

Fitzford, at the west end of the town, was the seat from the time of Henry VI. of the Fitz family: the ancient gateway still remains. Kilworthy House, 1½ miles north of the town, long the seat of the Glanville family, is the property of the Duke of Bedford, and now occupied by George Bland Battams esq. Morwell House, about 3 miles west of the town, now occupied by a farmer, was the country seat of the Abbots of Tavistock, and is a quadrangular building of stone, with an interior court and a gate house, erected in the 15th century. Mount Tavy, about a mile east of the town, the property and residence of William Holzappel esq. is seated on an eminence and commands a delightful view of the town.

The Duke of Bedford is lord of the manor and owner of most of the parish.

The area of the Urban parish is 1,551 acres, of which about 152 acres are comprised within the town, 21 of tidal water; rateable value, £20,341; the population in 1891 was 6,252, including 5 officers and 96 inmates in the workhouse, in 1901 was 4,728.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1891 was, St. Eustachius (parish church), 5,439 and St. Paul, 884.

By Local Government Board Order 15,033, Cudliptown, which then included Tavistock Hamlets, was transferred from the parish of Tavistock to Petertavy, March 25th, 1885.

The parish of Tavistock Hamlets, since formed, has an area of 9,952 acres, 42 of water, 21 of tidal water and 8 of foreshore; rateable value, £12,278.

Verger, St. Eustachius, William Goodman Frise.

SCHOOLS.

The Grammar School, endowed by Francis, Duke of Bedford, with £20,000 2½ per cent. Consols, was opened in 1895, and supplies a higher class of education than elementary to boys of Tavistock & neighbourhood. The buildings are situated on the Plymouth road, near Drake's statue. Pupils are prepared for commercial & other careers, as well as for various Local Examinations. The school receives an annual grant from the Devon County Council, in connection with which instruction in drawing is given at the Tavistock Art School. Head master, J. J. Alexander M.A. late scholar of St. John's College, Cambridge; assistant masters, Sidney E. Radley & Charles Dams; visiting French master, H. W. Preston M.A.

Kelly College, founded in accordance with a bequest of the late Admiral Benedictus Marwood Kelly, & opened in Sept. 1877, is about a mile from the centre of the town, on the Okehampton road: the buildings, including the school house & the head master's house, stand on a raised terrace on the side of a hill, overlooking the valley of the Tavy & commanding a splendid view of the borders & some of the "tors" of Dartmoor, & are constructed of Hurdwick & Ham Hill stone, in the Early Perpendicular style: they consist of two distinct blocks, connected by an open corridor; that on the right is the college proper, containing two ante-rooms, twelve class rooms & a large school room, 73½ feet by 30 & 50 feet high; there is also a fine library, with open timber roof, a museum & a laboratory: the head master's house has provision for about fifty boarders; between the college & the road is a spacious playground of 10 acres, containing a cricket pavilion, a gymnasium 55 feet by 25 feet, a large swimming bath filled by a pure stream of water, five courts, a carpenter's shop, smithy & golf links, & a second boarding house added in 1890, for 50 additional boarders, & was named "Courtenay House," in memory of the Earl of Devon, one of the original trustees: the endowments of the foundation are devoted to the education of the founder's kin & of the orphan sons of naval officers; but with this is combined full provision for a first-grade public school, preparing pupils for the universities & for the army or navy & other examinations. The School Cadet Corps is attached to the 2nd Vol. Batt. Devon Regiment. Rev. William Hermann David M.A. of New College, Oxford, head master; Thomas Agnew May M.A. Percy L. Andrewes M.A. Walter B. Wood M.A. William Linnell B.A. Alfred O. V. TAVY ST. PETER, see Peter Tavy.

TAWSTOCK is a parish and village, on the west bank of the river Taw, 2 miles south from Barnstaple station on the London and South Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Fremington hundred. Braunton petty seosomal division, Barnstaple union and county court district, and in the rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. Chapelton station is in this parish. The church of St. Peter, picturesquely situated on rising ground and surrounded by fine trees, is an ancient cruciform building of stone, in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel with south chapel, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and a lofty embattled central tower of three stages, with pinnacles at the angles and containing 6 fine-toned bells, dating from 1753 to 1794; the aisles are also embattled: there are two very good screens: the east window in the south transept is stained, and the chancel retains a piscina and credence: in the church is an altar tomb, with recumbent effigy to Frances (Kitson), wife of John (Bourchier), Lord Fitzwarine, ob. 1586; another altar tomb bears the recumbent effigies of William (Bourchier), 5th Baron Fitzwarine, and 3rd Earl of Bath, ob. 1636, and the Lady Elizabeth (Russell), his 1st wife; on the tomb are also three small kneeling effigies; to Henry, 5th and last earl, ob. 1634, there is a large tomb with griffin supporters, and to his wife, the Lady Rachel (Fane), there is a standing figure of white marble, on a pedestal: within a recessed arch on the north side of the chancel is a recumbent effigy of a lady of the 14th century, in wimple and mantle: in the Wrey chapel is a fine cenotaph, to the late Lady Wren, d. 1896; it was designed by her daughter Florence, and executed by Hems, of Exeter: the churchyard is entered from the south by a good lych gate: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, with the chapelry of Harracott annexed, net yearly value £550, with residence and 111 acres of glebe, in the gift of Commander Sir Robert Bourchier Sherard Wrey bart. R.N. and held since 1893 by the Rev. Albany Bourchier Sherard Wrey M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. There is a Baptist chapel at Eastcombe and Bible Christian and Baptist chapels at Hiscott. The poor of the manor of Tawstock have the rent of 22a. 2r. 27p. left by the Countess of Bath; this and other charities produce about £94 yearly. Tawstock Court, the property and residence of Commander Sir Robert Bourchier Sherard Wrey bart. R.N. is a handsome mansion, beautifully situated, with an ancient gateway, dated 1574, the only remains of the original house, burnt down in NORTH TAWTON is a small market town and parish near the old road from Exeter to Okehampton, and on the river Taw, which is here crossed by a bridge of four arches, leading to Hatherleigh and Okehampton, with a station on the London and South Western railway, 1½ miles south from the town, and is 20 miles north-west from Exeter, 12 west from Crediton, 8 east-by-south from Hatherleigh, 7 north-east from Okehampton and 190½ from London, in the Northern division of the county, North Tawton hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Water was conveyed into the town from Slade farm, through iron pipes, in the year 1851, at an expense of £600, raised in shares of £5 each, and the Okehampton Rural District Council have since taken steps to provide a further supply, at a cost of £2,500; gas works were erected in 1869, at a cost of £750, and are the property of Henry Gibbings esq. A complete system of drainage was carried out in 1894-5, under the superintendence of Edward Ellis C.E. of Exeter, at a cost of £700. The church of St. Peter is an ancient building of rubble and granite, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of six bays, aisles, south porch and a western tower with shingled broach spire, renovated in 1900, and containing a clock, dated 1640, and 8 bells, 6 of which were recast in 1765-70 from a previous peal of four; two new bells were added in 1900, one being presented by Henry Gibbings esq. and family and the other by the parishioners: the tower is of rubble, with walls of great thickness, and is probably Early English work: the roof of the nave is of panelled oak, the wall plate and bosses being elegantly carved: there are stained windows at the east end of each aisle, and one in the south to John Chapple, d. 1879, and Loveday his wife, d. 1858: in the north aisle is a memorial window, with an inscription on brass below it to Sir Edward Gostwyck bart. d. 1766, and Loveday (Gostwyck), his wife, d. 1786; and to Josias Gard, d. 1825, erected in 1869 by Agnes (Gostwyck), wife of Josiah Gard; she died December 9th, 1870: there is another window in the south aisle with similar inscription to John Kelland Durant, d. 1877, and Sarah Luccombe, his wife, d. 1836: in May, 1893, a memorial window was erected by Mr. John Jackman, of Welling, Kent, a native of this town, to members of his family, and there are fragments of ancient stained glass 1787; the grounds cover 11 acres. Commander Sir R. B. S. Wrey bart. R.N. who is lord of Tawstock manor, and Lord Alington lord of Templeton manor, are the principal landowners. The soil varies, and in some parts is rich; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley, mangold, turnips &c. The area is 6,597 acres of land, 26 of water; assessable value, £6,247; the population in 1901 was 1,206.

in the windows of the north aisle: in 1900, a brass was placed in the church to commemorate the Jubilee of the rectorship of the Rev. Robert Hole, and a memorial window erected by William Durant esq. and family, to the late John Durant esq.: on the north side of the church is a lime-tree avenue, terminating with a lych-gate; there is also a sun-dial fixed on the south wall of the tower: the church affords 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £600, with 91 acres of glebe, valued at £160, and residence, in the gift of and held since 1850 by the Rev. Robert Hole B.A. of University College, Oxford; surrogate, and J.P. There is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1834, with 300 sittings; one for Bible Christians, seating 150 persons; and a meeting-room for Plymouth Brethren, with 60 sittings. The Market-house was erected in 1849; petty sessions are held here alternately with Chulmleigh. A clock tower of red brick with free-stone dressings, from designs by Mr. R. Medley Fulford, architect, of Exeter, was erected in the square by public subscription in 1887, at a cost of £130. Here are large woollen mills, a branch factory belonging to Messrs. J. Shaw and Sons Limited, of Halifax, enlarged in 1887, and employing about 150 persons in the manufacture of serges and top making; here also are Mr. J. C. Tavener's flour mills, which are lit by electricity. The market is held on Thursday. Fairs for cattle and horses are held on the 3rd Tuesday in April, 2nd Tuesday in October and a fat stock show 1st Tuesday in December, and great markets are held on the last Thursdays in February and June, and 1st Thursday in August. On the hill overlooking the town is a wooden house brought from Norway, the property and residence of Lady Constable. About a mile from the town is a hollow in the ground called "Bathe Pool," usually dry, but which occasionally fills with water and overflows. The poor have £1 16s. 8d. yearly, distributed in bread; C. Kelland in 1758 left £20; and in 1887 the Kelland-De Bathe charity of £1 yearly was founded by W. H. Kelland esq. as a memorial to Richard Kelland, of Lapford and De Bathe, ob. 1603. The manor was formerly in the St. Leger family, but was sold by Adam Pierce and others in 1718 to the Hon. Newton Fellowes, from whom it has descended to the Earl of Portsmouth. Near the church is a moated site called Court Green, supposed to have been the ancient seat of the Valletorts. The manor of Crook Burnell, alias Stone, has belonged for a considerable period to the Sturt family, now represented by Lord Alington. Ashridge is the property of E. C. Nicholls esq. The barton of Bathe or De Bathonia gave name to the family of Bathe, and was the seat of Lord Chief Justice De Bathe in 1252; his heirs carried it into the female line, and it was purchased in 1591 from Lady Margaret Poulett by Richard Kelland esq. of Lapford, and descended to his representative W. H. Kelland esq. of Kelland, who rebuilt it in 1875-6 and sold it in 1877 to Gen. Sir H. P. De Bathe, a lineal descendant of the original owners. The barton of Nicholas, or Nichols Nymet, belonged to the late Rev. T. Hole; the house and grounds are now the property of T. Wreford esq. of Exeter. Nichols Nymet belongs to Mr. Thomas James Axford, and Lower Nichols Nymet to Mr. George Powlesland. The manor of Sandford belongs to Mrs. Witt; Halse to the Rev. R. M. Fulford, vicar of Henneck, and Clapps-Beere to the Clapp family. The manor of Week is the property of Mr. John Henson Gibbings, having been purchased by him in 1889. Crooke Barton has belonged since 1883 to Mr. Richard May. The Earl of Portsmouth, who is lord of the manor; Gen. Sir H. P. De Bathe bart. of Wood End, Chichester, Sussex; the Rev. Robert Hole B.A. Mrs. J. M. Pope, of Spence Combe, Crediton; A. S. Perkins esq. of Exeter; R. D. Prickman esq.; Mrs. Witt and E. C. Nicholls esq. are the principal landowners. The Rev. E. M. Fulford, vicar of Henneck, Richard May esq. Mr. Shaw, of Halifax, T. Wreford esq. of Exeter, and Messrs. Thomas Axford and George Powlesland are also landowners here. The soil is various; subsoil, principally red sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and roots. The area is 5,951 acres of land and 16 of water; rateable value, £6150; the population in 1901 was 1,528 in the civil and 1,682 in the ecclesiastical parish.

BROAD NYMET is a rectory and parish, paying poor and highway rates to North Tawton, but ecclesiastically annexed to Bow or Nymet Tracey: it is the property of R. D. Prickman esq. and the residence of William Snell esq. Post, M. O. & T. O., T. M. O., S. B., Express Delivery, Parcel & Annuity & Insurance Office (Railway Sub-Office. Letters should have R.S.O. North Devon added).—Frank Skinner, postmaster. SOUTH TAWTON is a parish and village on the road from Exeter into Cornwall, and near the river Taw, 4 miles south-east from Sampford Courtenay station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 5 east from Okehampton and 18½ west from Exeter, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Crockernwell petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is a building of granite in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, the second dated 1837 and the others 1744: on the south side of the tower is an ancient sun-dial: in the north aisle, or Wyke chapel, as it is called, is an Elizabethan tomb, dated 1592, with a full-length male effigy in the armour and ruff of the period, said to represent John Wyke esq. of North Wyke, in the parish of South Tawton: the fine oak pulpit is panelled and inlaid with scriptural figures: at the east end are three stained windows, presented by H. A. Hoare esq. in 1856: in the north aisle are three memorial windows to the Rev. John Bliss M.A. late vicar, and to the Weeke and Oxenham families: the stained west window was erected by Mrs. Harriet Cann as a memorial to Richard Dunning, who died in 1871, aged 102: in the south aisle is a stained window, presented by William Lethbridge esq.: in the chancel is a rich Perpendicular reredos, erected to the Rev. John Bliss M.A. late vicar, who died in 1880: in the south aisle is a mural tablet to the Burgoyne family, with quaint etchings of kneeling figures, and armorial shields with the date 1651, and there are other memorials to the Oxenham and Battishill families: the fine oak roof rests on angel corbels; and the turret with stairway leading to a former rood loft still remains: the church was restored in 1881, and again in 1887-9, when the organ and clock were renovated, and the tower repaired, at a cost of £3,087: a new clock was presented in 1893 by William Lethbridge esq.: there are 300 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1540; marriages and burials, 1558; and there are churchwardens' books dating from the same year. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of South Zeal annexed, joint net yearly value £270, with residence and 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1880 by the Rev. John Foulkes Clarke B.A. of Queen's College, Cork, and ad eund. B.A. and Lic. Theol. of Durham University. The chapel of St. Mary, at South Zeal, erected in 1713, is a small building of granite in the Perpendicular style, consisting of nave only and a western turret containing 2 bells: the chapel was restored and a stained east window inserted in 1877 by William Lethbridge esq. in memory of the Lethbridge family, for many centuries residents in this parish. West of the chapel is an ancient market cross. There are charities of £46 yearly value, £28 of which is derived from Northmore's Okehampton charity. In the parish is a copper mine and a limestone quarry. A fair is held on the first Thursday after the 9th of July, yearly, for cattle. Oxenham Manor House, one mile east, and now (1901) occupied by Francis Seymour Haden esq. C.M.G. is the property of Sir Henry Hugh Arthur Hoare bart. of Stourhead, Bath, to whom that manor and a considerable portion of the land in the parish belongs. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are the impropiators of the great tithes, amounting to £400 a year. Sir Henry Hugh Arthur Hoare bart. is lord of the manor of Blackall; and John Knapman esq. lord of the manor of Ash. The principal landowners are Sir H. H. A. Hoare bart. William Lethbridge esq. Richard Dunning, of Barton, Throwleigh; John Knapman, Mrs. Harriet Cann, Mark Cann esq. and William Wykes Finch esq. of The Monks, Kidderminster. The soil is loam and clay; the subsoil is shale. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and potatoes. The area is 10,960 acres of land, of which 2,836 are uninclosed and common, and 28 of water; rateable value, £6,347; the population in 1901 was 1,079. TEDBURN ST. MARY is a hilly and picturesque township and parish, and is pleasantly seated on a small stream called the Ted, which runs to Crediton, and there joins the river Creedy, and on the road from Exeter to Okehampton, about 4 miles south-west from the Crediton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway and 7 west-by-north from Exeter, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Crockernwell petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Kenn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary, a building of red sandstone, of early date, consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, dated respectively 1821, 1770 (2 and 3), 1736 (4 and 5) and the tenor, 1837: the chancel is Early English, but the nave and north aisle are of a later date: on the south side is a chantry chapel: the chancel was rebuilt and the nave restored and re-seated in 1868: there are 200 sittings. A new burial ground, adjoining the churchyard and under private trust, was approved by H.M. Secretary of State in 1888 as a place of interment for members of the Church of England only. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1558; marriages, 1653; burials, 1689. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £134, with 43 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1865 by the Rev. Charles William Edwards Tothill Th.Assoc.K.C.L. Here is a Wesleyan chapel with a Sunday school attached. A cemetery, with a small mortuary chapel, was formed in 1888, and is under the control of the Parish Council as burial board. There is a Reading Room, supported by R. Cuddeford esq. and well supplied with books, and also a room used by the Young Men's Christian Association, which is supported by Mrs. Bellow. There are charities of about £35 yearly value, £10 of which is derived from Duckfield's Crediton charity. Colley House is the residence of Patrick Francis Bellow esq. and Thornwood House of Robert Cuddeford esq. Francis Drummond Fulford esq. of Great Fulford, Henry Grose

Smith esq. who is lord of the manor; Patrick Francis Bellow esq. John White Abbott, Robert Cuddeford, and Thomas Wish esqrs. are the chief landowners. The soil is principally clay, and the subsoil is shale. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The acreage is 4,365; rateable value, £3,118; the population in 1901 was 475.

TEIGNGRACE (or Teignrace) is a parish and village on the river Teign, with a station, 217 miles from London, on the Moreton Hampstead branch, and another called Heathfield Junction, 220 miles from London, on the Teign Valley branch of the South Devon section of the Great Western railway. Teignrace is about 2 miles north-west from Newton Abbot, 16 south-west from Exeter, 8 north-west from Torquay and 6 south from Chudleigh, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred and petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The Stover canal, made by the Templer family, and extending from the head of the navigable portion of the Teign to this village, a distance of about 2 miles, greatly facilitates the exportation of the pipe and potters' clay found in the neighbourhood; it is now the property of the Great Western Railway Company, whose line is adjacent and parallel to it. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, erected by three brothers of the Templer family in 1787, is an edifice of stone in a debased form of Early English, consisting of nave with apse, transept, west porch, and a western tower with shingled spire containing 2 bells; the first, dated 1701, has a banding of grapes and vine leaves: over the communion table is an oil painting of a "Pieta," being a copy of the original, by Vandeyke, in the museum at Antwerp: in the Templer family pew is another painting of the "Presentation in the Temple": there are mural monuments to various members of the Templer family: the church was thoroughly renovated in 1872 at the expense of the 12th Duke of Somerset K.G. and affords 115 sittings. The register dates from the year 1681. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £104, including 65 acres of glebe, in the gift of Harold St. Maur esq. and held since 1897 by the Rev. Arthur Augustus Woolcombe

M.A. of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. There are charities of £60 yearly, left many years ago, and now expended in supporting the National School and in providing clothing for the poor. The ground of the Teignbridge Cricket Club is in this parish. Stover Lodge, the seat of Harold St. Maur esq. D.L., J.P. pleasantly situated on an eminence in an extensive and well-wooded park, with a lake of ornamental water, is a structure of Haytor granite, with a portico of Portland stone, built by James Templer esq. in 1776, and purchased by Edward Adolphus, 11th Duke of Somerset, in 1829, from the late George Templer esq.: the principal entrance to the park is on the main road from Exeter to Plymouth, where there are two lodges connected by a colonnade of fluted pillars, each consisting of a single block of stone. H. St. Maur esq. is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The Stover Golf Club have a good course of 18 holes, situated on the borders of the parish, adjoining Highweek, and also a commodious club house. The soil is light loam; subsoil is chiefly clay and yellow sand. The crops are grain, mangold wurtzel and potatoes. The area is 1,447 acres of land, 49 of water and 3 of tidal water; rateable value, £2,727; the population in 1901 was 190.

Parish Clerk, William Gerrey.

TEIGNMOUTH.

TEIGNMOUTH is a seaport on the south coast, a market town and prescriptive borough, with a station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 14 miles south from Exeter by rail and 15 by road, 6 east-by-north from Newton Abbot, 8 north-north-east from Torquay and 101 from London by road and 209 by rail, in the Mid division of the county, Exminster hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter.

The Great Western railway, after winding along the estuary of the Exe and a part of the coast, passes through nearly the centre of the town, and thence along the north bank of the river Teign to Newton Abbot, Totnes and Plymouth, thus affording ready and constant communication with those places, as well as with Exeter, Bristol, London and other parts of England.

The town is of considerable antiquity, having sent members to the Council at Westminster in the reign of Edward I.: it is not incorporated, but is governed by an Urban District Council of 12 members, formed in December, 1894, under the "Local Government Act" of that year (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), which takes the place of a Local Board, established April 8, 1859. St. Nicholas parish and part of Stoke-in-Teignhead were annexed to Teignmouth in 1881 under the Act 44 and 45 Vict. c. 99, for urban purposes.

Teignmouth is situated on the coast of the English Channel and on the north bank of the mouth of the river Teign, partly on and around the base of a triangular point of land which projects halfway across the estuary, and on the acclivities of the hill which rises from this point to the north-west and commands extensive views of the river and the sea; it consists of the parishes of East and West Teignmouth, formerly separated by an open stream, which is now covered over; these form separate manors, for each of which courts leet and baron are held annually, when portreeves and other officers are appointed. Although the town is irregularly built and some of the streets are narrow and ill-paved, it contains some good shops, several fine terraces and many good residences; it is lighted with gas from works in Bishops Teignton road, about three-quarters of a mile from the town, and well supplied with water from works at Combe vale, both of which were established June 7th, 1836, and are now the property of the Urban Council.

The Den, or Dene, is a grass plot running parallel with the sea and forming a fine promenade of more than half a mile in length: on the Den is a small lighthouse, erected in 1844-5 by the Harbour Commissioners. From the Den runs a pier, which exceeds 700 feet in length, and is built on cast iron screw piles; the abutment and centre of the pier are furnished with seats, and besides a cloak room there are shops and a saloon at the Den end, and at the pier-head is another saloon.

The pier is the property of the Devon Steamship Co. Limited, who also own the Exmouth and Paignton piers. This Company has two fine steamers, which call daily at the pier from May to October, and also make trips along the coast. The steam launch "Melita" also makes hourly trips at popular rates. Concerts are held on the pier twice daily throughout the summer months, under the management of Mr. James Baird, the pier master.

The town has two commodious quays—the Old and the New. The Old quay, the property of the Teignmouth Quay Co. has been considerably enlarged, and is connected with the Great Western railway at its western end; there is also a Custom House and a Coast-guard watch house. The harbour is safe and extensive and regulated by the Harbour Commissioners, who are now (1901) carrying out works for the security of the point at the entrance to the harbour, and for the improvement of the navigable channel. The Customs port extends from Langstone point (the limit of Exeter port) to Galmpton point (limit of Dartmouth).

Teignmouth is connected with the village of Shaldon by a ferry over the Teign, and also by a bridge of 34 arches, 1,671 feet in length, constructed of wood and iron, from designs by Roger Hopkins, engineer, at a cost of £20,000, and opened for traffic June 8th, 1827.

The number of sailing and steam vessels that entered the port of Teignmouth, from British possessions and foreign countries, with cargoes and in ballast, including their repeated voyages, in 1901 was 481, of 56,863 tonnage. The number of vessels registered under Part I. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, as belonging to the port December 31, 1900, is given at 21 of 2,335 tons. The number of fishing boats registered under Part IV. of the same Act was 33, giving employment to 202 men and boys. Fishing boats and their implements are distinguished by the letters T.H.

The total value of the imports for the year 1901 was £69,393, and of exports £20,833.

Teignmouth gives the title of baron to the Shore family. St. Michael's parish church, East Teignmouth, in the Dawlish road, close to and overlooking the sea, is a cruciform building of stone, rebuilt in 1822-23 in the Norman style, and consists of chancel, nave of six bays, aisles, small transepts, south porch, vestry (enlarged in 1885), and a western tower, begun in 1887 and completed and opened in 1889, in commemoration of the Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria: the tower, 113 feet 6 inches in height, is a handsome structure of local stone with Hamhill dressings in a mixed Gothic style; it is surmounted by four crocketed pinnacles, and contains a clock, given by Miss E. M. Stooks, of Teignmouth, and 8 bells with chimes, hung in commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, at a cost of about £800: the chancel, built in 1875, is in the Early English style, has a reredos of carved oak inlaid with mosaic and retains double sedilia: the stained east window is a memorial to Lucinda Diana, wife of the late John Whidbourne esq. J.P. of Gorway, d. March 23, 1855, and there are others to Samuel Cousins, d. Sept. 29, 1876; Samuel Cousins, Julia, his wife, and two children, erected by Julia Cousins in 1882; William Frupp, of The Grove, d. Dec. 24, 1871, and Frances, his wife, d. May 17, 1879; Elizabeth Frupp, late of The Grove, erected in 1901; to Elizabeth Jane Maitland Strachan, d. Jan. 4, 1891, and Augustus John Maitland, erected in 1899: there are also brasses to Henry William Atkinson and Laura, his wife, d. 1850, and to Roger Wilcocks, d. 1876: in 1885 a brass lectern was presented in memory of Richard Marsh Marsh-Dunn esq. d. 1884, by his widow and three children: the ancient screen, existing in 1822, has now disappeared: the church was re-seated in 1881-2, and renovated internally, the galleries being taken down, at a cost of £1,264: a new font was provided in 1885, at an expense of £100: the west end and the tower were rebuilt in 1888-9, at a cost of £3,050, and there are 850 sittings. The register dates from the year 1665. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £146, with 8 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the vicar of Dawlish (to which parish it was formerly annexed), and held since 1884 by the Rev. James Veysey M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin.

St. James' parish church, West Teignmouth, is a large octagonal edifice of stone, with slender iron pillars supporting a richly-vaulted roof, surmounted by an octagonal domed lantern, and has a south porch and a low tower of Norman date, the only remaining fragment of the ancient church, containing 8 bells hung in 1879, and a new clock, with three dials, placed in the tower in 1896, which strikes the hours and chimes the quarters: the east window was erected at the cost of Charles Stirling esq. of Buckeridge, to Mary Elizabeth, his wife, d. Dec. 10, 1863: a stained window was presented in 1892 by Mr. Frederick Drake, of Exeter and Teignmouth, and in 1895 another was placed in the south porch to Mr. William Bragg, of West Teignmouth: there are several mural tablets and a brass to the Rev. William Laidlay M.A. vicar here 1871-76, d. Oct. 27, 1883: the south porch was erected in 1868 by the Rev. Joseph Birch M.A. late vicar, and a memorial to Fanny Lea, his wife, d. April 2, 1868: there is a handsome brass lectern, given by Mrs. Desbrisay: the marble font was given anonymously in 1900, and the pulpit of marble and alabaster was presented in the same year by the Rev. Charles Wyncoll, a resident in the parish: in 1891 the church was re-pewed; in 1892 the galleries were partly removed and the church re-decorated, and in 1893 a new choir vestry was erected at a cost of £758: the church affords sittings for about 1,200 persons. The register dates from the year 1700. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £280, with residence, in the patronage of five trustees, and held since 1877 by the Rev. James Metcalfe M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge.

The Catholic church, dedicated to our Lady and St. Patrick, in the Dawlish road, originally founded in 1854, is a building of limestone, in the Gothic style, with presbytery attached, and was built in 1878 at a cost, including land, of £3,500: it consists of chancel, nave, aisles, lady-chapel, baptistery, west porch and a turret containing one bell: the organ was presented by Miss Duke in 1881, and there are three stained windows, a handsome high altar in Caen stone and several side altars: the church was decorated internally about 1897, when a painting by Father Dennis O.S.B. was presented: there are 250 sittings.

St. Scholastica's Abbey, Dawlish rd. is a convent belonging to a community of English Benedictine nuns, founded in 1662, at Dunkirk, France, but the community being imprisoned and finally driven out of that country in 1793, by the French Revolution, came to England, and settled at Hammersmith: in 1863 the present abbey was built, and a church erected and consecrated in 1864: the work of the Perpetual Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament was established within its walls in 1875, and has been continued by day and night from that time: mass is said daily about 7 a.m. and sung on Sundays and holy days about 9 a.m.: there is a side chapel, to which seculars are admitted: the abbey is a fine building of stone, situated some 300 ft. above the sea level, and commands a beautiful view over both sea and land; Miss Margaret Mary Florin, lady abbess.

The Baptist chapel, Fore street, erected in 1887, at a cost, including land, of £1,850, is an edifice of red brick, with freestone and white brick dressings, in the Gothic style: the interior is seated with chairs for 380 persons.

The Congregational church, Dawlish road, originally erected in 1790, was rebuilt of stone in 1883, in the Decorated style, at a cost of £3,700, and has 695 sittings.

The Wesleyan chapel, Somerset place, was erected in 1845, and will seat 650 persons.

The Primitive Methodist chapel, Willey lane, a red brick building with stuccoed front, was erected in 1877, at a cost of £860, to seat 200 persons, and is endowed with £20 yearly rising from the rent of three cottages in Parson street: the chapel was renovated in 1897.

The Brethren's chapel, Bitton street, was erected about 1840, and will seat 350 persons.

A Cemetery for both parishes, about 1 mile from the town, near the Exeter road, was formed in 1856, at a cost of £2,500, and is under the control of the Urban District Council; it consisted of 2 acres of land and has two mortuary chapels: in September, 1873, two acres were added, at a cost of £800.

The Post Office, in Den road, and erected in 1886, from designs by Mr. F. Slocombe, is a building of red brick, with postmaster's residence adjoining.

The Temperance Hall, with library and reading room, was opened in 1879, and has a lending library of over 1,300 volumes: it is supported chiefly by voluntary subscriptions.

The Masonic Hall, in the Hollands road, is a plain gabled structure of limestone, at which are held the meetings of the following lodges:—The Freemasons' Lodge, "Benevolent," No. 303, warranted in 1794; a lodge of Mark Masters, "Benevolent," No. 316 and a Chapter of Royal Arch Masons. The secretaries are:—"Benevolent" lodge, Mr. J. U. Valentine, Somerset place; Mark lodge, Mr. R. C. Musgrave, Bank street; Chapter, Mr. F. C. Hallett, Brunswick street; William Robins is curator of the building.

The Science and Art School, in Orchard gardens, was instituted in 1885, and is carried on in connection with the Art Department of the Board of Education, South Kensington; it has a general room, painting and modelling rooms and a well-equipped art library for the use of students.

The Urban District Council has a fire brigade of 11 men; the whole system of water supply is under high pressure, but the Council acquired during 1897 by purchase a steam fire engine at a cost of about £400.

The East Devon and Teignmouth Club, established in 1869, is situate in the centre of Den crescent, facing the sea; the building, which is of stone, was erected in 1820 as Assembly rooms, and contains a spacious ball-room, 70 feet long, and billiard and other rooms: it is now the sole property of the club, which now (1901) numbers about 130 members, and is open to visitors on certain specified terms.

The Constitutional Club, established in 1887, occupies premises on the Den, facing the sea, comprising two billiard, reading, smoking, card and other rooms, well fitted up and has about 200 members.

The Young Men's Christian Association has premises at 17 Orchard gardens: the house contains a large meeting-room, and library and committee and game rooms: the house and furniture are the property of the Teignmouth branch of the Y.M.C.A.: the premises were opened July 25, 1900, and are vested in Dr. Hingston, of Plymouth, and Dr. Rudkin, Mr. M. Fraser and Mr. W. I. Norton, of Teignmouth, as trustees.

The Young Women's Christian Association have rooms at 4 Orchard gardens.

The Useful Knowledge Society and Mechanics' Institute, at the Athenæum, was established in 1840, and has a lending library of 1,200 volumes.

A drinking fountain was erected near the Den in Nov. 1885, at the cost of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Wills, of Oak Lodge.

The present market was erected in 1883, but the original charter dates from 1253; the market for provisions is open daily; the building contains board room and offices for the Urban District Council and an arcade of small shops, the purchase of the freehold, charter and buildings amounting to £3,500.

The town has a factory for the jadoc productions, on the old quay. Fine pipe and potters' clay are dug principally in the neighbouring parish of Kingsteignton and brought down the river in small craft and thence shipped to the Staffordshire and other potteries, to the extent of about 87,000 tons annually. The imports are principally coal, culm and wood pulp. The home fishery includes whiting, herrings, mackerel and pilchard, which are caught in the Channel, and salmon in the river.

There are maltings and breweries upon a small scale, and a shipbuilding yard, now the property of The Teignmouth Ship and Yacht Co. Limited; racing and cruising yachts up to 300 and 400 tons are constructed here on a patent slip.

There are three banks, also several circulating libraries and reading rooms, some good hotels, inns and a number of respectable and well conducted lodging houses. The Royal hotel is well situated, facing the sea; the London hotel is in Bank street. The Queen's hotel is in Wellington street, and the Railway hotel opposite the railway station.

The Teignmouth Baths, in Carlton place, erected in 1883 by a limited company, at a cost of £2,500, are now the property of Mr. William Harry Haymes, and consist of hot and cold baths and a large swimming bath.

There are three local publications: the "Teignmouth Gazette," published every Wednesday, by Sydney Arthur Croydon, Station road, contains a summary of local news, a directory of the town and neighbourhood, and a list of new arrivals; the "Teignmouth Times," a similar publication, is published every Friday, by Edward James Cornish, Wellington street; and the "Teignmouth Post," published every Friday, by Sydney Arthur Croydon, Station road.

The Teignmouth Hospital, in the Dawlish road, was established in 1848, and in 1887-8 a new ward, called the "Victoria," for 6 male patients, was erected at a cost of £500; the building is now available for 18 patients; the hospital also affords relief to about 1,600 out-patients.

A Sailors' Home and Institute, with reading and mission rooms, was opened in 1881, and is supported by subscriptions.

A soup kitchen was erected in Willey lane in 1851, and rebuilt in 1887, at a cost of £150; it is open during the winter months, and is supported by voluntary contributions. There are also bread and coal funds for the relief of the poor, and halfpenny dinners are given to children.

The Risedon charity of £21 yearly is given to aged spinsters and widows who are not in receipt of parochial relief.

The Earl of Devon, lord of the manor of East Teignmouth, and Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, lord of West Teignmouth, are the principal landowners.

TEMPLETON is a scattered village and parish near the river Dart, 5 miles west-by-north from Tiverton station on the Exe Valley section of the Great Western railway, and 18 north-north-west from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred of Witheridge petty sessional division of Cullompton, union and county court district of Tiverton, rural deanery of Tiverton West and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The original church of St. Margaret, formerly belonging to the Knights Templars, was built in 1335 in the Decorated style, and rebuilt in the same style in 1876, except the tower, at a cost of £600; it is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells, on the first of which, cast in or about 1416, is the legend "Sanc. Maria," the first word being upside down; the second bell is dated 1724 and the tenor 1616: the tower was restored and the bells re-hung in 1882: there are 100 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1556; marriages and burials, 1578. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £120, including 86 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Sir Edmund Reginald Talbot Pole bart. and held since 1887 by the Rev. James Fowler B.A. of Cambridge University. There is a Bible Christian chapel here, built in 1859, and supplied by local preachers. Lt.-Col. Chichester and Capt. Nugent Chichester of Calverleigh Court, are lords of the manor and principal landowners. The soil is loam and clay. The land is of a mixed character, arable and pasture. The crops are chiefly oats, barley and wheat. The area is 1,906 acres; rateable value, £1,171; the population in 1901 was 175.

Sexton, George Stevens.

Post Office.—Mrs. Lydia Burnett, sub-postmistress.

Letters from Tiverton arrive at 8.50 a.m. & are dispatched at 4.45 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. Tiverton, 5 miles distant, is the nearest money order & telegraph office

TETCOTT is a parish and village near the confluence of the rivers Tamar and Claw and the Cornwall border, $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles south from Holsworthy station on a branch of the London and South Western railway, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Holy Cross is an ancient edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south transept, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing one bell, east in 1817: up to Aug. 1811 there were 3 bells, but a licence was then obtained from the bishop to sell two bells, one of which was broken, to defray the expense of repairs to the church: in the transept there is a marble monument, with arms of Sir Shilston Calmady kt. sheriff of the county, ob. 25 Sept. 1675, and to his wife, ob. Oct. 1699; there is also a marble tablet to John Arscott, of Tetcott, d. Jan. 1788, and a dilapidated monument to John Arscott esq. and his two wives, dated from 1675 to 1708: the font is Norman, and there is a carved oak pulpit: the chancel was restored by the late rector, to whose memory a small stained window was inserted by his family, on the south side of the nave in 1881: the rood screen, existing here in 1858, has now disappeared: the church was restored in 1874-6 at a cost of £600, and affords 200 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1600; marriages and burials, 1599. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £110, including 64 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Herbert Upton Squire, of St. Aidans, who is also vicar of Clawton. Here is the Bible Christian chapel. A small charity of £2 10s. is distributed in clothing to the poor. THORNBURY is a scattered parish on the small river Waldron, $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles north from Dunsland Cross station on the Holsworthy branch of the London and South Western railway and 5 north-east from Holsworthy, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter, dedicated in 1339, is a building of stone in mixed styles, and consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south transept, south porch, and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles at the angles, containing 5 bells, recast in 1876 from a previous peal of 3, of which the first two were dated respectively 1779 and 1639: the south porch retains a fine Norman doorway and the north aisle a piscina: in the transept is a monument to Sir John Speccott, knighted at Greenwich, 2 June, 1604, and Elizabeth (Edgcombe), his 1st wife; it consists of a high tomb with recumbent effigies in alabaster finely executed, with four kneeling figures of their children, and a shield of arms of Edgcombe quartering Dernford, Bigbury and Walter: the church was restored in 1876 at a cost of £1,200, when the tower was raised 5 feet, and two stained windows, the gift of the late Rev. William Edgcombe B.A. rector 1840-88 and his sisters, inserted in the chancel: there are 250 sittings: a new boundary wall to the churchyard was built in 1896. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1652; burials, 1653. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £171, including 106 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Joseph Graham esq. K.C. and held since 1892 by the Rev. Henry George Smith-Heriz M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. There is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1891, with 120 sittings. Joseph Graham esq.

THORVERTON is a parish and village about a mile east of the river Exe, with a station on the Exe Valley branch of the Great Western railway, 7 miles north from Exeter, 6 east-by-north from Oredition and 8 south from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Cullompton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The Exe Valley railway, opened in May, 1885, is the property of the Great Western Railway Company, and connects the main line at Stoke Canon with the Devon and Somerset branch near Dulverton. The church of St. Thomas à Becket, an ancient building in the Gothic style, consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transept, south porch and a western tower containing a clock and 8 bells, dated respectively 1861, 1674, 1673 (4 and 6), the fifth 1662 and the others 1894, in which year two treble bells were added at a cost of about £85, as a memorial to the late Mr. Arthur Felix Risdon, churchwarden; the bells have been re-hung at a cost of £113: there are some ancient monuments to the Tuckfield family and modern stained windows: one of the bench ends bears the arms of the Luttrell family, and on another is a shield with the arms of Wallis impaling Gilbert: two other shields are carved with emblems of husbandry and the figure of a horse: the church was restored in 1864 by the Ven. Archdeacon Freeman, when a transept was added and the interior elaborately fitted, every seat, both in the nave and chancel, being carved: in 1887 a warming apparatus was erected at a cost of £100, defrayed by Mrs. M. A. Cummings; and a vestry has since been erected: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1725. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £328, including 27 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Frank Ley Bazeley M.A. of Christ College, Cambridge. The chapel of St. Martin, at Northdown, was erected by private subscription on a site presented by Martin Pasmore esq. Here is a Baptist chapel and a Conservative club. Fairs are held on the last Monday in February and the Monday after the 18th July, yearly, for lambs and cattle. This place is noted for its breed of sheep and produce of apricots. There are charities of £100 yearly value, distributed in money and kind. Goldford was the property of the late Sir H. Carew; the late Dowager Lady Carew having resided for many years at the Barton House. The manor anciently belonged to the abbey of Marmoutier in Normandy, but was purchased from that community by Sir John Wiger, and given by him in 1276 to the Dean and Chapter of Exeter. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who are lords of the manor and impropricators of the great tithes, Sir John Shelley bart. of Shobrooke Park, Charles Fursden esq. of Cadbury, and Martin William Pasmore esq. of Newton St. Cyres, are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey and sandy; the subsoil, red rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley and apples. The area is 4,074 acres of land and 18 of water; rateable value, £6,061; the population in 1901 was 813. Sexton, George Westcott.

RADDON is a hamlet half a mile west. The manor of East Raddon belonged prior to Edward I. to the family of de Bathwina or de Bathe, ancestors of Sir Henry de Bathe, and is now the property of Sir John Shelley bart. The remains of the ancient chapel here, dedicated to St. John the Baptist, and granted to Thomas Walys and his wife Isabel, August 24th, 1225, by Bishop Lacy, formed, until lately, part of a cottage, but in 1896 the chapel was restored by Sir John Shelley bart. of Shobrooke Park, and re-dedicated; the fine old oak roof is still entire, and portions of the old windows have been replaced.

Post, M. O. & T. O., T. M. O., S. B., Express Delivery & Annuity & Insurance Office.—William Lipscombe Cummings, sub-postmaster. Letters received through Exeter, 5 a.m. & 3.35 p.m.; dispatched at 3 & 7.50 p.m. week days only.

THROWLEIGH (or Throwley) is a parish and village near the high road from Exeter to Okehampton, 7 miles south-east from Okehampton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 17 west from Exeter, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Crockernwell petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and Exeter diocese. The church of St. Mary is a building of granite, in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle with an arcade of four arches, south porch and a lofty embattled western tower, with pinnacles and containing 5 bells: the roof of the chancel is wagon vaulted, with good carved oak panelling and bosses: the priests' door is a richly ornamented work of the 13th century: on the south side of the chancel is a sepulchral recess: there are memorial windows to the Dunnings of Barton and the Aysh family: in 1884 the church was re-seated and refloored, the tower arch opened, and the bells rehung, at a cost of £400, and further restored in 1890 at a cost of £501: there are 180 sittings. In commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of her late Majesty Queen Victoria in 1897, a new shaft and head have been raised on the base of the ancient cross by the rector and a parishioner. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1653; marriages, 1654. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £120, including 9 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1895 by the Rev. George Lincoln Gambier Lowe B.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. The mission church at MURCHINGTON, in connection with St. Mary's, is a building of granite, erected in 1889 at a cost of £400, and consists of chancel, nave and a western turret containing one bell: an oak pulpit, granite font and a lectern were provided about 1897: the church will seat 100 persons. Services are held here on Sunday afternoons, and morning services on the 2nd Sunday in each month. There is a Bible Christian chapel at Providence Place, built in 1839, and has a burial ground attached. The charities, amounting to £4 13s. yearly, are applied to the repair of the church. James Dunning, of Wonson, who is lord of the manor, Richard Dunning, of Barton, James and Richard Gay Crocker, of Forder, Alfred Guy Whipham esq. of Gidleigh Park, and the Rev. Dr. J. G. Dangar, principal of the Exeter Training College, are the chief landowners. The soil is sandy; the subsoil is rocky granite. The crops are wheat, barley, oats and pasture. The area is 2,976 acres of land and 5 of water; rateable value, £2,150; the population in 1901 was 241.

MURCHINGTON, 2 miles south-east, WONSTON, 1 mile south, FORDER, 1 mile south-west, PROVIDENCE PLACE, 1 mile south, and ASH, three-quarters of a mile south-west, are hamlets.

THRUSHBELTON, called in Domesday "Tresetone," is a very scattered parish near the road from Okehampton to Launceston, 4 miles north from Coryton station and 4½ north-east from Lifton station on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, and 11 north from Tavistock, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Tavistock union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The Thrushel stream, from which this place takes its name, flows near. The church of St. George, probably erected by the canons of Plympton, in the early 14th century, is a small edifice in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with south chapel, nave of two bays, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 5 bells, the first and fourth dated 1718, the second 1799 and the third and tenor 1717: in the chancel is a piscina, and there is another in the south chapel: the font, of Roborough stone, has an octagonal basin: the rood loft stairs still remain on the south side, but the screen, as well as the parclose of the chapel, are missing: in the porch is a stoup: in the north aisle is a flat stone inscribed to Roger Prest, gent. ob. 1658: the church affords 180 sittings. In 1504 the inhabitants were empowered by licence from the Archbishop of Canterbury, with the consent, on certain conditions, of the prior and convent of Plympton, to inclose ground round the chapel for the purposes of burial. The register dates from the year 1654. The living is a parochial chapelry, annexed to the vicarage of Marystowe, joint net yearly value £240, in the gift of the Hon. Mrs. Tremayne, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Henry Borlase Grylls M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, who resides at Marystowe. The Hon. Mrs. Tremayne, of Sydenham House, Marystowe, is lady of the manor and principal landowner. Orchard, on ancient manor house, formerly the seat of the Wood family, has been to a great extent demolished, and is now a farmhouse. The soil is loam; subsoil, slate. The land is arable and pasture. The area is 4,359 acres of land and 19 of water; rateable value, £2,230 5s.; the population in 1891 was 411.

By Local Government Board Order 15,033, detached parts of Lew Trenchard parish known as Northam, Orchard and Kilson were transferred to this parish March 25, 1885.

THURLESTONE is a parish at the mouth of the Avon, in Bigbury Bay, 4 miles west from Kingsbridge station on a branch of the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, Stanborough hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. This place takes its name from the "third" or pierced sandstone rock on the adjacent coast, known as the "Thurlestone rock," the opening through which forms a natural arch. The church (dedication unknown) is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the font is Norman, and in good preservation: the reredos is of stone, and the chancel retains its piscina: some fragments of the destroyed screen are incorporated in the altar table; its original position is shown by the mortice holes in the pillars: there are monuments to Thomas Stevens, of Clanacombe House, in this parish, dated 1648 and 1658, and to former vicars and residents: the eagle lectern of oak was a gift to the church, and there is an inscription in Latin to a former rector, who was also archdeacon of Totnes: the chancel, which is the earliest part of the church was partially restored and the body of the church re-seated in 1867: there are 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £230, including 36 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Lord Churston, and held since 1807 by the Rev. Frank Egerton Coope M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There is a Wesleyan chapel at East Buckland. H. F. Brunskill

AVONMOUTH.

Woodley Jn. frmr. Lower Avonmouth

TIPTON ST. JOHN is a hamlet on the river Otter, with a station on the Sidmouth branch of the South Western railway, which is also the junction for the Tipton St. John's and Budleigh Salterton branch line; it is 3 miles south from Ottery St. Mary and 7 south from Honiton; this hamlet was formed into an ecclesiastical parish July 16, 1841, and is in the Eastern division of the county, Ottery St. Mary hundred and petty sessional division, union and county court district of Honiton, rural deanery of Ottery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John, built in 1840, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: there are seven stained windows, and sittings for 300 persons. The register dates from the year 1850. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence and 6 acres of glebe, in the gift of the vicar of Ottery, and held since 1900 by the Rev. George Every. The principal landowners are the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle, the trustees of the late Mrs. Dening, William Taylor Thomas esq. Abraham Elliott Salter esq. John Bragg Wreford esq.

and Walter Tremlett esq. The Highlands, Exeter. The soil and subsoil is gravel. The chief crops are oats, barley and pasture. The area is 1,990 acres; the population in 1891 was 391.

FLUXTON, a hamlet, 1 mile south-by-west from Ottery St. Mary, is in this district.

TIVERTON.

TIVERTON (i. e. Twy-ford-Town) is an ancient municipal borough, head of a union and county court district, and gives its name to a hundred; it is in the North Eastern division of the county, head of a petty sessional division, West Tiverton rural deanery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter, and is situated partly in the valley of the rivers Exe and Lowman, which here meet; it is 165 miles by road and 184 by railway from London (Great Western), 14 by road and rail north from Exeter, 62 by road and 66 by rail south-west from Bristol, 30 south-east from Barnstaple, 46 north from Dartmouth, 67 north-east from Plymouth, 25 north from Exmouth, 26 north-by-west from Sidmouth, 77 from Bath and 156 from Birmingham. The town is about a mile in length, the chief portion standing on elevated ground on the left bank of the Exe; a steep descent called "Angel hill," leads to the bridge, connecting the town proper with the lower town, denominated "West Exe." There are four principal streets, which are wide, and occupied by good houses and handsome shops. A branch line, 5 miles in length, connects the town with the main line of the Great Western railway; and the Exe Valley line from Exeter to Dulverton, where it joins the Devon and Somerset railway from Taunton to Barnstaple and Ilfracombe, passes through the town; it was opened in 1884-5 and affords a quick and attractive route from Exeter to North Devon. All these lines are worked by the Great Western Railway Company. The "Lodge Estate" contains many villas. The Grand Western Canal, terminating at the south-east end of the town, extends to the limestone quarries in the parish of Burlescombe, and is 11 miles in length; it is now the property of the Great Western Railway Company, and is only used occasionally.

The ancient fords crossed respectively the Exe and the Lowman, at points now spanned by bridges; that crossing the river Exe is a handsome structure of 5 arches, originally erected in 1590 by Walter Tyrrel, draper, who left a considerable endowment to keep it in repair; and it has since been widened; the bridge over the Lowman has three arches.

A charter of incorporation was granted in the year 1615 to the inhabitants of Tiverton by James I. with the privilege of returning two members to Parliament, but this charter was surrendered in 1683 and another with a few almost nominal changes issued by Charles II.; in 1692 a fresh charter was granted by William and Mary, but in 1723 no mayor, owing to dissensions, being lawfully elected, the municipal privileges lapsed and the government fell into the hands of the lord of the manor, portreeve and county magistrates until their municipal status was restored by a new charter, dated Dec. 4, 1724 (11 George I.), designating the corporation "The Mayor and Burgesses of the Town and Parish of Tiverton." Under the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835 (5 and 6 Wm. IV. c. 76), this borough is included amongst those which hold commissions of the peace and quarter sessions, and is divided in three wards—viz, Westex Ward, Lowman Ward and Castle Ward—and governed by the borough magistrates, a recorder, mayor, six aldermen and eighteen councillors. From the date of its incorporation the town became a parliamentary borough, returning two members, but under the provisions of the Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885, the independent representation ceased, and the borough was merged in the Tiverton or North Eastern Parliamentary division of the county.

In 1262 Amicia, widow of Baldwin de Redvers, 7th Earl of Devon, caused a stream of water to be diverted and conducted into the town from Norwood Common, about 4 miles north, for the benefit of the inhabitants; it enters the town at Town's End, and from this point is distributed by conduits and open channels through every street, and by an Act of Parliament passed in 1767 the authorities are enabled to levy fines on persons who may divert the stream or any portion thereof from its course, or render the same unfit for the use of the inhabitants. In 1880 waterworks were constructed by the Corporation at Allers farm about 2½ miles distant, where the water is filtered and thence conveyed to the town in iron mains for household use; the total cost of this work was £4,000: further improvements were made in 1886 at a cost of £1,600: in 1889 an additional supply was obtained from Warnicombe hill, 2 miles east, by an adit being driven 220 yards into the hill side, the result of which was the provision of a high level supply of water of great value: a still further supply was obtained in 1892 from springs rising on a farm at Chettiscombe, 1½ miles north. In 1886 the Corporation constructed a new intercepting sewer, with an outfall at the sewage farm near Holwell, 1 mile south, and great improvements have since been made in the sewerage throughout the town, under the direction of Mr. J. Siddalls C.E. the borough surveyor. The town is lighted with gas from works in the Station road, erected in 1840, and now belonging to the Corporation.

In 1598, 1612, 1661, and six times during the 18th century, the town was greatly damaged by fire and the losses by the first two of these only was estimated at £350,000.

The parish church of St. Peter, in St. Peter street, was originally a chapel, erected in 1073, on the site of the present chancel, and consecrated in that year by Leofric, first bishop of Exeter; the existing church, a structure of Perpendicular date, consists of chancel, nave, aisles, north chapel, south or Greenway chapel, south porch, vestry and an embattled western tower, 120 feet high, with crocketed pinnacles at the angles, and containing a clock and 8 bells, recast in 1736 from a previous peal of 6, with additions, at an outlay of £229 19s. 6d.; the most ancient portion of the building is the Norman doorway on the north side: the chancel arch, with the Courtenay chapel, supposed to have stood at the east end of the north aisle, was probably erected about 1517; on each side of the arch, within a panel, is a carving of an eagle on a bundle of sticks, flanked by two boars, the Courtenay supporters; in the cornice moulding of the nave are various singular devices, with the dates 1605, 1606 and 1607: the columns of the arcades and the south wall were rebuilt on the erection of Greenway's chapel, in 1517, by John Greenway, merchant; this is a structure of Late but elaborate Tudor Gothic, on the south side of the church, with a highly enriched vaulted roof, and a cornice bearing the arms of Greenway and those of the Drapers' Company; the upper portion of the exterior walls, along the corbel line, is enriched with representations in relief of the chief events in the life of Christ; on the floor of the chapel are brass effigies of John Greenway and Joan, his wife, with a shield of arms of the Merchant Adventurers and the words "Pray for the soul of John Greenway," but the other shields, inscription and labels are now missing: the chapel was restored in or about 1830; the porch, a fine example of late Perpendicular, also built by Greenway, is panelled above the arch in six compartments, separated by figures and containing various scriptural subjects and a quartered shield of Courtenay and Redvers, impaling England, and representing the alliance of Sir William Courtenay K.B. with Katherine, daughter of Edward IV. and above it the hitherto unexplained crest of an eagle perched on a bundle of sticks, and the whole exterior is embattled, the south aisle, chapel and porch being highly enriched and adorned with emblems of trade and industry, arms, staple and merchants' marks and cyphers; the columns of the nave arcades have niches inclosing the shields of various noble families; the battlements of the chancel were erected by the Rev. John Newte, in 1709, and are covered with shields of arms, emblems and mottoes: the Courtenay chapel, erected by Hy. Courtenay, Marquess of Exeter, to contain the remains of his father and mother, Sir W. Courtenay K.B. ob. 1511, and the Princess Katherine, his wife, ob. 1527, was destroyed during the civil war, when the church was held by the Royalists as a military position: within it was an altar-tomb with a recumbent effigy of the princess, and another magnificent tomb, with effigies in alabaster, richly gilt, to Edward, 3rd Earl of Devon ("the blind earl"), who died at Tiverton Castle Nov. 5, 1492, and the Lady Maud (Camoy), his wife: the rood screen, groined and illuminated in gold and colour, was removed in 1854, and is now in the church of Holcombe Rogens: the interior has two paintings, one of "The Wise Men's Offering to Our Saviour," now placed over the vestry door, and another of "St. Peter delivered out of Prison by the Angel," over the north door, painted and presented by Richard Oosway R.A. in 1784: in the church are many ancient tombs and mural monuments; these include inscriptions to John Prowse, merchant, ob. Sept. 3, 1585, and Alice, his wife, ob. Aug. 13, 1583; George Hucker, merchant and mayor of Tiverton, ob. April 11, 1632; Valentine Hartnoll, mayor, ob. March 10, 1644, and Ann, his wife, June 11, 1649; John and Joan Colman, ob. Feb. 7, 1553; John Waldron, founder of the almshouses, ob. July 18, 1579; to the family of Newte, 1668-1792; and to Mary Shepherd, 1622; Mary Garnet, 1621; Nicholas Nemlett, 1633; Robert Hoare, 1687; John West, gent. 1630; Thomas Hawkins and other merchants, 1689; William Clark, of Bridwell, 1618; Roger Giffard esq. with arms, 1603; Thomas Monk, 1649; Samuel Foot esq. M.P.; Richard Spurway, first and fourth mayor of Tiverton, and others of that family; John Goddard, mayor, 1663; and to the families of Thorne, 1685-1734; Blundell, 1696-1822; Gilbert, 1790-1807; Burrigide, Atherton and others: the organ, originally built in 1696 by Bernard Schmidt, has a richly carved case, by Grinling Gibbons: a brass reading-desk and alms-dish were presented in 1894 by Mrs. Lloyd-Jones, another alms-dish has been given by the Rev. Donald M. Owen B.D. and a silver gilt communion service was presented by Miss Jones, at Easter, 1900: the total length of the church, including the tower is 163 feet, and the width, with aisles, 72 feet; it was considerably altered and reseated in 1819-21, the screen inclosing Greenway's chapel removed and the floor levelled; in 1853-6 the whole building was thoroughly restored and reseated at a cost of £4,000, under the direction of Mr. Ashworth, architect, of Exeter: there are 1,200 sittings. The parish registers date from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £627, with 236 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Percy Richard Scott M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge, prebendary of Exeter Cathedral and surrogate.

St. George's church, in Fore street, is a plain, oblong building of stone, in a Modern Classic style, consisting of nave, aisles and a western turret containing a clock and bell; the church was begun in the year 1714, completed in 1730, and consecrated October 11, 1733, by Dr. Stephen Weston, bishop of Exeter: the interior is surrounded by three galleries, supported, as well as the roof, by a double row of Ionic pillars, forming three aisles; the building was extensively repaired in 1841-2, when the roof was raised and reconstructed: the stained east window, with a full-length figure of St. Andrew, was the gift of Miss Walker, of Tiverton, and cost about £70: there are mural monuments to Mr. Henry Blagdon, 1716, and Mrs. Mary Peard, 1780, benefactors to the church, and others: adjoining the west entrance to the church is a marble monument to Mrs. Hannah Cowley, dramatic writer, and a native of this town, who died March 11, 1809; adjoining the east entrance is a similar monument to the Rev. Samuel Wesley M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford, head master of Blundell's school 1734-9, who died November 6th in the latter year; he was elder brother of the Rev. John Wesley M.A. founder of the Methodist body, and wrote "The Battle of the Sexes" and other poems: the communion plate was given by Mr. John Upcott, merchant, of Tiverton: the church was restored in 1896 at a cost of £700, when the galleries were reseated and the windows reglazed: it will now seat about 800 persons: the churchyard was enlarged in 1825, and contains a fine yew tree, planted by Mr. Thomas Owen in 1796. The registers date from the year 1890. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £387, with residence, in the gift of the Misses Carew, of Hacombe, and held since 1895 by the Rev. John Seymour Granville Hill M.A. of Cavendish College, Cambridge.

The Catholic church, dedicated to St. John, nearly a mile west of the town, is an edifice erected in 1821, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave, and will seat 250 persons; attached is a priest's residence. The Baptist chapel, in Newport street, was founded in 1607; the present building, erected in 1876, will seat 800 persons, and has registers of births from 1767. The Congregational chapel, in St. Peter street, erected in 1831, at a cost, including land, of about £5,000, has sittings for 700 persons: connected with this chapel are memorial rooms. There are also chapels at Elmore and Bolham. The Bible Christian chapel is in St. Andrew street, and will seat 450 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, in St. Peter street, built in 1814, is of brick and stone, with adjoining Sunday schools, and has 600 sittings. The Plymouth Brethren meet at Heathcoat Hall in Wellbrook street. The Cemetery, on the Park road, at a short distance from the town, was formed in 1855, and is under the control of a Burial Board of 9 members; it covers about 7 acres, and has two mortuary chapels.

The Town Hall, built in 1864, in place of the old structure, erected soon after 1615, is an edifice in the Venetio-Italian style of the Renaissance period, from designs by H. Lloyd esq. of Bristol, with frontages in Fore street and St. Andrew street: the ground floor contains the county court and borough surveyor's and accountant's offices, committee, magistrates' and waiting rooms and police lock-up cell: on the first floor is a public hall, about 70 feet in length, fitted up as a court of justice and council chamber, with a large gallery: there is also a jury room, a retiring room for the Recorder and magistrates and a mayoralty room, about 50 feet by 20 feet. In the hall are portraits of George I., II. and III. as well as a full-length portrait of George III.; and others of the late Viscount Palmerston K.G., G.C.B. &c. M.P. for Tiverton 1835-65, the late John Heathcoat esq. M.P., F. Hole esq. presented by Viscount Palmerston, and another of the late William N. Massey esq. M.P.; there is also a fine marble bust of Viscount Palmerston, presented by W. North Row esq. J.P. a former mayor, the cost of which was 180 guineas. The total cost of the building amounted to about £12,000. The Corporation insignia include two maces, a mayor's chain and badge, water bailiff's staff and borough and mayoral seals: the maces, of silver-gilt, form a pair 46 inches in length, of the usual form: the shafts are unusually elegant, and richly decorated with raised and chased foliage work; the heads bear the arms of the borough and the national emblems, crowned, and are finished with a cresting of crosses and fleurs-de-lis, from which spring open arched crowns: the hall marks give the date 1727-8: the mayor's chain and badge, made in 1876, consist of a series of ornamental links attached to a small shield, with a mace on either side, and the badge, pendent from this, displays the arms of the borough, as on the town seal, surrounded by a ribbon: the water bailiff's staff is a fine bamboo rod, terminating in a silver ball supporting a shield of the town arms: the town seal exhibits the church, castle and school, and below these the "twy" fords, crossing the Exe and Lowman, all within a legend: the mayor's seal bears a wool-pack and inscription.

The Drill and public hall, erected by a limited liability company, was opened in 1884, from plans prepared by Mr. Mitchell, of Southampton, and comprises a large hall and rooms for a caretaker; the total outlay in respect of the hall and other portions of the premises was about £3,000: the hall is 80 feet by 50 feet, and at the southern end is an alcove with platform, and on either side are retiring rooms: a gallery was added in 1892; it will hold 1,250 persons, and is used for theatrical performances, public entertainments and parochial purposes; the building also includes a volunteer armoury and stores: a small hall on the east side, 40 feet by 22 feet, and holding 150 persons, was erected in 1885.

The Borough police station, in St. Andrew street, was built in 1844-6, and is a substantial modern building, erected at a cost of about £5,000: in 1872 the white flag floated over the parapet for upwards of 200 days, there not being any prisoners confined during that time.

The Fire brigade station, in St. Andrew street, was rebuilt in 1898, at a cost of £150; it is of red brick and contains a new steam fire engine and a fire escape.

Tiverton was formerly noted for its woollen manufactures, but that trade, which sprung up here in the 14th century and continued to prosper through many years, fell into decay towards the close of the 17th century and has now become extinct. The principal manufacture now carried on is that of lace, established here in 1816, by the late Mr. John Heathcoat; the factory of Messrs. Heathcoat and Co. now the largest for that purpose in the West of England, and situated in the lower part of the town, employs about 1,000 hands, including 130 children: the machinery is driven by turbines, and in dry weather a steam engine is used: tulle is the principal product.

The brewery of Messrs. Starkey, Knight and Ford Limited, covers several acres of ground, and a fine water supply is obtained from a bore-hole, nearly 500 feet deep; there are also several flour mills in and near Tiverton.

The Market, in the centre of the town, at the back of Fore street, Peter street and Bampton street, was erected in 1830-1, at a cost of about £9,000, and is a light covered building, with good approaches from all sides, and a spacious area for pigs, sheep and cattle and stalls for butchers; there is also a provision, poultry and butter department, enlarged in 1897; within the market, and facing Fore street, is a clock: Tuesday is the principal market day and Saturday is a small market: there are two fairs for cattle, horses and sheep on the first Thursdays in June and October: there are great markets for cattle on the second and last Tuesdays in each month.

The principal hotels are the "Palmerston" and the "Angel."

There are three clubs:—the Constitutional, in Bampton street, opened in 1895, is a spacious stone building containing two billiard rooms, card and reading rooms, a buffet and steward's quarters, and has now over 300 members; the Tiverton Club (social), in St. Peter's street, opened in 1896, has 65 members; the Liberal Club, in Angel Hill, contains billiard, bagatelle, card and reading rooms, with steward's quarters, and has about 300 members.

The Tiverton Infirmary and Dispensary, in Bampton st. was established in 1852, and has 21 beds. The number of in-patients treated in 1900 was 163, and of out-patients 1,386. The institution is supported by voluntary contributions; accident, casualties, and cases demanding immediate attention are admitted free on application and other patients on subscribers' recommendations.

Greenway's Almshouses, in Gold street, were founded by John Greenway, of Tiverton, by will dated 6th August, 1529, "for the habitation of five poor men, to have their continual abiding and habitation in the same—and every one of them weekly 8d. and to pray dayley for me, the said John Greenway, Johannah, my wife, and for all Christian people": many additional houses have been added and the weekly allowance increased, in consequence of the increased value of the land devised: these almshouses now (1901) hold 17 married couples and 16 widows; each man is allowed 5s. a week, and on the man's death the widow receives a gratuity of £1 and she is allowed a month in which to move out: there are six "out pensions" of 8d. each weekly, the recipients being known as "Tyrrell's eightpenny men": the property of Greenway's Trust comprises £1,664 in Consols (producing £45 11s. annually) and houses and lands with an aggregate rental of about £412; the pew rents of Greenway's chapel in St. Peter's church also go to the charity; the original building, a quaint edifice of stone, is enriched with carvings similar to those on the south side of St. Peter's church, and includes the badge or device of an eagle perched on a bundle of sticks, and an invocatory inscription for the souls of the founders; it was thoroughly restored in 1866, and a chapel is attached in which divine service is held daily.

Waldron's Almshouses, Wellbrook street, built in 1579, were endowed by John Waldron, the elder, of Tiverton, merchant, by deed bearing date October 19, 1577, for eight poor men, each of whom receives 2s. weekly, 8s. yearly extra as milk money and 12s. 6d. as a New Year's gift: the income is £46 a year, derived in part from dividends on £800 Consols and in part from a rent-charge of £24 yearly: the charity was further increased in 1885 by the bequest of Mr. John Hatswell, of Tiverton (£518), which is now invested in Consols, and produces 15s. 6d. half-yearly for each almsman: attached to the house is a small chapel, with a good timber roof, restored in 1891 by the late Mrs. Patch: the buildings are in the old-fashioned style, with overhanging galleries, and are enriched with the arms and merchant's mark of the founder, his monogram and several rhyming inscriptions in old English characters: the Rev. Benjamin Mills M.A. vicar of St. Paul's, is chaplain; services are held in the chapel on Sundays at 5 p.m. and on Wednesdays at 3 p.m.

See's Almshouses are in St. Peter street, and were endowed by George See, in 1610, for six poor women, each of whom receives 1s. weekly, together with a gift of 3s. 6d. monthly from Anna Maria Turner's Charity and other sums from Elsie Besley's Charity and Mary Marshall's Trust.

Every occupant of the above almshouses receives annually three cwt. of coal, one third of which comes from the Custom-Wood Charity.

The Exe bridge trust, dating from 1563, and producing £250 a year, is mainly applied in bread, subject to the cost of repairing the bridge; the market trust, producing £220 yearly, is also distributed in bread. Rice's charity now averages about £120 yearly, derived from a farm at Ash Thomas and other property, is for annuities to relations of testatrix, or in default to other poor persons. The total income of these, and various other charities distributed in bread and clothing, together with the endowments of the almshouses, exceeds £1,100 a year.

In 1891 Mr. Thomas Ford erected near Lowman green a block of buildings called "The Homes," containing 12 sets of rooms for 24 inmates; each pair of occupants has a living room and bedroom and there is a well-appointed chapel on the first floor.

A Home for children afflicted with incurable diseases has been established in a farmhouse, known as "Fire Beacon," and standing on a hill overlooking the Exe valley, about 2½ miles north of the town: the inmates are ten in number; the Home was instituted and is maintained at the sole expense of Mrs. Unwin.

The People's Park, formed in commemoration of the Jubilee of Her late Majesty, Queen Victoria, in 1887, and situated at the northern end of the town, is a little over 6 acres in extent; part of the land was given by John Coles esq. of London, and the cost of laying out is estimated at £4,000.

Tiverton Castle, beautifully situated on the left bank of the Exe, and immediately adjoining the north side of St. Peter's church, is now used for the purposes of a farm and a private residence; it is supposed to have been built about 1106 by Richard de Ripariis or Redvers, first Earl of Devon of that family, and continued to be the chief residence of the families of Redvers and their successors, the Courtenays, until the attainder and execution of Henry Courtenay, Marquess of Exeter, 9 Jan. 1539-40: the manor was restored by Queen Mary, together with the marquessate, to his son, Edward, on whose death it passed by the marriage of co-heiresses into other families; the Carews, of Hacombe, have been owners since 1759. The castle shared in the wars of Stephen's reign, and in the contests of the rival roses, being alternately held by both parties: during the Civil War it was garrisoned for the king, and in 1645 was besieged by General Massey and taken by storm, 10th October, 1645: it was once the splendid residence of the Courtenays, and is now occupied by Charles Fetherstonhaugh: the principal gateway of the castle is on the east side; a structure of two storeys, with an octagonal turret at the north-west angle remains, together with some other portions: under the castle wall on the west side is a covered way, supposed to pass under the town and terminate in Gold street.

Mrs. Hannah Cowley (née Parkhouse), a dramatic writer, was born here in 1743: this was also the birth-place, in 1740, of Richard Cosway R.A. son of the then master of Blundell's school. John Cross, an historical painter, born in 1819, was the son of the manager of the lace factory here.

There are many residences in the outskirts of the town.—Kingshayes Court, the residence of Sir John H. Heathcoat-Amory bart. D.L., J.P. and M.P. for Tiverton 1868-85, erected in 1869, is a handsome mansion in the Domestic Gothic style, from designs by the late Mr. Burgess; it stands in a prettily wooded park of about 200 acres, containing fine specimens of the oak, cedar of Lebanon, ilex and pines insignis, and a Wellingtonia gigantea, over 75 feet in height; this park was formerly part of the demesne of the Courtenays, Earls of Devon, and lords of Tiverton, as is shown by the existence in situ of an ancient boundary stone, called the "Whitstone," at the end of a lane, near the modern gardens of the mansion: Southwood is the residence of Walter John Llewellyn esq. J.P.; Hensleigh House, of Ian Murray Heathcoat-Amory esq. J.P.; Collierpriest House, of Charles Robert Sydenham Carew esq. J.P.; Hayne House, of William Cowper Ludovic Unwin esq. J.P.; Broomfield, of Major Smith Harrington Gardner J.P.; Broomhill, of the Rev. John Dickinson M.A.; Exeleigh, of A. Clarke-Jervoise esq.; Tidcombe, of W. Rayer Harman esq.; Howden Court, of Ashton Arundel Mackenzie esq. and Ashley Court, of F. S. Dayman esq. The Misses Carew, of Hacombe, are ladies of the manor.

The parish was divided by Hugh Courtenay, Earl of Devon, about the end of the 13th century, into five portions, viz., Clare Portion, Pitt Portion, Priors Portion, Tidcombe Portion and All Fours Portion, which included several hamlets: Clare Portion contained the hamlets of FROGWELL, 3 miles north-west, LURLEIGH, 2½ miles north-east, and WITHEIGH, 3 west. Pitt Portion contained the hamlets of CHETTISCOOMBE, 13 miles north-east, BOLHAM, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles north, and COVE, 5 miles north: Priors Portion contained the hamlets of ASHLEY, 3 miles south, and BICKLEYBRIDGE, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles south: Tidcombe Portion contained the hamlets of CHEVITHORNE, 2 miles north-east, WEST MERE, 3 north-east, and EAST MERE, $\frac{3}{4}$ north-east, CRAZE LOWMAN, 3 north-east, and MANLEY, $\frac{1}{2}$ south-east.

In 1886 the incumbencies of two portions became vacant and an Order in Council was obtained for a rearrangement, with the result that the two surviving rectors divided the parish between them as rectors of Pitt-Clare and Tidcombe-Priors Portions, districts being assigned to the ecclesiastical parishes of Cove, Witleigh and St. Paul's, Westex. In 1889, on the death of the rector of Pitt-Clare portion, the parish was, under the same Order, further divided into three more ecclesiastical parishes. The southern part of the town and a considerable part of Tidcombe portion in the country being assigned to the vicarage of St. George's; another district, formed mainly out of Tidcombe, part out of Pitt, to the vicarage of St. Thomas, Chevithorne, and the remainder to the rectory of St. Peter's.

The parish and borough are co-extensive, and include 17,585 acres of arable and pasture land and 95 of water; rateable value, £52,295; the population in 1891 was 10,892, including 9 officers and 123 inmates in the workhouse, and in 1901, 10,382.

The population of the municipal wards in 1891 was:—Castle, 2,518; Lowman, 4,659; West Exe, 3,715.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1891 was:—St. George, 2,233; St. Peter, 4,031; Chevithorne, 605; Cove, 308; Westex, 3,142; Witleigh, 573.

CHEVITHORNE, $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east from Tiverton, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1889. The chapel of St. Thomas was erected in 1842-3 from designs by Benjamin Ferry esq. architect, of London, at a cost of £1,000, and is an edifice of stone in a plain Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and aisles: the service books and communion plate were presented by the Rev. William Rayer M.A. late rector of Tidcombe Priors portion, who also contributed the chief cost of the building: the church was beautifully restored and enlarged by Sir John H. Heathcoat-Amory bart. in 1891, at a cost of £1,400, by the addition of an organ chamber and vestry: there are 200 sittings: the churchyard was enlarged in 1893 by the addition of a field given by Sir J. H. Heathcoat-Amory bart. the walls inclosing it being erected by the parishioners. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1842, and of marriages from 1889. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £142, with an addition of £50, from the Rayer endowment, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor and the Hon. Henry Dudley Ryder, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Edward Davis. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, rebuilt in 1887.

COVE, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles north from Tiverton and $2\frac{1}{2}$ from Bampton station on the Exe Valley section of the Great Western railway, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1886. The church of St. John the Baptist, erected in 1846 on the site of an earlier building, is an edifice of stone in a plain Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and vestry, and has 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1700. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £168, in the alternate gift of Maj.-Gen. John Spurway, of Oakford, and the Rev. Sir Vyell Donnithorne Vyvyan bart. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Arthur Rawlings M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge, who resides at Tiverton.

Cove House, the seat of Mrs. North Row, is pleasantly situated on the slope of the eminence on which the church stands; the present mansion, an imposing edifice of stone was erected in 1800, and has since been considerably enlarged: the family are descended from Sir Row, of Totton, about 1490; the manor of Cove was acquired in 1763, by Robert Row, who married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Isaac Heard, Garter King at Arms, 1758.

WESTEXE is an ecclesiastical parish formed in 1856; the church of St. Paul, built at the expense of the late Ambrose Brewin esq. assisted by a grant of £3,000 from Mrs. Peard's trust, on a site given by the late John Heathcoat esq. is an edifice of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, two south porches and a tower on the south-east, with spire 130 feet high, containing a clock and 5 bells: the foundation stone was laid on the 10th of April, 1854, and the building completed in 1856: the east and west windows are stained, and two others were inserted in 1885 in memory of Miss Charlotte Carew: the stained east window was inserted in 1893 as a memorial to the late Frederick Patch esq. and Mrs. Patch: there are 1,000 sittings. The register dates from the year 1856. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £495, with residence, in the gift of Lord Harrowby and other trustees, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Benjamin Mills M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge.

WITLEIGH, 3 miles west, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1886. The church of St. Katherine, built in 1846, in place of an ancient chapel of the same name, licensed July 2, 1400, is an edifice of stone in a plain Gothic style, consisting of chancel and nave, south porch and a turret with one bell; the east window is stained; a vestry was added on the north side, in 1897, by John Carpenter esq. and other friends; there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1847. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £292, in the alternate gift of William Spurway esq. and the Rev. Sir Vyell D. Vyvyan bart. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Richard Medland Germon B.A. of St. Mary Hall, Oxford.

SCHOOLS.

Blundell's Free Grammar School, Halberton road, was founded in 1604 by Peter Blundell, who by his will, dated 1599, devised the sum of £2,400 to be laid out in the purchase of land, & directed that a school should be erected thereon sufficiently large to hold 150 boys & certain masters, the boys not to be admitted until six years of age, nor to remain after attaining the age of eighteen; he also charged his lands & tenements to pay the masters' salaries, & devised the sum of £2,000 to be applied in establishing six scholarships; & there are also scholarships arising from other gifts & bequests to this school: the new buildings, occupying an elevated site of 20 acres on the Halberton road, about a mile from the town, & erected at a cost of about £20,000, are in the Tudor style, from designs by Messrs. Hayward & Son, of Exeter, & include a large school-room & class-rooms for 300 boys, a school chapel, gymnasium, chemical laboratory, workshop & engineering room, lecture room & library, sanatorium, fives court, pavilion, school shop & swimming bath; besides the school house there are four large boarding houses attached to the school, & arranged to hold 160 boys: the old school, at Lowman green, south-east of the town, now converted into gentlemen's residences, was a long building of one storey, in the Tudor style, with large projecting porches & a bell-cote with cupola containing one bell, dated 1613: the fine timbered roof of the school-rooms was a copy of one in the chapel of Frithelstock Abbey, near Torrington, & much of the wood work is believed to have formed part of the wreckage of the Spanish Armada: over the gateway is an inscription in Latin, engraved on a brass plate, & below that the following inscription:—"This Free Grammar School was founded at the only cost & charge of Peter Blundell, of this town, sometime clothier, Anno Domini 1604, Etatis sue 81." Attached to the school are five scholarships at Balliol College, Oxford, each of the annual value of £60, tenable for five years; three exhibitions of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, of the like annual value, tenable for three years; three exhibitions of the yearly value of £30 each, tenable for four years, in any college, either at Oxford or Cambridge; one of the annual value of £42, tenable for five years, at Balliol College, & open to all boys educated at this school; there are also 18 scholarships or exhibitions of the annual value of from £50 to £60 each, tenable for four or five years at Oxford or Cambridge, & several entrance & foundation scholarships of from £12 to £40 yearly, tenable at the school; boys are not now admitted until nine years of age, but may remain until nineteen or longer with special permission; under the new scheme of 1876 boys are prepared for the universities & professions & for the higher branches of the civil service, special encouragement being given to candidates for the Civil Service of India to reach an Honours standard both in classics & mathematics, besides keeping up at least one modern language; & there are separate classes under specially qualified masters for the Army, Navy, London University Matriculation & other examinations. The school is under the management of trustees appointed under the will of the founder, and in accordance with a decree of the Court of Chancery in 1846 is free to all: the income amounts to about £1,000 yearly. TOPSHAM is a market town, parish and seaport and fishing station within the jurisdiction of the port of Exeter, on the east bank of the navigable river Exe, into which the river Cyst flows from the east and forms the boundary of the township on that side. Over the Cyst is a stone bridge of five arches, leading to Cyst St. George; it has a station on the Exmouth branch of the London and South Western railway, and is 4 miles south-east from Exeter, 6 north-west from Exmouth and 177 from London, in the North Eastern division of the county, Wonford hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The town is on the direct road from Exeter to Exmouth, and is paved and lighted with gas. The civil parish includes the ecclesiastical parish of Countess Wear or Weir. The church of St. Margaret is a spacious edifice of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, aisles, south-east porch and an embattled tower on the south side, containing a clock and 6 bells, dated respectively 1778, 1709, 1640 and 1750 (2); in the south transept are two marble monuments, by Chantry, to Admiral Sir John Thomas Duckworth bart. G.C.B. ob. Aug. 31, 1817, erected by his widow, and to the admiral's son, Col. George Henry Duckworth, who fell at the battle of Albuera, 16th May, 1811: the east window is a memorial to the Rev. Henry Thorp M.A. for 30 years rector here, d. Feb. 13, 1857, and to Margaret Courtney, his wife: the west window is a memorial to William Rooke and Catherine, his wife, and was erected by their son William in 1877; there are others to the Ross, Griffiths, Brent and Roos families, and a fine brass eagle lectern, presented in memory of Richard Pennell, who died May 4, 1797, by his children: the font is ancient and has a handsome brass cover, the gift of the late Rev. Henry T. Ellacombe M.A. 1880, some time rector of Cyst St. George: the church was entirely rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, during the period 1869-78, at a cost of £8,550, from designs by Mr. Edward Ashworth, architect, of Exeter: there are 984 sittings. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £282, including 28 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1880 by the Rev. John Bartlett M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. The Church Mission hall in Victoria place (formerly a Unitarian chapel) affords 350 sittings. The Congregational chapel, Victoria place, is a plain building, erected in 1839, and has 350 sittings. The Wesleyan chapel, Fore street, erected in 1864, at a cost of £3,000, in place of one built in 1818 and now used as an infants' school, is a building of limestone, with sittings for 500 persons: at the back is a mission room, with 200 sittings. The Wesleyan Reform Chapel is in Chapel court. A Cemetery of 2½ acres, with two mortuary chapels and caretaker's house, was formed in 1855 and is now under the control of the parish council. The Vestry hall, in Fore street, built in 1886, is a structure of red brick, and is used for parish purposes. The Victoria Pier and Promenade was erected in 1887. The entrance for vessels into the ship canal from this place to Exeter is at Turf, on the side of the river Exe opposite to the town. The quays, building yards and waterside premises are principally the property of Messrs. Holman and the town council of Exeter. The only factory here is that of Messrs. George Hopewell and Co. engineers. A fair is held on the Thursday preceding the 10th of July annually, for pedlery. There are numerous charities amounting to about £250 yearly. Grove Hill is the residence of Robert Manning Davy esq. J.P. and The Retreat, the seat of Alexander Kelso Hamilton esq. D.L., J.P. Col. Sir Dudley Gordon Alan Duckworth-King bart. of Wear House, A. K. Hamilton esq. and Ivor Macpherson esq. are the chief landowners. The soil in the neighbourhood is light; the subsoil is gravel and sand rock. The area is 1,584 acres of land, 4 of water, 89 of tidal water and 373 of foreshore; rateable value, £11,129; the population in 1891 was 2,833 in the civil and 2,447 in the ecclesiastical parish; the population of the civil parish in 1901 was 2,780.
